Tells Legislative Committees City Will Spend $25,000,000 for Municipal Lines.

CHATS WITH THE GOVERNOR

CRAIG ON THE SAME TRAIN

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—Mayor Hylan came to Albany today to fight for the Walker-Bloch bill which would permit the New York City Administration to spend the money necessary to establish municipally operated bus lines throughout the city. He left the capital tonight after a day filled with adventure.

The Mayor came very near being left out of the hearing on his pet measure before the Cities Committees of the Senate and Assembly. For some reason, the time for holding the hearing had been put forward. When it got under way the Mayor, with Corporation Counsel Nicholson and Augustus Kelly, the Mayor's executive secretary, were at luncheon at the Hotel Ten Eyck. The Mayor was compelled to leave a dish of pot roast and rush for the Capitol in order not to miss it.

After having had his say before the two committees, and incidentally having lent ear smilingly to a statement by Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, who was there to oppose "Mayor Hylan's bus bill," that there were some good points about the Mayor and his Administration and that Mr. Hylan surely would be renominated and re-elected, the Mayor went to the Executive Chamber, where he remained for fifteen minutes with Governor Smith.

The Mayor appeared a little uncertain as he was ushered into the Governor's private sanctum. He emerged all smiles. The Mayor declined to say anything about the talk with the Chief Executive.

"See the Governor," he said, beaming on the correspondents.

The Governor, when questioned later, said that transit, the McAvoy report and the municipal campaign in the Fall were four topics that the talk had distinctly not touched. In fact, it was said after the "conference," the Governor had spent one-third of the fifteen minutes in the telephone booth answering a long-distance call, five minutes more attending to other matters, and that only five minutes had actually been spent in conversation. During that time the delights of Florida and the Mayor's recent sojourn there had been discussed, to the rigid exclusion of all other topics.

Craig on the Same Train.

Controller Craig came up on the same train that carried the Mayor to Albany. The two New York City officials did not meet either en route or after their arrival at the Capitol, at least not to speak. Controller Craig was not interested in the Mayor's bus bill, having himself sponsored three home rule measures providing for municipal bus operation which were passed by the Municipal Assembly and approved by the Mayor. The Controller believes they are good laws, although the Mayor is not so sure they are and Corporation Counsel Nicholson has said in a formal opinion that they are not. Controller Craig came up to oppose the Nicoll-Robinson Bank Tax bill, which was up for hearing before another committee, and also to see about the proposed constitutional amendment to exempt money up to $278,000,000 from the constitutional debt limit to give New York City a wider margin for expenditures in the development of subways. Mr. Craig had the proposal amended so as to obviate objections by those who believed money obtained under the exemption might be used to recapture existing privately operated subways rather than for the construction of new ones, by limiting the use of funds so realized to the latter purpose. It was announced today that there would be a joint hearing on the proposal in its amended form on Wednesday next week.

"There is a more friendly atmosphere, but no guarantee," said the Controller when questioned regarding the prospects of the proposal going through.

There is no prospect at all of the Mayor's bus bill meeting with legislative favor. The measure is doomed, even though to insure support from up-State it was drafted so as to apply to all cities in the State. Mayor Frank X. Schwab of Buffalo was on hand to advocate the bill, too.

The Mayor in his address, read before the two committees, declared that if the bills pass New York City will have without delay municipal buses, well equipped and swift moving, running on a number of routes laid out by the Transportation Board, under municipal auspices and at a uniform fare of 5 cents. The Mayor said that the only opposition to the bills came from the interests and their henchmen.

Mayor Hylan's Address.

Favorable action is requested upon the bill, Senate Introductory No. 341, Assembly Introductory No. 435 to amend the general city law in relation to the ownership, establishment, construction, acquisition and operation of municipal buses and trackless trolley lines.

Canada Approves Treaty With Us on Border Smuggling

OTTAWA, March 3.—Two treaties between Canada and the United States, the first dealing with smuggling operations and illegal drug traffic along the international border and the second enlarging the list of extraditable crimes, were approved today by the House of Commons.

The treaty designed to suppress smuggling operations also provides for international cooperation in the suppression of the illegal drug traffic. The second compact placed crimes against the narcotics laws in the extraditable list.

The Minister of Customs, Jacques Bureau, intimated that he would ask the House for authority to employ a special squad of officers to enforce the anti-smuggling treaty.

TWO OF THE SINNOTTS INTERESTED IN TAXIS

MAYOR NOT A STOCKHOLDER

The charge that Mayor Hylan was financially interested in the Yellow Taxicab Corporation was made and denied yesterday in the Aldermanic Chamber at City Hall during a public hearing of the Committee on General Welfare, which was considering changes in the taxicab law.

More than a score of independent taxicab owners and representatives of their various associations spoke on the bills, and the Yellow taxicabs were frequently attacked as receiving favors from the City Administration which no other operators could get. These favors, they charged, ranged all the way from having their taximeters inspected in their own garages to enjoying immunity from molestation by the police.

The mentioning of the Mayor's name in connection with the Yellow taxicabs was said to be the first time this has occurred at a public meeting of the kind, though all through the taxicab rate war of last year it was made plain that competitors of the Yellow company believed it was receiving especial consideration at the hands of the City Administration.

Claims Police Gave Aid.

It was brought out yesterday by Michael Donnella, President of the Amalgamated Taxi Owners' Association, following a question from Alderman Francis D. McGarey, who presided, as to what had started the recent rate war.

"I want to go on record now," answered Donnella, "that the police did everything they could to help the Yellow company. That's what started the new rate. They were grinding us down and we had to do something to meet the competition."

"What motive do you suppose the police had?" asked another of the Aldermen.

"Well," replied Donnella, "numerous policemen were transferred who had the temerity to give their men summonses. It is pretty well understood that his Honor is interested in the company."

This reply caused considerable excitement on the part of Chairman McGarey, who said:

"Now let's be fair in this thing. Let's not bring the name of Mayor Hylan in if there is no warrant. What proof have you that the Mayor is interested in the Yellow company?"

Denial From Cab Official.

William D. McGuirk, President of the Yellow Taxicab Corporation, was present and Mr. McGarey asked him for a statement as to whether Mayor Hylan had any connection with the company.

"I shall be happy to give the inside of this," replied Mr. McGuirk, while the hundred or more taximen present strained their ears. "The Mayor of New York City is in no wise interested, which I say as a result of my last examination of our transfer books. These are more or less a public record and open to any one.

"It is a fact that one of his relatives by marriage is an employe of my corporation. It is also a fact that of all our employes 65 per cent. own stock in the corporation."

"In other words," asked a member of the committee, "Mayor Hylan is not financially interested."

A Relative By Marriage.

"It seems ridiculous for me to have to stand here and deny it," answered Mr. McGuirk, "but that is the case."

LEAVES THREE LETTERS

COMPLAINED OF HEADACHES

A Son of Dr. Willard Parker—A High Authority on Municipal Financing.

Morris K. Parker, a Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company and a son of the late Dr. Willard Parker, committed suicide in a room at the University Club some time Monday night, and his body was discovered there yesterday morning.

While lying down or sitting up in bed, clad only in pajamas, he had stabbed himself with a six-inch ice pick. Slowly bleeding to death, he had got up from the bed, but had fallen on the floor on the opposite side of the bed, as if at the last moment he had regretted his act and had tried to walk to the door to call for help. His body was found beside the bed, with the ice pick plunged into his chest, near the heart.

Relatives and friends of Mr. Parker said that the only motive they could ascribe for his suicide was ill health. They said that there was nothing in either his domestic or business relations to have caused him to take his life. He frequently had complained of severe headaches, however, after returning recently from a three months' trip abroad in the interests of his bank. He left two notes to friends saying that suicide was "the only way out."

Away From His Office Monday.

At the time his body was discovered Mr. Parker had been missing since the previous morning at 10 o'clock. He left his home, 156 East Seventy-ninth Street, where he lived with his wife and ten-year-old daughter, ostensibly to go to his office, at 37 Wall Street, but he did not appear there during the day. His movements during the five hours between 10 A. M. and 3 P. M. on Monday are not known.

Mr. Parker appeared at the University Club at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. He carried a heavy briefcase but no bag. Attaches of the club said that he appeared cheerful, with nothing in his countenance or his behavior to indicate that he contemplated suicide. He asked if he could use a room a while. This is a customary practice on the part of club members who wish to dress for dinner or rest without going home. He was assigned to a room on the fourth floor.

About 5 o'clock Monday afternoon Mr. Parker rang for ice water, which was delivered to his room by a valet. That was the last seen of him until his body was discovered.

Meantime Mrs. Parker had become alarmed at her husband's failure to return home for dinner. She notified his friends that he was missing, and they attempted in vain to find him on Monday night. When he had failed to appear yesterday morning H. G. Hathaway, one of his close friends, notified the police of the East Sixty-seventh Street station that Mr. Parker was missing. Hathaway supplied to the police a description of Mr. Parker and his clothing, which was broadcast to all police stations and hospitals.

No Answer to Valet's Knock.

In the club, about the same time Mr. Hathaway had reported Mr. Parker's disappearance to the police, a valet had gone to the room occupied by the missing man, and had rapped on the door. There had been no answer and the valet had walked quietly away, anxious not to disturb the slumber of a guest who had not left a request to be called.

Three hours later the valet went to the room again. This time he knocked loudly and repeatedly. Still no answer. The valet notified the office, which commenced ringing the telephone in Mr. Parker's room. As the bell rang and rang without response, one of the managers of the club decided to open the door with a pass-key. This was done and the body was found.

Two physicians who were in the club were summoned to the room. They pronounced Mr. Parker dead and telephoned to Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, who is a member of the club. Dr. Norris arrived there about 12:30 o'clock.

"I found that he had died from a hemorrhage of the lung, probably about 6 o'clock or a little later on Monday night," said Dr. Norris. "He had

Gen. Pershing Ill at Havana; His Engagements Canceled

HAVANA, March 3 (Associated Press).—The American Embassy announced tonight that General John J. Pershing is ill in his hotel here. All his engagements for tomorrow have been canceled.

The embassy statement reads:

Owing to the indisposition of General Pershing, whose physician has advised him to remain in bed, all engagements for tonight and March 4 have been canceled.

Inquiries at the hotel failed to disclose the nature of General Pershing's illness, although it was stated that he was suffering from the effects of his long trip. His indisposition was declared not to be serious, and the belief was expressed that he would be about again shortly.

$7,500,000 PROJECT NEAR TIMES SQUARE

Hotel and Two Theatres to Be Erected on Eighth Ave. Between 44th and 45th Sts.

WILL ADJOIN THE ASTOR

A hotel and two theatres, representing an investment of $7,500,000, will be erected in the Times Square section as the result of the sale yesterday of an Eighth Avenue block front.

The property involved in the project is a former holding of the William Waldorf Astor estate, being the entire block front on the east side of Eighth Avenue from Forty-fourth to Forty-fifth Street, which the new owners plan to improve with a tall hotel and two theatres.

The Forty-eighth Street Company and the Namaic Realty Company, Inc., representing the estate of Henry Claman, sold the site to the Criterion Holding Company, Inc. Alexander Pfeiffer, President, contracts for the sale of the property having been signed late yesterday. Held by the selling estate for $2,500,000, the realty was transferred in an all-cash deal and brought close to the holding price, according to Herman Arns of the Herman Arns Company, real estate brokers, who negotiated the sale.

In all, the parcel, one of the largest in the section to be held under one ownership, contains approximately 50,000 square feet of ground area. It has a frontage of 200 feet on Eighth Avenue running back easterly on the side streets to a depth of 240 feet on Forty-fourth Street and 250 feet on Forty-fifth Street.

The present improvements consist of twenty-four four and five story tenement houses with stores, known as 700 to 718 Eighth Avenue, and 240 to 257 West Forty-fourth Street and 242 to 256 West Forty-fifth Street.

Passing Of Old Landmarks.

The improvements contemplated by the new owners will result in the passing of some old landmarks, as some of the present tenants have occupied the premises for many years. This particular frontage has experienced few changes in the past twenty years. Construction of two new theatres on the site will bring the number of amusement houses on the block up to six, as the adjoining parcel now contains the Plymouth, Broadhurst, Booth and Shubert theatres. The Hotel Astor occupies the remainder of the entire block.

Tentative plans of the buyers call for the erection of a tall hotel building with stores on the entire Eighth Avenue frontage of the site, a theatre to be constructed on each side street. No announcement as to the probable operators of the hotel and theatres was made.

Herman Arns Company originally sold the property to the late Henry Claman, hotel owner, three years ago, when he acquired it from the William Waldorf Astor Estate. In yesterday's purchase the estate was represented by Eisman, Leo, Corn & Levine and the buyers were represented by Pfeiffer & Cranes.

The sale of the property and its improvement is in keeping with real estate movement in the Eighth Avenue section, which has been booming for several months. One operation that has had a favorable effect on the section is the new Madison Square Garden being erected by "Tex" Rickard on the old car barn site at Eighth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. Four hundred housewreckers began demolishing the old buildings on the site last January to make way for the new project, costing $5,500,000.

The Franklin Savings Bank is building a large annex to its property at Eighth Avenue and Forty-second Street and sites have been purchased in the Eighth Avenue section lately for sixteen and twenty story lofts to accommodate the needle trades in the garment centre.

The Times Square Hotel, formerly known as the Claman Hotel, at the northeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Forty-third Street, was erected a few years ago by the late Henry Claman and was recently sold to Manger Brothers, operators of a large chain of hotels.

Expansion of Theatre District.

The plan to improve the property just purchased by the Criterion Holding Company is typical of the expansion of the theatre and hotel district. Plans were filed last week for a nineteen-story hotel on the whole block front on the east side of Seventh Avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Streets to cost $2,000,000. Manger Brothers will erect and operate the new hotel.

Adjoining it the Bing & Bing syndicate will erect four new theatres, completing the improvements for this half of the old car barn block. Announcement was made recently of plans to build two theatres for Florenz Ziegfeld on the northeast and northwest corners of Sixth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street on property owned by William R. Hearst and Arthur Brisbane.

The Cornish Arms Hotel Company recently bought 311 to 328 West Twenty-third Street, adjoining the Grand Opera House, for improvement with a twelve-story hotel to cost $1,000,000.

MELLON IN ANGER ATTACKS REPORT ON TREASURY BONDS

WASHINGTON, March 3.—In a letter to President Coolidge bristling with indignant denial and counter-accusation, Secretary Mellon replied today to three members of the special House committee—one Republican and two Democrats—who submitted to the House yesterday a report in which they declared that there had been fraudulent duplications of war bonds in the Treasury Department's Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

"I repeat here," said Mr. Mellon, "that there have been no fraudulent duplications or overissues of the public debt, and that the charges are absurd."

The committee, whose majority filed the report, has been investigating charges of duplication of war bonds. The Chairman, Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania, and another Republican member, Representative Strong of Kansas, filed separate reports disagreeing with the majority.

Secretary Mellon's Letter.

Treasury Department.
Office of the Secretary.
March 3, 1925.

My Dear Mr. President:

There has been submitted to Congress a majority report of the special committee appointed under House Resolution 231 (Sixty-eighth Congress, first session) to investigate matters relating to Government bonds. One member of the committee, Representative Strong of Kansas, has filed a minority report expressing complete disagreement with the committee's findings. The Chairman of the committee, Representative McFadden of Pennsylvania, has filed a separate report.

The committee's report, for the most part, is hardly more than a repetition of charges made by Mr. Charles B. Brewer, a special assistant to the Attorney General, in a report to the Attorney General, dated Jan. 15, 1924. Mr. Brewer's charges were, in turn, substantially a repetition of charges made in 1920 by Mr. J. W. McCarter, former Assistant Register of the Treasury under the Democratic Administration. The charges are familiar to you, to members of Congress and to the public generally. I shall not repeat them in this communication. Briefly, they allege that fraud has existed in connection with Government bonds.

When the charges were made by Mr. McCarter, in 1920, Secretary Houston thoroughly investigated them and publicly stated in two letters, dated Sept. 23, 1920, that they were without foundation.

Mr. McCarter again presented his charges in April, 1921, to a member of Congress, by whom they were referred to the Department of Justice. It was at this time that Mr. Charles B. Brewer, a special assistant to the Attorney General, began his activities.

Tells of Brewer's Investigation.

Mr. Brewer devoted nearly three years to an investigation of the McCarter charges, and during that period made several reports to the Department of Justice, which indicated, in substance, that he suspected irregularities, but could not prove them. In these interim reports he usually included an appeal for more time in which to determine the facts.

In October, 1923, after two and a half years had elapsed and Mr. Brewer still claimed his inquiry was incomplete, you designated Mr. Charles G. Washburn, an attorney at law of Worcester, Mass., as your personal representative to consult with Mr. Brewer and to ascertain what facts he had developed.

The situation as disclosed by Mr. Washburn's study of the matter was much the same as in preceding years. Mr. Brewer stated that he had not developed all the facts, and that he desired more time to present his "proof." Mr. Washburn advised you of the situation and Mr. Brewer was

COOLIDGE BUSY ON INAUGURATION EVE; SENATE FILIBUSTER KILLS MORE BILLS; HOUSE, 301 TO 28, CALLS FOR WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, March 3.—It was reported tonight that President Coolidge would attach his signature early tomorrow to the legislative bill, which, among other things, provides that the salaries of members of Congress shall be increased from $7,500 to $10,000 a year.

The disbursing officers of the Senate and the House, proceeding on the belief that the President would give his approval, in issuing warrants for March salaries today, inserted the increased monthly rate of a little more than $833, instead of a little in excess of $633 as heretofore.

There seems to be no doubt in official circles that the President will give his assent to the salary increase as proposed by the legislative bill. Failure of that measure at the end of Congress might force an early extra session. The belief is quite general that if the President intended to veto the bill he would have done so last week, when time would have been afforded Congress to redraft it.

Among the more than 100 bills the President signed today were the Interior Department bill, the Independent Offices bill and the $41,000,000 Rivers and Harbors bill.

EXPECT MITCHELL TO LOSE AIR POST

WEEKS SEES PRESIDENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Coolidge will nominate a successor to Brig. Gen. William Mitchell as chief of the Army Air Service at the special session of the Senate called by him to consider nominations, which will meet tomorrow for the administration of the oath to General Dawes, the Vice President-elect.

The expectation in army circles is that General Mitchell will not be renominated. Secretary Weeks today refused to indicate whether he would recommend that General Mitchell be chosen again. When a newspaper dispatch to the effect that the General would not be reappointed was brought to the attention of the Secretary tonight he said:

"That is merely guesswork. I have not indicated anything as to whom I will recommend for the position."

Secretary Weeks today for the first time took up the case of General Mitchell with the President. Mr. Coolidge recently told callers that he felt the appointment should go to the man recommended by the Secretary of War and that he would approve such a recommendation as Secretary Weeks might make. The belief prevails in army circles that General Mitchell will be transferred to some air field, reverting to his rank of Colonel. His four years' tour of duty in his present position expires March 26.

No recommendation has been made to the President by Secretary Weeks. Indications tonight are that the Secretary will not announce any decision to the President before Thursday morning. The Senate, after administering the oath to the Vice President-elect, is expected to adjourn and transact no business before Thursday.

Committee Ceases to Function.

In testimony taken yesterday at his home and made public today Rear Admiral William F. Fullam, retired, told the House Aircrafts Committee that it "has not gotten down to the beginning" of the controversy over air power and naval preparedness. Representative Perkins of New Jersey visited Admiral Fullam at his apartment yesterday in behalf of the committee and examined him.

Admiral Fullam, who had been kept from visiting the committee room by illness, heartily supported the views of General Mitchell.

There was nothing in his testimony

COOLIDGE WILL KISS BIBLE HE FIRST READ

HIS AGED FATHER ARRIVES

Colonel Is Calm and Silent, but Does Remark that President Was Quiet, Even as a Boy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Coolidge will kiss the Bible at the First Chapter of St. John when he takes the oath of office tomorrow.

The Bible is one that belonged to his grandfather, which, it is said, the President learned to read when between four and five years of age. According to a friend, the Coolidges were accustomed to read the Bible daily, and as a child Mr. Coolidge took to reading it as his first book. It appears that he frequently read it to his grandfather, who died when he was about 5 years of age. The section which he first read was the First Chapter of St. John.

It had been announced that Colonel Coolidge, the President's father, would bring the family Bible containing the births and deaths of the Coolidges, for use in the ceremonies tomorrow. This proved today to be incorrect, and the Bible which is now in the possession of the President is his grandfather's, which his grandmother later gave to the President. It is a book about the size of the Bible-class Oxford edition. It is not the bulky family Bible of tradition.

Taft Calls on President.

Chief Justice Taft called upon the President late this afternoon and chatted with him a long time. He said he congratulated the President on the prospects of pleasant weather in contrast with the blizzard of sixteen years ago when he himself took the oath of office. At that time Washington was cut off from the outside world, all the wire communications being razed by a snow storm.

Colonel Coolidge, who administered the oath to his son under the kerosene lamp in his Vermont home in August, 1923, arrived late this evening to be present at the ceremonies tomorrow. He declined to make any comment on things political and did not seem to be any more aroused over the event than he was when his son established the Summer White House at Plymouth. He displays no more emotion than the President, and is the same, silent stamp of sturdy citizen.

Mrs. Coolidge's mother, Mrs. A. I. Goodhue of Northampton, is another White House guest. Others are Mrs. R. M. Hills of Northampton, Mrs. Laura Skinner of New York; President Olds of Northampton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns and Ralph Hemingway, who was President Coolidge's law partner. The shingle of Coolidge & Hemingway still hangs from a modest office in the Massachusetts town.

There was nothing about the actions or appearance of President Coolidge today that would suggest that he is the least excited about the approach of inauguration day. With his usual calm he went about his business and daily routine in his same unruffled way. To all outward appearances the fact that tomorrow will be the great day of his inauguration seemed to be the last thing in the world he was thinking about. He never mentioned the subject himself, although it was touched upon in some way or another during every audience he had during the day.

The feature of the President's day was the call made upon him by General Charles G. Dawes, Vice President-elect. The latter was received by the President at the White House, and they walked together to the Executive office where they talked for an hour.

Slemp Clears Up His Desk.

Another interesting incident was the return of C. Bascom Slemp, whose resignation as Secretary to the President becomes effective tomorrow, and who for the past three weeks has been resting

5,000 SOLDIERS TO PARADE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Coolidge appears to be in first-rate condition and cheerful spirits for tomorrow's inauguration ceremony. After a busy work day he went tonight with Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs Frank Stearns of Boston and Mrs. Laura Skinner of New York to see the performance of "Aida" at the New Washington Auditorium.

He had worked hard all day with much of his time spent in receiving visitors to the spectacle of tomorrow, in his demeanor he exemplified the slogan of "cool, calm and collected" applied to him by his supporters in last year's Presidential campaign. He was undisturbed by the evidence of bustle about him, for even this quietest of inauguration has a bit of activity in it. The curious situation is presented on the eve of an inauguration that neither Senate nor House is in session tonight. The Sixty-eighth Congress will come to an end at noon tomorrow and nearly always in times past the closing night of Congress has been devoted to a hectic effort to enact important legislation.

But while there are things yet to do, the Senate and House practically finished their work this evening and each took a recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, which will leave less than two hours for legislative and executive business prior to the beginning of the inauguration ceremonies.

Filibuster Halts the Senate.

This decision to take a recess was construed as an admission on the part of Administration supporters that no hope remained of passing any other measures than the annual deficiency appropriation bill and the naval omnibus bill, to both of which the finishing touches will be put at the brief session tomorrow forenoon.

As far as the Senate was concerned this course was dictated by an unexpected flare-up of the filibuster spirit directed in part to Democratic objection to the action of the House in amending the deficiency bill by providing for an appropriation of $150,000,000 for the construction of public buildings throughout the country.

The Democratic filibuster was augmented by an effort on the part of the mid-West Republican Senators to authorize the establishment of a Government-controlled export grain corporation. Time-consuming speeches were delivered, and in the end the Republican leaders, seeing there was no hope for accomplishing anything this evening, decided that an overnight recess would be best for all concerned.

The House signalized the day by passing, 301 to 28, a resolution declaring for entry into the World Court, as the President had urged.

But for the most part the two Houses did nothing to cheer the spirit of the quiet man in the White House. No word came from the President, however, to indicate that he was perturbed over this state of affairs. He showed no signs of excitement or irritability and to all appearances looked forward to tomorrow's big event in his life as a mere part of the day's work.

All Ready for Inauguration.

All details of the inauguration, the countless and complicated arrangements, had been worked out satisfactorily tonight and the city, fearful earlier that this might prove tame in comparison with other inaugurations, had crowded up during the day, with additional tens of thousands expected by automobile tomorrow.

Estimates of the number of persons who arrived here in the rush of the day varied anywhere from 25,000 to 50,000 and arrangements, so far as seats in the reviewing stands went, were for a crowd of 65,000. The hotels were well crowded and the streets were gay. All of the nineteen Governors or their representatives who are to participate in the ceremonies had arrived at their respective hotels and the first of the inauguration entertainments got under way.

As the city began to hustle with the arriving visitors fears that tomorrow might prove like today—windy and cold—or that the early prediction of rain by the weather man be fulfilled, passed with the prediction that the day would be warmer and clear. This news to the thousands who are to stand back of the railings in Pennsylvania Avenue to witness the parade added to the general cheerfulness.

Final selection of the units who are to have the honor of participating in the parade was made and announcement made that about 5,000 soldiers, sailors and marines would swing past the reviewing stand of the President, passing

ATHENS, March 3.—M. Stais, a former Minister of Education, and Dr. Photinos went boar shooting last week on the northern slopes of Mt. Olympus. When they were near Ekaterini with their beaters and the head of the village they fell in with a band of brigands, led by Pantoes Babanis, who captured the headman and ordered him to lead them to the shooting party. Their appearance caused a panic among the guides and beaters.

M. Stais was shot through the leg, but Dr. Photinos escaped up a spreading pine tree, where he hid for three hours while the brigands vainly searched for him. Another member of the party, Dr. Dzamalukas, was carried off by Babanis, who gave his visiting card to M. Stais, deploring the injury to him and explained that it had been his intention merely to demand a ransom of 500,000 drachmas for Dr. Photinos.

After escaping to Ekaterini, M. Stais sent his check for 200,000 drachmas (about $3,000) as a ransom for Dr. Dzamalukas, who since has been released.

Colonel Kondylis, Minister of the Interior, has now arrived on the scene with a number of troops and gendarmes, calling upon the population to assist the authorities in chasing the brigands, under pain of deportation if they are suspected of aiding and abetting Babanis, and to suffer death if they are found guilty thereof.

A strong cavalry column has arrived at Elassona to assist Kondylis.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—Mrs. Jean De St. Cyr, society leader, mother of the Princess Miguel de Braganza of Portugal and of William Rhinelander Stewart Jr., of New York, died at her home in San Mateo, near here, late tonight, after a six months' illness.

Mrs. De St. Cyr was the wife of the late J. H. ("Silent") Smith, an Eastern capitalist. The Princess De Braganza and Mr. Stewart were at the St. Cyr home when Mrs. De St. Cyr died.

Mrs. Jean St. Cyr had been married three times. She was Annie Armstrong, the daughter of Gen. John A. Armstrong of Baltimore, and her first husband was William Rhinelander Stewart. Their marriage in the Spring of 1879 was one of the leading events of the social season of Baltimore that year.

Her second husband was James Henry Smith, known as "Silent Jim" Smith and "The Man of Mystery," heir to a fortune from his uncle who had amassed it in Western railroads. They were married in 1906 after she had divorced her first husband. Mr. Smith died in Tokio in 1907 and left $3,000,000 to his widow.

In 1915 she married Jean St. Cyr, who was said to be a member of an ancient French family. St. Cyr was a social mystery, like her previous husband. At the time of the wedding, when a report was circulated that he was Jack Thompson, a former bellboy, and that he had caused himself to be known as a Frenchman to further his plans for entering into society, it was indignantly denied. He was much younger than Mrs. Smith.

LINCOLN MOTOR CARS.

is about an hour. At other inaugurations the military parade has sometimes lasted until nightfall, but the one this year probably will disband by 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The President and General Charles G. Dawes, Vice President-elect, will enter the official picture at about 11 o'clock when they will drive from the White House to the Senate chamber. After the ceremonies there they will leave by the east entrance and the inauguration will be held. Directly after the administration of the oath the President will reach his inaugural address. It is expected that this will take about thirty minutes.

By virtue of elaborate broadcasting hook-ups it is expected that the address will be available to 20,000,000 persons. The broadcasting from specially installed apparatus right at the scene of the ceremony will start at 11 A. M. and as nearly as it can be figured tonight, the President will go on the air at about 12:30 o'clock.

Following his address the President and his party will return to the White House for luncheon. They will then enter the glass-enclosed reviewing kiosk, immediately in front of the White House, and witness the parade, scheduled to start at about 1 o'clock.

While the special trains bearing visitors were pouring their contributions into the Union Station today, while committees were rushing here and there untangling snarls and fixing things up, while the streets were taking on a more animated aspect, the chief figure in all the Presidents, calmly awaited the event. There were a few moments during his regular talk with the newspaper correspondents when the emotion masked by his calmness seemed to venture forth, but that was merely transient.

On the last day of his present term the President had only three items on his program. He had an hour's conference with General Dawes. He witnessed the finish of a marathon race promoted by a Washington newspaper and tonight he and Mrs. Coolidge occupied a box at the performance of "Aida" at the Washington Auditorium. The Cabinet meeting this morning, which preceded his newspaper talk, was memorable in that it was the last which will be attended by Secretary of State Hughes.

Aside from these engagements the President devoted himself to the routine of his office, occasionally being consulted by the committee heads as the arrangements for tomorrow's events were completed. At the President's request his escort at the ceremonies will include a number of Civil War veterans, who through an oversight, had been omitted from posts of honor until today, although special places had been assigned to them in the reviewing stands.

Arrangements Are Announced.

Working steadily through the day the committee in charge of the ceremonies, the joint Congressional Committee headed by Senator Curtis, announced step by step the procedure, from the time the President leaves the White House until he returns there formally invested with the mandate of the people.

"The President and Vice President," the committee announced, "upon arrival at the Capitol at 11 o'clock will be met by the Committee on Arrangements and the President escorted to his room and the Vice President-elect to the Vice President's room.

"The Senators will occupy seats on the east side of the chamber. The President pro tempore of the Senate will assume the chair. The House of Representatives headed by the Speaker, will enter the chamber by the south door, be announced and seated on the west side. The members of the President's Cabinet will enter the chamber by the south door, be announced and seated on the west side.

"The Chief of Staff of the Army, the Chief of Naval Operations and the Commandant of the Marine Corps, accompanied by their aids, will enter the chamber by the south door, be announced separately and seated on the east side.

"The Supreme Court will enter the chamber by the south door, be announced and seated on the east side. The Vice President-elect, escorted by the Committee on Arrangements, will enter the chamber by the south door, be announced and seated on the left of the President pro tempore. The President, escorted by the Committee on Arrangements, will enter the chamber by the south door, be announced and seated in front of the Clerk's desk.

"The President pro tempore will administer the oath of office to the Vice President-elect. Then will follow the address of the President pro tempore, concluding with his declaring the Senate adjourned sine die. The Vice President will assume the Chair, followed by prayer by the Chaplain, the Vice President's address and the reading of the proclamation of the President calling the Senate in extraordinary session. The oaths of office to the Senators-elect will be administered by the Vice President.

Press Gallery Will Be Vacated.

"While the oaths are being administered the occupants of the Press Gallery will leave their gallery and be escorted down the West steps by the Chapultepec painting to their seats on the inauguration platform on the East front. The doors of all the other galleries will be locked. At the conclusion of the ceremonies in the Senate chamber the President will be escorted from the chamber by the South door, by the Committee on Arrangements, followed by the Cabinet to the President's room.

"The Supreme Court will be escorted from the chamber by the South door to their robing room. The diplomatic corps will be escorted from the chamber by the West lobby door to the marble room. The Chief of Staff of the army, the chief of naval operations and the commandant of the marine corps, and their aides, will be escorted from the chamber by the East lobby to the marble room. The Senate, headed by the President pro-tempore, and the Secretary of the Senate will proceed to the inauguration platform on the East front and be seated on the left of the President's stand.

"The Senate will be followed by the House of Representatives which will be seated beginning with the seats on the right of the President's stand. The House of Representatives will be followed by the Governors of States and other distinguished guests from the floor. While the Senate is leaving the chambers, the doors of the galleries will be opened and the occupants escorted to that portion of the inauguration stand below and directly in front of the President's stand.

"When the occupants of the Senate floor and galleries are seated on the platform, the Committee on Arrangements headed by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate and the House of Representatives will escort the President, the Vice President and the Cabinet from the President's room around the west and south sides of the Senate chamber and through the rotunda to the inauguration platform.

"When the President's party reaches the south door of the Senate chamber the members of the Supreme Court, headed by their Marshal and Clerk, will form in line and lead the procession.

Oath Will Then Be Administered.

"The President's party will be followed from the south door of the Senate chamber by the diplomatic corps and army, navy and marine officers, who will have been escorted from the marble room around the east and south sides of the Senate chamber. On arriving at the platform, the Chief Justice will administer the oath of office to the President, who will then deliver his inaugural address.

"At the conclusion of his inaugural address the President will be escorted from the platform to his automobile, which will proceed around the south end of the platform and across the east front of the Capitol, accompanied by a military escort to the White House. After the President has left the Capitol the inaugural parade will be formed southeast of the Capitol, pass across the east front in front of the inaugural platform to B Street North and to the White House, where it will be reviewed by the President."

Long before the time, however, according to the schedules announced by Major General John L. Hines, Grand Marshal of the parade, the units will be at posts ready to file into line. All but two of the detachments, comprising in all 4,200 men, were in the city tonight.

Some of them hiked from the posts across the Potomac while others, coming from greater distance, arrived in special trains. The detachments which are due to come tomorrow morning about dawn are representatives from the Engineer's post at Camp Humphries, Va., and infantrymen from Camp Meade, Md.

The parade will pass over an involved route along the entire length of which stands or barricades will be in place for the spectators. The line of march, as disclosed tonight will be north across Capitol Plaza, entering B Street at North Capitol Street, west on B Street to First Street N. W., south First Street to Pennsylvania Avenue, west on Pennsylvania Avenue to Fifteenth Street, north again to Pennsylvania Avenue, west to Seventeenth Street and there disbanding.

All of the troops in the procession will be drawn from the Washington military area. The regular army contingent forming the First Division will be led by Major Gen. Malin Craig, with Colonel H. J. Hawkins of the Third Cavalry, directly ahead of the marching troops.

Negro Troops to March.

In line will be the Third Battalion of the Twelfth Infantry, the Engineers' Band, a battalion of Engineers led by Major J. F. Conklin, the Fifty-eighth Air Service Squadron, three platoons of negro infantrymen from the Service Detachment of the Washington Area Headquarters, the Third Cavalry Band and three platoons of negro cavalry from Fort Myer.

A contingent of civilians will follow the Marines from Quantico which, with the sailors, will number about 2,000. The Governors of the States will bring up the rear of the parade.

Plans for the broadcasting of the ceremonies call for a hook-up described as the most extensive yet tried. The elaborate working out of the scheme was in the hands of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company and the Radio Corporation of America. Station WEAF in New York City will be the key station of the broadcast, and the experts think that by rebroadcasting the words spoken here will be heard by virtually the entire nation.

Six microphones will be in place on the inaugural platform, two to be used by WEAF, two by WRC and two for the loud speaker connections which will carry the speakers' words to all parts of the crowd reaching out from the platform. Announcers will go on the air at 10:45 A. M. for a general description of the scene, and at 11 o'clock the United States Marine Band will render selections. The President's address is expected, barring unforeseen delays, at 12:30 o'clock.

All of the ceremonies will be thoroughly policed, but this year outside aid will not be enlisted. In other years detectives from virtually every city in the East were sent in to be on the watch for the pickpockets who usually flock here in great numbers. Owing, however, to the belief that this year's crowd will not be great enough to overtax the Washington department, only the local plain clothes men will mingle with the crowds. Scores of them were on duty in the Union Station during the day, scanning the thousands entering the city. The detectives, however, found their work consist chiefly of acting as guides to the visitors, and often found all taxicabs out on trips. About 1,000 of the cabs have been imported from near-by cities to take care of tomorrow's business.

At all of the larger hotels, such as the new Mayflower, the New Willard, the Washington, the Raleigh and the Shoreham, visitors who arrived without having had the foresight to reserve accommodations were disappointed, especially late in the day when the room supply began to give out. Accommodations, however, were found for the late comers in outlying hotels.

Most of the visitors as soon as they arrived set out to inspect the stands erected along Pennsylvania Avenue. They found the wooden platforms completed to the point where only such finishing touches as decorations remain to be done tomorrow morning. The stands opposite the White House have been painted in buff and blue, the inaugural colors, and they are festooned with greenery. Four rows of chairs have been placed in the front part of the stands and back of these, rising upward four feet, are several rows of benches.

The stand where the President will witness the passing of the marchers is about the size of a New York subway kiosk and is painted white. Twelve windows give a view from all sides. The ceiling of the stand has been draped with yellow bunting, and arrangements have been made to heat the kiosk electrically if today's weather tricks the forecaster by turning cold.

According to those in charge of the Charity Ball to be held tomorrow night at the Mayflower Hotel, thousands have purchased tickets. The proceeds will go to a couple are to go to several Washington hospitals. The President and Mrs. Coolidge won't attend the ball.

HONORS PAID TO MRS. ROSS.

Wyoming Governor Attracts Attention Among Washington Visitors.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Governor Nellie T. Ross of Wyoming, the first woman Governor to attend the inauguration of a President, arrived here this morning, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. George Taylor. Young and attractive, Mrs. Ross received an ovation when she was escorted through the Union Station by members of the local reception committee. Governor Ross and her sister will be the guests of Mrs. John B. Kendrick, wife of the junior Senator from Wyoming, during their stay in Washington.

Early in the afternoon Governor Ross visited the Capitol and was escorted to the floor of the Senate by Senators Warren and Kendrick of Wyoming. Her appearance caused much interest among the Senators and the crowds of spectators in the galleries.

Mrs. Ross declined to grant an interview on the ground that she could have nothing to say of particular interest to the people of Washington and the East. She said that she considered it an honor to be the first woman Governor received in Washington, and made light of the cold, saying it reminded her of her native land, Wyoming.

Mrs. Ross was elected Governor to fill the unexpired part of the term of her husband, who died last year. Wyoming was the first State in the Union to grant full suffrage to women, who have voted there since its admission to Statehood in 1889, and it has been generally considered appropriate that this State should be among the first to elect a woman Governor. Mrs. Ross, however, ascribed her election to the knowledge of the voters of Wyoming of her understanding of her husband's official responsibilities and their desire to have the complete his official tasks.

Governor Ross is a Democrat. She will be entertained before her departure by the National Women's Democratic Club.

GOOD-WILL FROM GERMANY.

BERLIN, March 3 (Associated Press).—Dr. Hans Luther, acting President of the German Republic, sent the following dispatch to President Coolidge at Washington today:

"Mr. President: In the name of the Government of the Reich and of the German people, I beg to extend sincerest congratulations on the occasion of your inauguration and to add my best wishes for the welfare of the American people."

24 RADIO STATIONS TO SEND INAUGURAL

The inauguration of President Coolidge will be broadcast today by twenty-four radiophone stations scattered across the country. The General Electric Company has installed an induction type loudspeaker four feet in diameter in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania so that visitors to the fifth annual radio amateurs' show will be in tune with the ceremonies at the Capitol.

Broadcasting of the inaugural program in New York will be done by station WJZ of the Radio Corporation of America, on top of Aeolian Hall, and WEAF, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's station, 195 Broadway.

WEAF's announcer will go on the air at 11 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, describing the sidelights as seen from his position on the platform in front of the Capitol. He will then introduce the United States Marine Band, which will play until about 12:25 o'clock. The other stations linked with WEAF will not start broadcasting until 12 o'clock. WJZ, WRC and WGY will go on the air at 11:30 A. M.

The inauguration of General Charles G. Dawes as Vice President will not be radiated because of a restriction which prohibits the running of wires into the Senate Chamber.

DAWES SEES CHIEF, POSES WITH PIPE

BADINAGE FOR SHIPSTEAD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—General Charles G. Dawes, who will be inaugurated as Vice President tomorrow, passed his last day as a private citizen for the next four years in characteristic, energetic fashion.

Smoking a new pipe of the "understung" type, which he has made famous, and disdaining to use an automobile, General Dawes devoted most of the morning to a round of calls. Walking briskly in the cold air, the General first visited President Coolidge at the White House and then called on Secretary Hughes and Secretary Weeks. Between visits he posed for photographers, made some remarks on good citizenship to a delegation from Wisconsin and gave a demonstration of his excellent memory by recognizing a negro messenger whom he had known as a White House footman during the Administration of President McKinley.

During the rest of the day General Dawes received a steady stream of callers in his apartment at the New Willard Hotel. He did not attend the performance of "Aida," which marked the beginning of the inaugural entertainment program, because of previous arrangements for a family dinner at which Owen D. Young, a fellow member of the Reparations Commission, was the only guest outside the immediate Dawes party.

General Dawes left the hotel at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and walked directly to the White House for his call on President Coolidge. He talked with the President for half an hour. It was the customary meeting between the two incoming Administration chiefs just in advance of their inauguration.

Banters Senator Shipstead.

True to his promise not to talk politics in advance of his induction into office, General Dawes had nothing to say to a group of newspaper correspondents at the White House after his call on the President. He engaged in repartee with Senator Walter E. Edge, Republican, of New Jersey, and Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, whom he met there. General Dawes declined Senator Edge's invitation to visit the Senate later in the day. He told the Senator that he expected his visits to the Senate to be all too common after tomorrow.

Good-natured badinage over the spirit of the Middle West was said to have formed the subject of conversation between General Dawes and Senator Shipstead. General Dawes was said to have told Senator Shipstead that he had had difficulty in "getting off his feet" during his early days in Nebraska in a period of hard times, but that his economic views were then the same as they are now.

At the request of a group of newspaper photographers, General Dawes posed in front of the White House for several pictures. During the picture taking he took off his gray felt hat and puffed energetically at his pipe, asked by a reporter if the pipe he was lighting was a new one, he replied:

On his way to the State Department General Dawes was halted by two brothers whom he had known many years ago. They were Representative Walter P. Lineberger of California and Paul Myron Lineberger.

The White House photographers ran over and snapped more pictures of General Dawes and the Lineberger brothers. General Dawes viewed the proceedings humorously. He snatched the hat from the head of one of the brothers and remarked:

"Believe you are balder than I am."

At the State Department building General Dawes paid his respects to Secretary Hughes just before the latter left to attend the Cabinet meeting. He then walked to the War Department building and called on Secretary Weeks.

Calls on War Associate.

While passing through this building General Dawes showed his remarkable memory for names and faces. As he turned a corner in a corridor he encountered a negro messenger whom he had not seen for years, and greeted him by his first name. The man was Charles A. Reeder, whom General Dawes had known as a White House footman during the Administration of President McKinley when he was Controller of the Currency.

While in the War Department building General Dawes renewed an association formed during the days of the American Expeditionary Forces in France by calling upon Lieutenant Col. T. J. Hoffman of the Reserve Corps, who is getting out the final report of the Military Board of Allied Supply, on which General Dawes did brilliant work during the war. The General still is a member of this board, which will continue its existence until its final report is made.

On leaving the War Department building General Dawes was greeted by a delegation from Wisconsin. He stopped and made a few remarks on good citizenship.

"Good citizenship," he declared, "that's all we need."

"We deported Senator La Follette and sent him down to Florida," shouted one of the Wisconsin delegation.

Returning to the Treasury Department, where he visited Secretary Mellon yesterday, General Dawes called on J. W. Mollstoad, the new Controller of the Currency and met there his brother, Henry M. Dawes, who was Colonel McIntosh's predecessor.

He then returned to his apartment in the New Willard and received a large number of callers, who kept him busy all of the afternoon and most of the evening.

A larger number of relatives will witness the inauguration of General Dawes tomorrow than has been the case with any President or Vice President in recent years. In addition to Mrs. Dawes, his children, Dana and Virginia, and his daughter, Mrs. Nelson B. Ericson and her husband, three brothers of General Dawes and their families will see the ceremony. They are Rufus G. Dawes of Evanston, Ill., and Beman G. Dawes and Henry M. Dawes of Columbus, Ohio. Other relations who are here for the inauguration are his sister, Mrs. Harry B. Hoyt of Jacksonville, Fla., and his uncle, Dr. William Millis, President of Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio.

The ceremonies will begin tomorrow when the Senate committee calls at the New Willard Hotel for General Dawes to accompany him to the White House. The General will be escorted to the White House by a troop of cavalry in command of Captain J. R. Kinley. Mrs. Dawes will ride in the automobile with him, and others of his family will follow in other cars.

At the White House General and Mrs. Dawes will be met by the President and Mrs. Coolidge. The General then will follow President Coolidge in the procession to the Capitol, where he will take the oath of office in the Senate chamber just before the inauguration of the President.

MARIETTA, Ohio, March 3.—Marietta, birthplace of Charles G. Dawes, will present him with a gavel, fashioned like the Dawes pipe and made from the piano stool on which General Dawes as a boy practiced long hours at the piano.

The gavel, made on order of Marietta Post 64 of the American Legion, has a gold plate on each end with two inscriptions, one "Made from a piano stool used by C. G. D. as a boy," and the other, "To Legionnaire Charles G. Dawes, Vice President of the U. S., March 4, 1925, Marietta Post Number 64, American Legion, Marietta, Ohio."

A large Legion badge is fastened to one end of the gavel. The handle is black, like the pipe stem, while the bowl has been colored like the pipe.

MR. GLOOM FINDS REPUBLICANS SAD

IMPRESSED BY "MILITARY"

He Admires All the Colonels, Sent by Delaware as an Escort for Its Governor.

By ELMER DAVIS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Quite the least cheerless person in Washington this evening is Godfrey G. Gloom, the old-fashioned Jeffersonian Democrat, who was discovered by a TIMES reporter in front of the White House gazing on the temporary grand stand with a smile of satisfaction.

"Why so merry, Mr. Gloom?" asked the reporter. "Surely this occasion is nothing for a Democrat to be happy about."

"Well," said Mr. Gloom, "it certainly has evoked no enthusiasm on the part of Republicans. I don't know just why they're all so depressed about it, but, thinks I, if it's as bad as this I'm blame glad Providence preserved us Democrats from the consequences of our folly last year. Here we spent a lot of wind and effort tryin' to win the election, and now it seems this prize we strove for so earnestly brings only sadness to them as got it. I ain't seen Mr. Coolidge, but if there's a happy face in Washington outside the White House its owner has kept it hid.

"Never in history has the sacred duty of keepin' cool with Coolidge been so easy as it is tonight, and it ain't all the fault of the weather, either. This cold wave would have put quite a chill on most inaugurations, but this time it's entirely in keepin' with the general atmosphere. Of course it's only fair to say that the depression I encounter everywhere ain't confined to Republicans. These voteless Washington store keepers are feelin' pretty sad, too. It appears they had a thin enough crowd four years ago, but this time it's worse, both in quantity and quality.

"After all, Mr. Harding's friends at least had money. Some of 'em didn't have as much money on Inauguration day as they had after the Administration had been goin' on for a year or two, but generally speakin' they were pretty well fixed. They may not have bought anything in Washington, but at least they looked as if they might buy something at any moment, and thus kept the local trades persons somewhat cheered up.

Thinks Parade an Error.

"But this year's crowd don't look as if it's got much purchasing power, aside from some few plutocratic persons who've got everything already and ain't likely to leave any money in town. I can see why Washington is depressed, but I don't see why the statesmen that are managin' this ceremony insist on makin' a bad matter worse by havin' a big parade. Four years ago, remember, they had practically no parade at all, so whoever was in town could at least swell the crowd on the curbstone. This year they're goin' to make it all into like Democrats and all, and let everybody see just how thin the turnout really is. I believe it's a fact that more than half the people in town so far are members of the Harding family. I don't know what lengths of jubilation them people would go if their distinguished kinsman was elected to some really good job."

"Then you think this is a depressing event?" the reporter asked.

"I didn't say I thought so," Mr. Gloom corrected. "I said the Republicans seem to think so. Why they think that is for them to say, not me; I only tell you what I see. Now, when I was out and around As Usual myself I'm patriotic enough always to get a thrill out of one of these great national ceremonies of the American people. What more inspirin' example can there be than Mr. Coolidge has given us during the year from the lowest depths? I hear they've got out a new biography of him—From the Vice Presidency to the White House. I remember that ceremony down here four years ago, when Mr. Harding invited us all to a new benediction of understanding. If you'd gone around and asked all present who they thought was goin' to be the central figure of the next inauguration, the last person in the United States anybody would have thought of would have been Vice President Coolidge. Yet here he is, thus provin' that the United States is the land of opportunity.

"Have you been here long?" the reporter asked.

"No," said Mr. Gloom, "I came down on the afternoon train with the military."

"What military?" the reporter inquired. "The Third Cavalry is in garrison here and the rest of the troops have already arrived."

"What I speak of the operative or workin' military," said Mr. Gloom impatiently. "I refer to the speculative military of Delaware, headed by Brig. Gen. T. Coleman du Pont, just back from his annual conquest of the east coast of Florida. There's a General for you. He's bigger than Marshal Foch and Napoleon put together, and he certainly makes a fine figure stridin' up and down the aisle of a Pullman car in full uniform. What's more, he had a whole regiment of Colonels with him. They all had their uniforms on so nobody'd mistake them for civilians.

Expects Them to Show Coolidge Up.

"That's where the Governor of Delaware is goin' to show Coolidge up. Coolidge will be escorted by a lot of privates but nobody less than a Colonel can march along behind the Governor of Delaware. Seems there's more Colonels in Delaware than there is privates in the Third Cavalry, at that. So I hear the Legislature up there has been in a deadlock all Winter, one house holdin' out against the other and both against the Governor, and just when they were despairin' of ever bein' able to agree on anything some bright peacemaker proposed that they appropriate some State money to bring the whole Legislature down here for the inauguration and put 'em up at a good hotel. And in an instant peace and harmony were restored. But, look here, says the Governor, 'what about our economy program?' So they stuck on a little more money and voted to bring him and his Colonels down here, too, to show there was no hard feelin'. I understand Delaware's been seethin' with brotherly love since then, just like Congress after they passed the pill votin' themselves a raise in salary.

"But how do you happen to be coming to Washington through Delaware?" asked the reporter. "Isn't your residence still in Indiana?"

"How do you like the East?" the reporter asked.

"Oh, it's got its good points, but for one who spent last Winter in California, as I did, it seems lackin' in reticence. Here they had an earthquake in New York last week, and the papers come out with headlines that spread half way across the front page. They never do that in California; they know that there's some subjects that are not mentioned in polite society."

"Did you feel the shock?" the reporter inquired.

Mr. Gloom shook his head.

"My granddaughter lives right uptown in the earthquake zone," he admitted, "but the shock made no great impression on us. I do remember hearin' a heavy thud along about that time of the evening, but I thought it was only another Presbyterian comin' down with a contribution to the Episcopal Cathedral. I was where there was four women died of fright up in Canada, though. Lord bless you, they know better than that out in California! They only die of fright when the earthquakes get into the Eastern papers."

BOY MISSES INAUGURATION.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 3.—Instead of realizing his life's ambition of marching in the inauguration parade tomorrow at Washington, fourteen-year-old Lieut. Commander Edwin Lewis of the Junior Naval Reserves of Brooklyn, N. Y., will spend the day at his home. His disappointment is all due to the fact that his "transportation expense money" became exhausted, leaving him stranded at Union Station.

Agents of the Travelers' Aid Society took the boy in custody late yesterday when he appealed to them for aid. Today his brother arrived from Brooklyn and took him back home.

"If you want to see an unlucky fellow take a look at me," said Edwin, with tears rolling down his cheeks. "Here I am, a Lieutenant Commander, kept from marching with the sailors and soldiers tomorrow because I did not have the price to pay my expenses to Washington."

A month ago Edwin, who is a pupil at a Brooklyn public school, won a $10 prize offered by a Brooklyn newspaper for the best schoolboy essay on capital punishment. The money, he said, was put in the bank to defray his expenses to Washington.

LOWMAN REACHES CAPITAL.

Mrs. Knapp Is in Lieutenant Governor's Party at Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Lieut. Gov. Seymour Lowman of New York, with Mrs. Lowman, arrived in Washington tonight to represent the Empire State at the inauguration. They were accompanied by a military staff and several State officials.

The party's arrival was met by a committee representing the Inaugural Committee, composed of Gail H. Stalker, Chairman; Joseph S. Parker, John F. Carew, George Lynch and Miss Mary M. Block. Mr. Lynch is President of the New York Society of Washington.

Included in the Lieutenant Governor's party were his daughter, Caroline; Mrs. Florence Knapp, Secretary of State; Mr. Mitchell, his Secretary; Colonel Weston Myers, Major R. J. Bethel, Major Wheeler and Major David B. Lawyer, military secretary to Governor Smith, who was unable to come for the ceremonies.

Following the ceremonies tomorrow, the Lieutenant Governor and his aids will be received by President Coolidge at the White House. Mr. Lowman will be the guest of Senator Wadsworth at luncheon at the Capitol, and tomorrow night will attend the charity inaugural ball at the Mayflower Hotel.

HOUSE BY 301 TO 28 URGES WORLD COURT

BURTON SPEAKS FOR IT

Position Is Taken That House Has Right to Voice Its Views on Subject.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Adherence to the protocol establishing the World Court was approved by 301 to 28 in the House this afternoon. The House took the position that, as participation in the League would involve an appropriation, it was within its rights in passing the resolution, since measures involving appropriations must originate in the House.

Although it could not be confirmed, a rumor persisted about the Capitol that President Coolidge would ask the Senate at its short session tomorrow to pass the resolution which the House sanctioned this afternoon.

The resolution adopted by this decisive vote came from the Foreign Affairs Committee and was the outcome of suggestions of like character made by Representative Moore, Democrat, of Virginia, in April, 1924, and by Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, in January of this year.

The resolution reads as follows:

Whereas a World Court, known as the Permanent Court of International Justice, has been established and is now functioning at The Hague, and,

Whereas the traditional policy of the United States has earnestly favored the avoidance of war and the settlement of international controversies by arbitration or judicial processes, and,

Whereas this court in its organization and probable development promises to be helpful in such controversies between nations will be settled in an orderly way according to principles of right and justice, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives desires to express its cordial approval of the said Court and an earnest desire that the United States give early adherence to the protocol establishing the same, with the reservations recommended by President Harding and President Coolidge.

Resolved, Further, that the House expresses its readiness to participate in the enactment of such legislation as will necessarily follow such approval.

Speaking for the resolution, Representative Burton, Republican, of Ohio, one of the outstanding advocates of American participation in the World Court, subject to the reservations laid down by the two Presidents, said that the proposal had been heartily endorsed by the American Bar Association, the Federal Council of Churches, individual churches and clergymen almost without number, men and women's clubs in every State, and American Legion posts.

"It is very natural that this should be true, because if there is any one traditional policy of our own United States it is to seek an amicable settlement of controversies between nations," he stated.

"One hundred years ago Mr. Ladd of the American Peace Society advocated such a court in England and America. Elihu Burritt, the learned blacksmith, followed along the same line. When The Hague Conference convened in 1899 Secretary Hay instructed our delegates to favor such a court. On the reconvening of the conference in 1907 Secretary Root, then our Secretary of State, gave express instructions to our delegates to do all in their power to promote the establishment of such a tribunal. It has been endorsed by Presidents and in political conventions and I repeat it now has the overwhelming endorsement of the American people.

"The World Court transcended all other possibilities for preserving peace," Mr. Burton asserted.

Outlines Need of Reservations.

Representative Murphy, Republican, of Ohio, asked if the Court comes in any way under the present League of Nations. Mr. Burton replied:

"Of course it is associated with it. The provisions for expense comes from the League. It is detached from the League, which is a political body, as any judicial body would be. Of course, there are several reservations upon which we should insist, namely, that it does not involve us in any of the disputes of the League; that we shall have our part in the selection of Judges. We would also have to pay our share of the expenses, also we would be entitled to withdraw if the Constitution of the League is changed.

"If we adhere," continued Representative Burton, "certain action must be taken by way of appropriation, and it is for us, at least in that regard, to express our opinion."

Non-partisan support was given on the floor to Mr. Burton by Representatives Moore of Virginia, Conally of Texas, Linthicum of Maryland and Byrnes of South Carolina, Democrats, and Representatives Green of Iowa and Walsh of New York, Republicans.

The resolution was first adopted by a viva voce vote, but the House took so little interest in the matter that Mr. Burton asked for a rising vote, to show how the members felt. This vote resulted in 149 to 10 for the resolution. Mr. Garrett, the Democratic leader, then demanded a roll call, evidently in an attempt to show who would stand out against a policy of American entrance into European affairs, first suggested by the Wilson Administration.

On this roll call, the men voting against the adoption of the resolution were:

NOT IN INAUGURATION, DAVIS TELLS COURT

WASHINGTON, March 3.—John W. Davis took up in the Supreme Court today the practice of the law he dropped last Summer when he became the Democratic Presidential candidate.

Appearing as counsel for the Cement Manufacturers' Protective Association, he declared the Government's charges scarcely brought to issue the question how far manufacturers or producers could go through an association in the exchange of trade information.

After proceeding briefly with his argument, he remarked that it would be out in half by the Court's adjournment.

Chief Justice Taft, himself a former President, pointed out to the recent candidate that the Court would not hear argument tomorrow.

Mr. Davis, alluding to President Coolidge's inauguration, recalled that, of course, this would not be possible because of certain "ceremonies in which I shall not be called upon to participate."

in Florida. Mr. Slemp occupied his old desk, in the room adjoining the President's, and with the assistance of Edward T. Clark, personal Secretary to the President, disposed of an accumulation of routine business. Mr. Slemp was the recipient of an impressive ovation by the attachés and others about the White House when he arrived at the office, and later had a long chat with Mr. Coolidge.

There was more than ordinary significance attached to the Cabinet meeting held at the White House today. It was the last gathering of the Cabinet of this Administration and naturally was the last one attended by Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of Agriculture Gore, both of whom step out of the Presidential official family tomorrow, the former to practice law and the latter to become Governor of West Virginia. The session is understood to have been devoted principally to a farewell party for these two officers, and when the meeting had come to an end and the Cabinet members were leaving the White House the deep feelings of Secretaries Hughes and Gore were plainly visible.

Crowds of the inauguration visitors swarmed to the White House and the executive offices. More than 1,000 persons called on the President to pay their respects, while probably 5,000 inspected the White House.

The most impressive delegation came from Wisconsin. They represented conservatives who supported President Coolidge in the only normally Republican State lost by him in the November election. None of the La Follette followers were in evidence, and even the Governor of Wisconsin, who is friendly with La Follette, remained away. The Wisconsin visitors wore badges carrying these words: "Wisconsin, our Governor isn't here, but we are." E. A. Miller, Mayor of Fort Atkinson, Wis., headed the delegation.

Silent as a Baby.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—On his way to witness the inauguration of his son, Colonel John Coolidge of Plymouth, Vt., passed through Philadelphia at 1:00 P. M. today. Mr. Coolidge posed for pictures on the station platform with Governor Billings of Vermont and the latter's wife and daughter, Mrs. Curtis P. Fields, and with J. E. Donahue of Baltimore, conductor of the train.

"How does the President feel about the inauguration? Did his letters indicate any excitement?" he was asked.

"He never gets excited," Mr. Coolidge came back quickly. "He's not excitable."

The tradition of Coolidge silence, the President's father revealed, is not of recent origin. Asked when it developed, Mr. Coolidge's weather-tanned face broke into a wrinkled smile, and a twinkle came into his eyes. He was silent for a moment as his memory went back to his son's early years.

"He wasn't even a noisy baby," announced the Colonel laconically, joining in the laughter which ensued.

HAILS COOLIDGE AND HUGHES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—The inauguration of President Coolidge and the retirement of Secretary Hughes have been made the occasion by The London Times to pay tribute to both of these American figures and to discuss the future foreign policy of the United States. The paper says that since two years ago, when as an unknown figure Coolidge assumed the Presidency, Americans and the world have had ample opportunity of making up their minds as to his character and capacity.

He stood the test of time, the paper says, and it compliments Americans on the "very shrewd idea of what they wanted" when they voted so emphatically for him last November.

As regards Secretary Hughes, The London Times says, "the world owes him a very considerable debt of gratitude for the active part taken by the United States in the preparation and application of the Dawes scheme. It shows the measure of distance traversed by American public opinion in foreign policy under the guidance of Hughes.

"We in Great Britain have special reason to be grateful to Hughes, for it was during his term of office that the last occasions for serious friction between the two countries were removed and the present happy relations established."

The Times concludes:

"Thanks very largely to Hughes's work, there is now again a distinctive American foreign policy, with an impetus and definite direction of its own. It is at once idealistic and shrewdly practical. President Coolidge's advisers, assisted by Secretary Kellogg, will no doubt impart to further developments of foreign policy his special personal touch, but from what is now known of his character it is certain that, while the essential American interests will remain in the foreground, and may even sometimes be presented in a form embarrassing to other nations, the idealism will by no means be lacking.

"It is indeed significant that the man now elected as its head by a nation so eagerly conscious of its growing power strongly and repeatedly emphasizes the idea of disarmament. Under his leadership that power surely will be used as a factor of peace. At all events, in this country President Coolidge's work will be watched with the deepest interest and with warm wishes for the highest success."

FARM FILIBUSTER TAKES SENATE'S DAY

DEFICIENCY BILL REMAINS

House Pares It by $163,000,000 to Suit Senate and Is Expected to Pass Amended Navy Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Senate and House of Representatives virtually completed their legislative activities today after a four-hour filibuster in the Senate conducted by Senator Howell of Nebraska and members of the farm bloc had ended the last chance of final action on many important measures which still are pending.

The Senate adopted the Naval Omnibus bill in a form which, it is believed, will be acceptable to the House, and after a long wrangle the House adopted the Second Deficiency bill, the last of the appropriation measures, in a form to which the Senate probably will agree. Both bodies then took recesses until tomorrow at 10 A. M., when final action will be taken on these bills.

The Administration Senators, because of the filibuster, were unable to find an opportunity to consider the Cramton bill for the establishment of a separate prohibition bureau or the McFadden branch banking bill.

The agreement on the recess, reached soon after 7 o'clock this evening, was believed a confession on the part of the Administration leaders that they had no hope of obtaining action on bills other than the Deficiency bill and the Naval Omnibus bill in the present session. Had there been any hope of adopting the Cramton bill or farm legislation, both Houses would have kept in session throughout the night.

A number of bills of minor importance to which there was no opposition were adopted in both Senate and House.

Deficiency Bill Cut $163,000,000.

Action on the Naval Omnibus and Second Deficiency bills was threatened for a time when the House attached as an amendment to the latter measure the Public Building bill carrying an appropriation of $150,000,000 and authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster General to construct public buildings throughout the country.

When this was reported to the Senate, Senator Robinson, the Democratic floor leader, announced that a filibuster would be conducted to prevent action on the Deficiency bill if the House insisted in this amendment. The Deficiency bill was returned to the House with this warning, and it was finally agreed to wipe out the Public Buildings amendment.

At the time the House eliminated from the bill a proposal to appropriate $13,800,000 for the completion of public buildings now in course of construction and an appropriation of $1,500,000 for a new Internal Revenue Bureau building. In all, the House eliminated proposed expenditures of $163,000,000.

It is expected that the Senate will agree to the Deficiency bill, stripped of these features, before adjournment tomorrow. There may also be a last-minute effort to get through some sort of farm legislation, but this seems doubtful. The Muscle Shoals bill also is dead, and there is little chance of any positive action of importance by either body tomorrow except the adoption of the Naval Omnibus bill in the House and final action on the Deficiency bill in the Senate.

Confirmation of the nomination of Charles B. Warren as Attorney General and action on the Isle of Pines and Lausanne treaties apparently will not be sought at this session and will be taken up at the special session.

Leaders Let Howell Talk On.

The Senate filibuster began at 2 o'clock this afternoon during the consideration of the Naval Omnibus bill and was continued until about 5:30 o'clock to the exclusion of all other activities.

Senator Howell sprang his surprise by offering as an amendment or rider to the omnibus bill the McNary-Haugen Farm Relief bill, which provides for the establishment of a $50,000,000 Government-financed export grain corporation. It was a foregone conclusion that the Senate would not give its approval.

First, Senator Howell demanded that the complete text of the McNary-Haugen bill be read and this consumed half an hour. Then Senator Howell took the floor and for two hours discussed the bill and the failure of the Senate to enact farm relief legislation of any kind.

Senator Howell's purpose at first, apparently, was to force an agreement on the part of Administration Senators to accept the McNary-Haugen bill as a rider to the Omnibus bill, or agree to adopt other farm legislation acceptable to the farm bloc before the present Congress ended, if they wished to avoid a filibuster on the Omnibus bill and the Second Deficiency bill.

Senator Curtis, the Republican floor leader, and his colleagues, however, would not make any such surrender and sat quietly by. Senators Frazier of North Dakota, and Gooding of Idaho, Republican members of the farm bloc, came to Senator Howell's aid and Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, helped to keep things stirred up.

Senator Gooding began an impassioned address for the adoption of farm legislation along the lines of the McNary-Haugen bill, demanding that the Government fix the price of wheat

Shouting Match Stops Business.

"At what figure would the Senator have the price of wheat fixed?" shouted Senator Robinson, who also has a reputation as a loud speaker.

Senator Gooding said that under the terms of the McNary-Haugen bill the price would be fixed at about $1.50 a bushel.

Senator Robinson called attention to the fact that at present the farmers were getting a higher price for their wheat.

"If Senator Gooding helps to put the price down," shouted Senator Robinson, "I prophesy that he will go back to the hills of Idaho and howl louder than he is now howling on the floor of the Senate."

"I don't howl any louder than the Senator from Arkansas does," shouted Senator Gooding.

At another point in the debate Senator Robinson attempted to put a quietus on Senator Gooding by announcing that Senator Gooding had obtained the floor to ask a question of Senator Howell and was abusing the privilege by making an extended address.

"Only the Almighty can stop you when you get started," he thundered as Senator Gooding refused to heed the combined protests of Senator Robinson and the Chairman.

"That's right," shouted Senator Gooding. "I'm going to say what I want to say."

The crowds in the galleries were laughing and talking and there was pretty general confusion. Senator Willis, who was presiding at the time, banged with his gavel and suspended the business of the Senate until order was restored.

"I wish that the Senators would set an example for the galleries to follow by their own conduct," he said. "There will be no further business done until the Senators have resumed their seats and order is restored.

Frazier Charges Feeling of Farmers.

With the Gooding-Robinson row out of the way, Senator Frazier obtained the floor from Senator Howell and made an extended address.

The Administration, he charged, had promised everything to the farmers before election, and after election, when Congress got together, had done less than nothing.

Why no action has been taken, he said, was beyond his comprehension, unless it was that the Administration had no real intention of passing any farm legislation whatsoever and had been merely fooling the farmers.

"I want to serve notice," he said, "that I will introduce a bill in the next session to bring relief to the farmers and that I will fight for it to the end."

Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, interrupted to ask Senator Frazier how he expected to do much, as he could not hope to get on the Agricultural Committee in the next Senate.

Declaring that the Progressives would be eliminated by a party which had not kept its pledges and seemed to be becoming a party of the corporations and not of the people, Senator Frazier said if that were true he was proud to be eliminated and predicted the downfall of the Republican Party.

"I hope that when I suggested that you were going to be eliminated from the Republican Party, you did not take it as a criticism," interrupted Senator Reed. "I meant it as a compliment."

"Well, that is all right," replied Senator Frazier with a smile.

Howell Amendment Loses, 69 to 17.

The filibuster group gave way about 6 o'clock after they had made it certain that all pending legislative measures, except the Appropriation bills and the Naval Omnibus bill, had been sidetracked. A vote then was taken on Senator Howell's proposal to tack the McNary-Haugen bill on the Naval bill as an amendment and it was beaten 69 to 17.

The Senators voting for the Howell proposal were Ashurst, Copeland, Wheeler, Democrats; Brookhart, Capper, Frazier, Gooding, Howell, Johnson of California, Ladd, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Sterling, Willis, Republicans, and Johnson of Minnesota and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor.

Notables Witness Tame Wind-up.

WASHINGTON, March 3 (Associated Press).—The Sixty-eighth Congress, which came in two years ago like a roaring wind, is passing out with one of the tamest wind-ups in recent history. Neither House was in session tonight—something almost unheard of on the eve of adjournment sine die.

Governors of several States here for the inauguration visited the two chambers during the day, among them being Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, Chief Executive of Wyoming, and the first woman Governor to visit the Senate.

Swelling the crowds on the Senate floor during much of the day were half a dozen new Senators who will take their seats tomorrow and participate in the special session of the Senate.

GIVES HOUSE CREDIT FOR SUPPLY MEASURES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Nicholas Longworth, Republican floor leader, who will be Speaker of the House in the next Congress, asserted today his belief that no necessity existed for convening Congress in extra session after March 4.

"Under the organization of the next House a few days ago, it has become possible for the majority members of the Ways and Means Committee to meet when advisable, perhaps in October," he stated. "They will have the figures for the fiscal year before them, and the recommendations of the Treasury on what financial cuts can be made.

"It may be that the Appropriations and, perhaps, the Interstate Commerce Committee, can meet at that time also, and with these three important committees functioning we can make as good a start in that way as if an extra session had been called. I think some railroad legislation may be attempted, but I cannot say now what it will be. There is a possibility that the Agricultural Committee may meet on proposed farm legislation.

"The appropriation bills have been passed in better shape and they were all substantially less than the budget estimate. They have also been passed faster than in any other Congress and have been less amended in the Senate. I may say that the bills put through this Congress have been essentially those passed by the House."

It was known at the outset of the session that on account of the conditions in the Senate it would be impossible to get through any substantial legislation outside of the appropriation bills, and there was the fact that the session was a short one. Mr. Longworth remarked, while the Republican majority in both houses was comparatively small.

"But," he added, "I think when I sum up tomorrow on the floor I shall be able to say conscientiously that we have done our job."

Harvard Instructor Resigns to Associate With Dramatist at Yale.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 3.—Dr. John Leslie Hotson, young Harvard instructor, is to follow George Pierce Baker, whose associate he was in Cambridge, to New Haven, where he will be connected with the Yale teaching department, and associated with the new school of the theatre there.

Dr. Hotson came to Harvard from Brooklyn, where he graduated from the Manual Training High School of that city. He received the bachelor's degree in 1921, and subsequently the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees. He was a member of Professor Baker's "47 Workshop" as an undergraduate.

Last year Dr. Hotson traveled and studied in England and the Continent. In Paris he paid particular attention to the producing methods of Jacques Copeau at the Théâtre du Vieux Colombier, and studied in the Russian developments of dramatic expression which have characterized the renaissance of the theatre in Moscow.

PENSION CHIEF RETIRES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Washington Gardner of Michigan, a veteran of the Civil War, who has served as Commissioner of Pensions for four years, will retire tomorrow. Announcement that President Coolidge had accepted his resignation was made today.

The resignation is attributed to advancing years, as Mr. Gardner is 80 years old.

At the outbreak of the Civil War Mr. Gardner enlisted as a private in the Sixty-fifth Ohio Infantry. He held the office of Secretary of State of Michigan for three terms, and served in Congress for twelve years. He was commander of the Department of Michigan of the Grand Army of Republic, and in 1913 was Commander-in-Chief of that organization.

HOUSE INQUIRY FINDS PENCIL SALE FRAUD

URGES GRAND JURY ACTION

Investigators Say Uncontradicted Testimony Showed Difference Between Funds and Deposits.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The special committee which investigated the National Disabled Soldiers League reported to the House today it was of the opinion that part of the funds raised by the organization had been diverted to improper uses and personal gain.

It was recommended that the Department of Justice be asked to present facts developed by the investigation to a Federal Grand Jury.

"The committee agrees," the report said, "that the League has not kept faith with the public in fulfilling the statements which it made in circulating its appeals for funds."

The report said that uncontradicted testimony before the committee was to the effect that the proportion of cash contributed in the various pencil campaigns of the organization ranged from 25 to 30 per cent. of the full amount received, but the bank deposits of the League disclosed less than 10 per cent. cash deposited.

"The committee is of the opinion," the report continued, "that the small amount of cash represented as received from these campaigns would indicate that either the officers or the employes of the League misappropriated a part of these funds and failed to account for them."

So far as the committee could learn, the report said, "the entire management and control of the League is in the hands of Commander John T. Nolan, the Treasurer, James F. McCann, and the Adjutant, Kenneth D. Murphy.

"The committee was unable to ascertain," the report continued, "the bona fide membership of the organization, and it is questionable whether there are any active members except the three above-named officials, and a small coterie depending upon them. Evidence was produced indicating, with the possible exception of a post in Birmingham, Ala., that there are no active posts in existence.

"The report said it had never been proved to the satisfaction of the committee" that the national Adjutant, Kenneth D. Murphy, was in the Armed forces of the United States during any war."

"James F. McCann, the Treasurer," it added, "failed to appear before the committee in spite of repeated assurances by the attorney for the League, Mr. Slegal, that he would do so." His personal bank account shows numerous deposits, and in January, 1923, the deposits exceeded a thousand dollars."

WEEKS SCOUTS RESIGNING.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Reports that Secretary of War Weeks plans to resign from the Cabinet and devote his time to travel in the near future were characterized by the Secretary today as "only guess-work."

He has never stated finally his intention to complete another term in the Cabinet, but has made it rather plain that if the President retains him after March 4 he will stay for a while. He would not discuss the reports today beyond these observations.

Riddle Is Back In Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES, March 3.—John W. Riddle, American Ambassador to Argentina, arrived today from the United States to resume his post.

NOTICE OF CONTEST GIVEN TO BROOKHART

Counsel For Iowa Republicans Serve Papers—He Says He Will Fight.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A contest of the election of Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa was filed with the Senate today by officials of the Republican Central Committee of Iowa.

At the same time a copy of the papers were personally served on the Senator by R. B. Burnquist of Fort Dodge, Chairman, and H. E. Spangler of Cedar Rapids, counsel for the committee.

Senator Brookhart, who already has been read out of the party councils by the Republican Senate organization, previously had declined to accept service unless by a United States Marshal. Just as he was leaving his office for the Senate chamber today, however, Burnquist and Spangler handed him the formal notice of the contest.

Half an hour before Senator Brookhart had announced that he would take his fight against the State Committee to the people of Iowa, campaigning in every county. He said later, in reply to the charge that he had been elected through fraud and deceit by representing himself to be a Republican, that the people of Iowa had passed upon his Republicanism at the polls.

The charges brought against Brookhart are those outlined in a formal resolution adopted by the State Committee at Des Moines in January. Burnquist asserts that the meeting of the committee was a duly constituted one, but the Senator asserts that a number of the members already have informed him of their repudiation of the action. The Senator also said that he would make a contest against "that gang," with "no quarter" asked.

NEW INQUIRY STARTS IN M'CLINTOCK CASE

State's Attorney Resumes Efforts to Determine Cause of Wealthy Youth's Death.

CHICAGO, March 3 (Associated Press).—After verbally flaying William D. Shepherd, foster father and principal heir of William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan," and charging that Shepherd had made three indirect confessions of moral guilt in connection with McClintock's death of typhoid fever, Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court carried his case to the State's attorney today after a coroner's inquest had been continued to March 23.

Almost immediately the State's Attorney's office renewed its activities to determine whether the young millionaire died a natural death, and, if not, who was responsible. Several witnesses who have not appeared before the Coroner's jury were summoned for questioning.

Shepherd, who refused to testify before the Coroner's jury, issued a statement tonight attacking the integrity of some of the witnesses who testified against him, and also declared that the entire investigation had been started by Judge Olson to prejudice the public against Shepherd in the contest of McClintock's will.

An accusation made by Judge Olson in protesting against a continuance of the inquest, to the effect that he had been informed that two Assistant State's Attorneys had asked the Coroner to see that the Coroner's jury brought in a verdict finding that McClintock died of natural causes, and to give an apology to Shepherd, was met by an announcement from Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, placing all the facilities of his office at Judge Olson's command to further the inquiry.

The hearing on the contest of the McClintock will is scheduled for hearing on March 18.

Nevada Bill Would License Games.

RENO, Nev., March 3.—A bill was introduced in the State Legislature at Carson City yesterday providing for the collection of $1,000 license fees from each table operated for various games, such as faro, roulette, fan tan, big injun, twenty-one, stud and draw poker. Poker games are already permitted under the State law.

FRENCH SENATE GETS BUDGET FOR 1925

TOTAL 34 BILLION FRANCS

Of This 19,500,000,000, It Is Pointed Out, Is Required for Service of France's Debt.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 3.—The Government today introduced in the Senate the 1925 budget which had been voted by the Chamber. Its total stands just short of 34,500,000,000 francs. Despite the criticism in the Upper House of the Herriot Government, it is considered highly improbable that the Senate can make any large reductions in the total of the budget because 60 per cent. represents appropriations to care for the debts of the country, which appropriations are fixed mathematically, not politically. The military appropriation is 5,500,000,000, the general running cost of the Government is slightly over 8,000,000,000 and the appropriation for reconstruction work is 1,500,000,000. The only chance for a reduction seems to be in the increases granted to State employes.

As Premier Herriot bitterly complained in the Chamber on Sunday morning after the passage of the budget, 19,500,000,000 of it went to debt service. He pointed out that it was impossible for the Government to lighten this burden. It is to be noted that in this budget no provision is made toward the war debt of France to England and the United States.

The interior national debt of the country stands at 277,850 000,000 francs while the foreign commercial debt, as distinguished from the political debt, is 50,000,000,000. Thus the active debt of the French Government is 300,000,000,000 francs.

Interest and amortization charges on this enormous sum take up the larger part of the 19,500,000,000 debt service part of the 1925 budget. On the consolidated debt the interest charges for the year are 4,360,000 000, on the 1920 5 per cent. loan 1,000,000,000. Half a billion is appropriated for the two loans floated in the United States in 1920 and 1921. Nearly 500,000 000 needed for interest on the purchase of British and American war stocks.

On national defense long-term bonds 424,000.000 francs are needed. Four hundred and ninety-four millions are appropriated for three and five year reconstruction bonds and 677,000,000 for ten-year Treasury reconstruction bonds. The 1919 loan calls for a debt service of 1,904,000,000. Seven hundred and twenty millions are put down for special war damage bonds service, while the floating debt calls for 3,575,000,000. Together with interest and service on the railroad debt this brings the count to approximately 15,000,000,000.

Civil pensions run up to nearly 700,000,000, while the war pensions are down for nearly 2,500,000,000. The remaining 1,000,000,000 for debt service is made up of a great number of smaller items, representing for the most part local commitments of the French Government. Provision also is made for the cost of refloating some of the French loans which come due this year, and which, if renewed, will bear a higher rate of interest.

The French public debt before the war was 32,000,000,000 francs, or less than the 1925 budget. The French war debt abroad is equivalent to 36,000 000 gold francs, or 144,000,000,000 paper francs at current exchange, which is the exchange which would have been considered were the French paying service on this debt in 1925. That on the present exchange basis the debt of the French Government is nearly 450 000 000,000 francs, or about 13,000 francs for every man, woman and child in the country.

Considering the smallness of the French national debt before the war it may be fairly said that the present crushing French debt represents their cost of the war. Though the 19,500,000,000 to be paid this year represents today roughly $1,000,000,000, it really represents more than that for the Frenchman. Just as a too favorable picture would be presented by dividing the 900,000,000,000 interior debt by the current rate of exchange; for if this debt is ever repaid the franc will be higher than twenty to the dollar and therefore the amount of wealth which would be represented would be much greater than $15,000,000,000.

Commenting on their financial situation the French often point to the fact that the present value of the Dawes annuities, which represent the sole cost to Germany of liquidating the war, is 40,000,000,000 marks—$10,000,000,000—of which the French stand to get 35,000,000,000, which is something less than she already owes England and America.

AMUNDSEN NOW PLANS POLE FLIGHT IN MAY

Hopes to Reach Goal in 7 Hours and Stay There Half a Day for Observations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, March 3.—Captain Amundsen, accompanied by Rijser Larsen, a Norwegian airman, has arrived in Copenhagen on his way to Oslo.

Both men said that the flight to the North Pole finally has been decided upon. Amundsen has made contracts with a firm manufacturing Dornier seaplanes near Pisa for the construction of two seaplanes, Rolls-Royce, Ltd., is to furnish the engines. The seaplanes will be shipped from Leghorn this week and should arrive at Tromso early in April, where the members of the expedition should be by that time.

Besides six men, who are to be the seaplane crews, the expedition will consist of Schulte Frohlinde, manager of the airplane company, under whose supervision the machines will be put together; two meteorologists, a physician and mechanics from the Rolls-Royce company, together with the crew of the motherships Fram.

From Tromso the expedition will proceed to King's Bay in Spitsbergen, from which place the flight will be attempted toward the end of May. The seaplanes will be piloted by Amundsen and Ellsworth, the American flier.

The machines can carry gasoline for a distance of more than 1,600 miles. From Spitsbergen to the Pole is about 690 miles, and the flight is expected to take seven hours. The expedition would remain twelve hours at the Pole—just sufficient time to make the necessary observations.

Court Rules Against Return Unless Ownership Is Established.

When the warrants for a search of the Silver Slipper and Hollywood cabarets in the theatre district were quashed by the Circuit Court of Appeals the order directed that a dozen bottles of champagne seized by dry raiders should be returned. The United States Attorneys asked for a rehearing on the question of restoring the liquor yesterday the Circuit Court ruled that the direction to restore the liquor had been put into the order through an inadvertence, because no proof had been presented as to who the owner of it was. Part of the opinion reads:

"If a court is going to return property which has been unlawfully seized it should be restored to the one from whose possession it was unlawfully taken or the one who claims it as owner. There is no sworn testimony in this case which shows that these liquors were taken from the possession of any of the parties to the suit or that any one of them claims them as owner. * * * The liquor can only be restored, if it is to be restored, to one who at least claims to be the owner or to have had it in his possession when it was wrongfully seized."

BOND FRAUD REPORT ASSAILED BY MELLON

given three additional months in which to complete his investigation. Having already spent two and a half years on the matter, certainly it was reasonable to suppose that this would be sufficient to enable him to finish any remaining phases of his work. Accordingly, it was arranged between Mr. Brewer and Mr. Washburn that on Jan. 15, 1924, Mr. Brewer should submit his final report.

Mr. Brewer filed a report with the Attorney General under date of Jan. 15, 1924. It contained no evidence which could in any wise be construed as a justification of the charges. As an investigator of the Department of Justice it was Mr. Brewer's duty to ascertain and determine whether the charges were true or untrue. He did neither. His report was merely a reiteration of the charges, with embellishments, and with the comment in each instance that further investigation would develop the facts.

Declares Charges Absurd.

Mr. Brewer's report was referred to the Treasury, and in my letter to you of April 26, 1924, I answered in detail all his specific charges. I stated then, and I repeat here, that there have been no fraudulent duplications or overissues of the public debt, and that the charges are absurd. There were some mechanical and clerical errors in the preparation and recording of the enormous volume of wartime securities, and there were some petty thefts of retired securities from the files.

The mechanical and clerical errors did not result in any loss to the Government, while the thefts of retired securities from the files have involved a loss to the United States of only $13,100 out of approximately $100,000,000,000, principal amount of securities retired by the Register of the Treasury during the period 1917 to 1922. Any fair-minded person will agree that this is a remarkable record. The wonder is that, considering the frailty of human nature and the wartime conditions under which most of the work was performed, the errors were so few and the actual losses to the United States so insignificant.

In March, 1924, nearly a year ago, the House of Representatives passed a resolution authorizing a special committee of five members to investigate the Brewer charges. While the resolution did not specifically refer to these charges, the discussion in Congress clearly indicated that those who sponsored the resolution were inspired by Brewer, who had given his charges wide publicity in a suit brought by him in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia against his own department head.

The committee promptly designated Mr. Brewer to assist it in conducting the investigation. Thus Mr. Brewer, having made the charges which resulted in the passage of the resolution, has occupied the triple rôle of investigator of his own accusations, prosecuting attorney and adviser to the jury. Naturally he presented only such information and only such witnesses as in his opinion would tend to establish his charges.

Says Treasury Was Not Heard.

He certainly had no interest in the truth if it was inconsistent with the charges upon which his employment depended. At the beginning of the committee's investigation, nearly a year ago, the Treasury requested permission to review the testimony of all the witnesses, including Mr. Brewer, and to cross-examine them, and that request was frequently repeated.

Notwithstanding this, nearly all the witnesses were interviewed in secret executive session, and although there has been ample time, the Treasury was denied the privilege of hearing or even seeing a transcript of their testimony or of cross-examining them. The Treasury was not given an opportunity to cross-examine Mr. Brewer, which would have enabled it to show conclusively wherein he had evaded or distorted the facts.

Under date of Jan. 28, 1925, the committee submitted to the Treasury a list of five so-called "outstanding facts" with respect to which it desired information. This information was conveyed to the committee in my letters of Feb. 4 and Feb. 11, 1925. In these letters the committee was fully advised concerning:

1. The authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to destroy Government securities;

2. The method employed by the Treasury in giving tentative allocations of serial numbers where securities appear to bear duplicated serial numbers;

3. The facts concerning alleged paper and bond shortages;

4. The method of certification employed with respect to securities delivered for destruction; and

5. The Liberty bond transactions conducted by the War Finance Corporation during the period 1918 to 1920.

In this connection I may say that the Treasury has at all times held itself in readiness to cooperate with the committee in every possible way and has repeatedly assured the committee of its willingness to furnish the facts concerning any matter under consideration. At the same time it has pointed out the impropriety of accepting the testimony of witnesses, many of whom were employes with fancied grievances, who could not in the nature of things have had full knowledge of the operations, without permitting the Treasury to cross-examine them or answer their testimony.

Urged Inspection of Methods.

Not only was the investigation of this character, but the committee, though often invited by the Treasury to make a personal inspection of the activities about which its investigation has centred, and thus gain first-hand information regarding the methods under which the public debt has been handled and the safeguards designed to protect its integrity, has not seen fit to do so.

The importance of such an inspection in connection with any effort to determine the facts is readily apparent. Representative Strong, who, as I have said, did not sign the report of the committee, is the only member who recognized the necessity of personally viewing the Treasury's operations in relation to public debt matters and who availed himself of the Treasury's invitation.

The committee's inquiry has been under way for nearly a year, and its report has been made public. The report is substantially a reiteration of the McCarter-Brewer charges, with the exception that there are added certain charges relating to the transactions of the War Finance Corporation in Liberty bonds during the period 1918 to 1920, which were completely and conclusively refuted in a public hearing on Oct. 28, 1924, and in my letters to the committee already referred to.

The accusers of the Treasury, therefore, are as far now from proving their charges as they were in 1920. Mr. Brewer undertook to investigate the McCarter charges, and after two and a half years merely repeated them and admitted that he could not prove them to be true. The special Congressional committee then undertook to investigate Mr. Brewer's charges, and after the lapse of a year has merely repeated many of the same charges and has developed no evidence to support them.

Certainly, three and a half years of fruitless investigation should be sufficient to demonstrate that the charges are baseless. The charges started with a great conspiracy and "hundreds of millions" in fraudulent securities, but during the investigation these general charges have grown less and less, until now the only specific evidence of fraud presented is the theft of $13,100 of paid securities and their second presentation, the facts concerning which the Treasury itself made known. This is not a duplication of securities, but a duplicate payment of the same securities.

The charges, for the most part, relate to transactions which took place before my administration of the Treasury. I feel that the handling of the tremendous volume of wartime securities was exceptionally well conducted by the employes of the Treasury, and I think the public should know that the charges are unworthy of further consideration. Faithfully yours,

A. W. MELLON,
Secretary of the Treasury.
The President, the White House.

Strong Assails Majority Report.

This evening Representative Strong endeavored to make a speech in the House giving his side of the committee investigation, but objection was made and he was not allowed to proceed. He obtained permission, however, to insert his speech in the Congressional Record. In it Mr. Strong severely scores his three fellow-committeemen who signed the majority report for their failure to visit the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, as he did, and for their general conduct of the investigation. He declares that the charges made by Charles B. Brewer, a special assistant to the Attorney General, are groundless.

Representative Strong dwelt upon Mr. Brewer's charges that the War Finance Corporation was reprehensible in handling war bonds.

"As far as the Liberty Bond transactions are concerned," Mr. Strong said, "the majority report seems to be a casual reader to make the charge that the Government has in some mysterious way lost $24,000,000 owing to certain purchases and sales made by the War Finance Corporation. If you analyze it carefully, of course, the report makes no such charge. It merely appears to do so. Upon a careful reading of the report the whole matter dissolves into nothing."

In connection with the work of the War Finance Corporation, Representative Strong has this to say:

"The sworn testimony shows that Eugene Meyer, Jr., was formerly the principal member of the firm of Eugene Meyer Jr. & Co. At the end of 1917 the firm was dissolved and began to liquidate its affairs. Beginning in June, 1918, as a convenience to the War Finance Corporation and the Treasury, with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Mr. Meyer donated the facilities and service of his office in connection with the purchase and sale of Liberty Bonds.

"In doing so he expressly stipulated that no charge would be made by himself or his former firm, whether for rent, operating expenses or services. All those expenses were personally borne by Mr. Meyer, and the service performed free of all cost to the Government. This is established by the sworn testimony and there is not a shred of evidence to contradict it."

Longworth Says Inquiry Is Over.

Representative Longworth, Republican floor leader in the House, was asked today if the life of the special committee examining the charges against the Bureau of Engraving and Printing would be extended, as the majority of that committee requested in its report.

"Absolutely not," he replied.

"It's not a report at all," he added. "It's an attack on the Treasury Department without giving that department an opportunity to answer any of the charges. It's not a report at all."

He had been told, Mr. Longworth said, that it would cost $50,000,000 to make the audit of the Treasury Department suggested by the special committee and that years would be consumed in this work.

"I don't think an appropriation of that sort would be part of our economy program," he observed.

Mr. Longworth predicted that there would be fewer investigations at the next session of Congress.

I have a man under my care, who is now in the ——— Hospital, ———. He has an incurable cancer on his face. I have no room for him in the Home, and no one that can take care of him that will, or can, give him the proper care. The inmates of the Home are all old and feeble, and if I had room for this poor man they would not help in any way to make him comfortable. The Hospital tells me I must take him away, as they have no room for incurable patients. I am writing to you, thinking I might make some arrangement for you to take him, and care for him as long as he should live, which I do not think will be very long. I want to do the best I can for this poor man, and I am told that there is no place where he will be better cared for. ALLIES ASK FOCH FOR FURTHER REPORT

Marshal's Review of German Military Situation Held Incomplete by Ambassadors.

SECURITY DEBATE BLOCKED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 3.—An effort by Marshal Foch and the French Government to swing consideration of German disarmament into an immediate discussion of a treaty of security for France against Germany was blocked by the British today.

When the Conference of Ambassadors met to consider Marshal Foch's advice on the interallied report on German disarmament it was quickly decided that the Marshal's review of the report did not entirely constitute what was needed, and they asked him and other members of the Interallied Military High Commission to formulate strictly technical recommendations, setting forth the proper measures to be taken to oblige Germany to fulfill her technical defaults.

Marshal Foch's advice was, briefly, that it was scarcely worth while for the Allies to be bothering about a few extra rifles or cannon or technical defaults, but that the Governments should try to solve the large problem presented by Germany's evident determination to have a strong army. His advice represented the French idea of linking up the report on German armaments with the general question of security, and thereby linking up the evacuation of Cologne with the solution of the problem of protection for France.

The action of the Ambassadors, therefore, means that it is a reflection of the British intention to keep the general security issue and the issue of German disarmament separate, at least technically, and also means that the Governments will handle security issues through the Foreign Offices.

Disarmament a Technical Issue.

At the Ambassadors' request Marshal Foch was to prepare a statement setting forth precisely the extent to which Germany had violated the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles on armaments and advise methods to enforce observance of those provisions. In other words, the Ambassadors decided to keep disarmament a technical issue, it being the British intention to notify Germany that if she performs certain acts, to be prescribed by the Allies, Cologne will be evacuated.

As a matter of fact, the vote of the Ambassadors represented a decision of the Governments taken before the meeting. Lord Crewe conferred with Premier Herriot last night and this morning, before the meeting, M. Herriot saw Marshal Foch. The action of the Ambassadors meant delaying action, for it will be at least a week before Foch can make a new report, and meanwhile M. Herriot and Mr. Chamberlain will confer. It is understood now to be settled that Mr. Chamberlain will stop off in Paris on Friday on his way to Geneva to talk with M. Herriot. They will probably discuss not only what to do about German disarmament but also the British attitude toward the League protocol, to be stated by Mr. Chamberlain at the meeting of the League Council at Geneva on Monday next.

It is reported that both Mr. Chamberlain and M. Herriot think the situation caused in Germany by President Ebert's death makes desirable a certain delay on the disarmament issue. It is entirely probable that the allied Governments will wait until after the German Presidential election before formal action, for their action may well be influenced by the result of that election.

Minds of French on Security.

In France one sees a growing disposition to attach less and less importance to the technical disarmament provisions of the treaty. In other words, the French are coming to realize that it is impossible from outside to keep a Reich of 65,000,000 people permanently disarmed if they wish to be armed. Consequently more and more attention is being paid to the prospects of security treaties.

The sole treaty provision to which much importance is now attached as of solid importance is the demilitarization of the banks of the Rhine, and strong efforts will be made by the French to have the League of Nations this year take over formally the duty of assuring disarmament of this strip as a fence of safety.

To obtain this Paris counting on the support of the British, whom they advise to protect the Channel ports by a Rhine barrier. If, as is expected, Mr. Chamberlain suggests a treaty arrangement at Geneva next week to replace the protocol the English will throw into the waste basket it is believed he will make mention of a neutralized Rhine fence between Germany and France.

O'CONNELL REACHES ROME.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 3.—Cardinal O'Connell arrived in Rome this evening, having motored from Naples, where he arrived yesterday with 500 pilgrims from Boston. Fatigued by the journey, he intends to take a complete rest until tomorrow, when he will be joined by the pilgrimage, which is traveling by train.

An audience with the Pope is being arranged for Cardinal O'Connell within the next few days, wherein the final arrangements for the American pilgrims will be decided.

The Pope, it is reported from the Vatican, is taking the greatest possible interest in Cardinal O'Connell's pilgrimage. Not only is it the first Holy Year pilgrimage from the United States, but indeed the first foreign pilgrimage of any importance, as all hitherto have been composed of only a few score persons.

The Pontiff learned with the greatest joy of the send-off the pilgrims had on leaving Boston and followed the journey across the ocean with the greatest interest. He was glad to learn that they reached Naples safely and is looking forward to receiving them in a special audience next week.

Owing to Pope Pius's special affection for America, it is expected that all the functions attended by the Boston pilgrimage will assume special importance and significance, just as the Consistory wherein Cardinals Hayes and Mundelein were elevated to the purple was the most impressive within the memory of living men.

The program of the pilgrims during their stay in Rome has not yet been definitely settled, as it may be subjected to some changes after Cardinal O'Connell's audience with the Pope. It is probable, however, that the first three days, namely, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will be devoted to visiting the basilicas, four being taken in every day, two in the morning and two in the afternoon. On Sunday the pilgrims will attend some big public mass in one of Rome's great basilicas.

The pilgrims will be received by the Pope some time next week. This is in reality an inversion of the usual practice, as most pilgrimages generally are received by the Pontiff the first thing on reaching Rome, performing their pilgrimage to the basilicas afterward. The Americans, however, expressed a wish to see the Pope after their visits to the basilicas, wishing the audience to take place while they are in a state of grace.

The pilgrimage officially ends on March 12. About half of the pilgrims will return immediately to Naples and sail homeward, the remainder scattering over Europe. Some will visit the Holy Land, others go to Lourdes and many more are going to France, England and Ireland, sailing someward from Northern ports.

OXFORD MISJUDGED EARTHQUAKE CENTRE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—The point of origin of the earthquake which shook New York and the conflicting evidence of the seismograph constituted the subject of a letter today from Professor H. H. Turner of the Oxford University Observatory to The London Times.

He expressed anxiety lest more harm was done in Bermuda than in New York, for, he says, "the centre of the disturbance cannot have been very near New York and may have been much nearer Bermuda."

He mentions this, however, only as a possibility, since the evidence is seriously conflicting, and he proceeds:

"At breakfast on Sunday morning a cable from Fordham University in New York reached me which put the Greenwich time of the shock at 2 hours 19 minutes 35 seconds A. M., or 9:20 P. M. local time, and the distance at 375 miles.

"On developing our film a considerable though not very large earthquake was plain, but as details were affected by an instrument defect, I telephoned to J. J. Shaw of West Bromwich, who gallantly cut short an attack of influenza to investigate, but he made the time 2 hours 18 minutes 29 seconds, nearly a minute earlier, which meant something was wrong somewhere.

"As it is quite usual to have disturbances so near New York, and as we knew nothing then of New York being actually shaken, he telephoned to you that there could be no other interpretation possible under the circumstances, namely, a West Indian earthquake, and hoping for more news on Monday.

"But luck had been uniformly bad. One seismograph was not running, another sent us information clearly in error, and a third, information which seems all right but will not fit exactly.

"On Monday morning, Feb. 23, a similar cable from Fordham reached me, also at breakfast time, and within an hour or two I was able to send a return message giving the fairly precise epicentre south of Alaska, but then everything fitted. On Sunday the facts were apparently in a malicious mood."

LABORITE IN COMMONS DEFENDS CLASS WAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—"If the honorable members opposite were entitled to advise the shooting of middle and upper class Germans because they could not accept their views, the Communists are equally entitled to advise the working classes to shoot down those who stand in the way of their prosperity," was the declaration made in the House of Commons tonight by John Wheatley, former Minister of Health and one of the strong men of the Labor Party, whose name has been mentioned as a rival of Ramsay MacDonald for its leadership.

Mr. Wheatley's remarks were made during a debate on a motion by a Unionist condemning Communist propaganda throughout the empire. Mr. Wheatley contended that the purpose of the motion was "for the honorable members opposite, who keep millions of people down in the gutter, to make it illegal for them to squeal.

"Revolutions are produced by such conditions," he continued. "I tell you if I were enduring these conditions, or if I felt that tomorrow by exercising a little violence I could emancipate a million of my fellow-countrymen from perpetual poverty, I would feel that that course that I should be more justified than you were in the course you took in 1914." [Cheers.]

Lord Winterton, Under Secretary for India, replying for the Government, referred to this "frank and naive disclosure of Mr. Wheatley's real political ambitions." He had thought there would be general agreement that the duty of the Government was to protect the country against changes in the existing order by other than constitutional means, but he felt a little doubtful after Mr. Wheatley's remarks.

"If a bloodthirsty mod attacked a building in which were men, women and children with the intention of killing them," he said, "and if troops or police under the orders of their executive officers were compelled to use force against the rioters and certain people were killed among the rioters, I suppose that is what Mr. Wheatley and other Labor members would be pleased to call 'wholesale murder.'" [Labor cries of "Yes" and "massacre" and loud Ministerial cheers].

The motion was finally adjourned.

DIG FOR LOST LIBRARY OF IVAN THE TERRIBLE

MOSCOW, March 3 (Associated Press).—The Soviet Government today took steps to excavate under the towers of the Kremlin for the famous lost library of Ivan the Terrible (1530-1584), said to include 800 volumes bound in pure gold and many Arabian, Persian, Assyrian and Byzantine manuscripts and parchments of priceless value. The work will be in charge of Professor Stelletzy, a leading Russian archaeologist.

The existence of such a library has been known for centuries, but it has never been found. Peter the Great, in 1725, tried to find it, but the difficult excavating work was abandoned. Similar failures have since been made. Recent researches and surveys have encouraged the authorities to believe that the present excavations may be successful.

In spite of his cruelty and barbarity, Ivan is declared by Russian historians to have been a great lover of the arts, accumulating during his long reign an enormous library for the age. The libraries of Europe were ransacked for his collection. In his closing years he was surrounded by so many intrigues that he hid all his treasures, including this library, so that it might not fall into the hands of his enemies.

The preliminary surveys indicate that the entire hill which bears the Kremlin is intersected with an arterial system of subterranean tunnels and secret passages. Archaeologists express the belief that in ancient times a city existed under the present Moscow, many stone implements and other evidences of an ancient civilization having been unearthed.

PREDICTS CHIGNON AGAIN.

French Expert Says It Will Be Small and Outline Head.

PARIS, March 3.—Three years from now will bring an end to "la garçonne"—at least so far as her manner of wearing her hair is concerned—says Pierre Rolland, who ought to know, as he is "President of the Academy of Masters of French Coiffure." Then women will adopt a mode which the expert calls "half long."

"The bobbed and shingled hair craze has reached its maximum, but will not die out for another two or three years, when I foresee a change of fashion," says M. Rolland. "But do not believe there will be a return to long, opulent tresses. While the chignon will again appear universally, it will be very small in size and outline the head. The hair will only just cover the nape of the neck."

BERLIN IN MOURNING FOR EBERT FUNERAL

PEOPLE TO VIEW THE BODY

It Will Lie in State at Railroad Station Before Being Taken to Heidelberg.

BERLIN, March 3.—Berlin is donning official mourning in preparation for the funeral of President Ebert tomorrow, for which final arrangements were announced today.

The body will lie in state in the reception room of the Presidential palace on Wilhelmstrasse, where will be held the official mourning ceremony which the high Government officials and the members of the entire diplomatic corps will attend. The body will then be taken, with a military escort and followed by carriages bearing members of the Ebert family and close friends, Government officials, diplomats and representatives of art, scientific and other circles, via Wilhelmstrasse and Unter den Linden under the middle arch of the Brandenburg Gate—reserved for the Kaiser in the days of the German empire—to the big square before the Reichstag Building. There impressive farewell ceremonies will be held.

To Lie in State at Station

Thence the funeral procession will proceed across the Potsdamerplatz to a point close to the Potsdam railway station, where the body will be placed on a platform draped in black and the public allowed to file past and pay its last respects. Then at 6:30 o'clock the special funeral train will steam out of the Potsdam railway station toward the President's native town of Heidelberg.

The train will proceed via Magdeburg and Frankfort. At the latter city it will make a detour, avoiding the main railway station and proceeding via Darmstadt to Heidelberg, where it is scheduled to arrive at 10 Thursday morning. Heidelberg is making elaborate arrangements for impressive funeral ceremonies Thursday.

Already Berlin is taking on the look of a metropolis in mourning. Wilhelmstrasse is an impressive sight today with its long double line of half-masted German republican and Prussian flags, with scores of morning garlands draped with big black ribbons hung over its lamp posts and its unbending stream of mourners and thrill-seekers filing past the palace where Ebert lies in a flag-draped, banked sight with its flowers while silent mourners bow their heads and silent soldiers mount rigid guard. Already, too, the splendid Parserplatz, across which the funeral will proceed tomorrow, and the magnificent Brandenburg Gate, under which it will pass, are taking on all outward signs of mourning.

The huge facade of the Reichstag Building is draped in black and a big picture of President Ebert amid mourning garlands looks down upon the square where tomorrow Reichstag President Löbe will bid Germany's official farewell to the dead leader. The rest of the funeral route—the tree-lined Friedensallee, handsome Budapesterstrasse and the Potsdamerplatz, the busiest spot in all Berlin—are also somber avenues of mourning. Before the Potsdam railway station carpenters are working hard on the platform where tomorrow the President's body will receive the farewell of the Berliners.

Wreaths From Foreign Countries.

Among the floral offerings sent to the President's palace today was one from the American Embassy, also a superb wreath from the Mikado of Japan and others from numerous foreign Governments.

Today it was officially announced that all expenses attendant upon the funeral would be borne by the German State. The Government offices and shops will be closed tomorrow during the funeral. The funeral procession here will be under direction of the military commander of Berlin. The military escort will include a band of mounted trumpeters, an infantry band, five infantry companies and an artillery battery.

German political animosities are so violent that even respect due to the dead President has not sufficed to silence entirely the mutual revilings of the political parties. As a rule, however, there has been a tendency to curb them out of respect for the dead. This does not apply, however, to the Communists. Their organ, Rote Fahne, continues to pour out venom against Herr Ebert, whom it brands as the savior of capitalism and a henchman of the Dawes plan.

GERMAN ELECTION DAY CHANGED TO MARCH 29

BERLIN, March 3.—The unexpectedly early Presidential campaign forced upon Germany by President Ebert's death will reach its climax even earlier than was supposed. After a conference this morning between the Government and party leaders it was decided to hold the election on Sunday, March 29.

To be elected on this day a candidate must get an absolute majority; that is, more than half the total number of votes cast. Should no candidate obtain such a majority it is proposed to hold a second election on Sunday, April 26, where only a relative majority will be necessary. In other words, the candidate getting more votes than any other on that day will be Germany's next President.

Originally it was proposed to set the date for the second election nearer that of the first, but this was overridden because, of the three Sundays intervening between March 29 and April 26, the first is too soon anyhow for a second election, while the second, Palm Sunday, is a Protestant confirmation festival, and the third, known in Germany as "White Sunday," is a Catholic confirmation festival.

The Presidential campaign was officially launched today when the Minister of the Interior instructed the Government authorities throughout Germany to put the machinery into operation immediately for holding the election on March 29. They were instructed to have the voting lists ready March 16, or at the latest March 18. The lists for the last Reichstag election will be used again for the forthcoming Presidential election with corrections bringing them up to date.

The widespread idea that a special law was necessary for determining the election date proved erroneous today when it was announced that the Government would cut red tape by simply asking the Reichstag to set the election date. This will be a mere formality amounting to having the Reichstag confirm the date set this morning at the conference between the Government and party leaders.

All parties are pleased at the hurrying up of the election. Both the friends and foes of the German Republic decided immediately after President Ebert's death that the sooner the election was held the better it would be for their political ambitions. The underlying theory of this decision is that every day of delay will tend to foster discord in party ranks and make it more difficult for the factions to unite upon the choice of a candidate with a good chance of victory at the forthcoming election.

GERMAN EXPORTS EXCEEDED BY IMPORTS

BERLIN, March 3.—Germany's excess of imports over exports has risen with alarming steadiness since August, until last January it reached nearly 700,000,000 gold marks (about $170,000,000). The Industrie und Handels Zeitung, a newspaper devoted to economic, financial and commercial subjects, draws gloomy conclusions from these statistics.

Since Germany's capacity to pay reparations depends upon her showing an export surplus, declares the newspaper, the January deficit of exports as against imports might well be construed to mean forthcoming collapse. The worst part of the picture shown by the statistics, it continues, is that the decrease in exports has been so steady.

In the first month to show such a deficit—last September—exports lagged behind imports to the tune of 55,000,000 gold marks. Then they took a tremendous drop, registering the following successive monthly deficits in gold marks: October, 248,000,000; November, 404,000,000; December, 568,000,000, and January, 674,000,000.

The newspaper emphasizes what this means by pointing out that in the last pre-war year the value of German exports exceeded that of imports by more than 83,000,000 gold marks, and in 1923, despite the fact that Germany had suffered meanwhile defeat in the World War and assumed the Versailles Treaty burdens, her exports still slightly exceeded imports. Even as recently as July and August, 1924, there was a favorable export balance of 17,000,000 and 141,000,000 gold marks, respectively.

One of the worst things about the situation, continues the newspaper, is the alarming increase in German importations of manufactured products. Last January the value of these imported into Germany reached 255,000,000 gold marks, as against 109,000,000 gold marks in 1913 and 127,000,000 last October. Simultaneously German exports of manufactured goods are steadily decreasing.

Unnamed General Implicated in Case Against Lady Carnarvon's Husband.

LONDON, March 3.—Lieut.-Col. Ian Onslow Dennistoun, second husband of Almina, Countess of Carnarvon, who succeeded to her first husband's interests in the Tut-ankh-Amen tomb, is defendant in an action brought today by his first wife, Mrs. Dorothy Dennistoun, for sums she alleges she lent him or that he promised to give her in lieu of alimony in their divorce suit.

According to her counsel, when Colonel Dennistoun was in financial difficulties she appealed for aid to a General who is now dead and whose name the Judge permitted to be left unmentioned. Through the latter's influence Dennistoun in 1913 became Secretary of the Government of Jamaica and received staff appointments during the World War.

The result was, according to her counsel, that Mrs. Dennistoun lived with the General in Paris, not only with her husband's knowledge, but with his advice as to how to retain her hold over the General, the advice being conveyed in letters professing his own continued devotion to her.

Mrs. Dennistoun divorced the Colonel in France in May, 1921, and in December went to Egypt with the Earl and Countess of Carnarvon as their guest. The Colonel then brought his ex-wife certain articles which she had left behind in Paris, with the result that he met the Countess and married her after the death of the Earl.

The case is continuing.

ALBANIAN POLITICIAN ASSASSINATED IN ITALY

Fan-Noli's Finance Minister Is Shot by Countryman Who Aided Germany in War.

ROME, March 3.—The turbulent political situation in Albania has had an aftermath at Bari, where an Albanian subject by the name of Garakuchi, described as the right hand man of the dispossessed Premier, Bishop Fan Noli, and former Minister of Finance in Fan Noli's Cabinet, has been murdered by a fellow-countryman, apparently for political reasons.

As Garakuchi came out of a restaurant a poorly dressed man shouted a few excited phrases at him and suddenly fired three revolver shots in quick succession. M. Garakuchi died instantly.

The murderer was pursued and captured and recognized by the Italian police as an Albanian by the name of Nelson Scamola who had been involved in other criminal enterprises. The murdered man escaped from Albania with Fan Noli after Ahmet Zogu's successful counter-revolution and came to Italy. His assailant followed on Feb. 21. In the World War he was at one time in the custody of the Italian police on the charge of smuggling fuel to enemy submarines.

LONDON, March 3.—A verdict of suicide was returned today by the Coroner's jury at the inquest on the death of the Rev. W. G. G. Bettinson, who shot himself in the vicarage at Hungerton, Leicestershire, on Sunday, and was shot a second time by his sister, Dorothy Bettinson, because she wanted to end his pain.

The doctor whom Miss Bettinson called at the time of the tragedy testified that the wound in the vicar's head, which was unquestionably self-inflicted, would certainly have proved fatal within an hour and Mr. Bettinson was possibly dead before the second shot was fired.

The Coroner said all the evidence indicated that the second shot was fired by Miss Bettinson, who was insane at the time. The Coroner declared that if a person was so ill that he must die in a week or a month nobody would be justified in putting an end to his sufferings, but in this case he thought the jury, on the medical evidence, would be justified in returning a verdict of suicide.

LONDON, March 3.—Lord Reading, Viceroy of India, will return to England in April for a few months' leave. His departure is made possible by the Leave of Absence act passed last year. From an unbroken practice of 150 years the Viceroy could not return to Europe without vacating his appointment.

Lord Reading's return is said not to be due to any serious development in Indian politics. In fact, conditions have improved greatly since the beginning of his term, when the non-cooperation movement was at its height. But the Cabinet will consult him about important questions of Anglo-Indian policy now under consideration.

DOOM OF DEAUVILLE SEEN IN TAX PLAN

French Gambling Casinos Declare Chamber Vote Means Ruin to All of Them.

HAVE HOPE IN THE SENATE

Statement Says Tourists Left 204,000,000 Francs at Gaming Profits in 1924.

PARIS, March 3 (Associated Press).—Deauville is doomed and the destruction of Dinard ordained if Deputy Garat's amendment, voted recently by the Chamber of Deputies, raising the percentage accruing to the State Treasury from France's gambling casinos, should by chance pass the Senate, according to a declaration made today by Marcel Piquet, President of the Professional Syndicate of Authorized Casinos of France.

M. Piquet affirmed his faith, however, that the Senate would refuse "to kill the goose that lays the golden egg." His syndicate, he said, had addressed strong letters to members of the Senate and Chamber Finance Committees beseeching reconsideration.

When the Garat amendment was passed by the Chamber Feb. 27, it was shown that the gambling casinos had made profits of 204,000,000 francs in 1924, and that one casino alone had profited to the amount of 9,000,000 francs.

M. Piquet, in his statement, announced that the Showmen's Federation also had been moved to protest to the Government, inasmuch as if the Garat amendment should become law, it would bring about the unemployment of at least 10,000 federation members, and went on to say:

"Why, the Deauville Casino alone cashed 103,204,768 francs' worth of cheques last season, mostly from foreigners, who thus brought to France their foreign currency. The casinos constitute one of the main elements making France the world's playground. Without the tourist trade we will be unable even to approach paying our debts.

"But reassure your compatriots that we will be open for business just the same this year.

"Deauville, if the Garat project passes the upper house, would be forced to pay State and other levies amounting to 92 per cent. of the casino receipts, leaving a mere pittance with which to stage fêtes and present opera performances and gala soirees at the casino, while Dinard, where the local assessments are particularly high, would be in an intolerable position, its assessments reaching beyond its receipts by reason of the progressive scale of taxation now in force, which would be enhanced by the new proposal."

OUR RECOGNITION PREDICTED BY RYKOFF

Premier Tells Soviet Parliament That Treaty With Japan Brings It Nearer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TIFLIS, March 3.—In a long discourse today on the present international situation of the Soviet Union, Premier Rykoff reporting to the session of Parliament dealt with the problem of American relations with the Soviets which he said should now be considered in a new light in connection with the ratification of the treaty with Japan and the resignation of Secretary Hughes.

The Premier considered the treaty with Japan as the most important achievement of Soviet foreign policy, as the whole far east question might now be considered solved and Russia was sure of having there a safe border.

"Possibly the Hughes resignation might have only coincided in time with the conclusion of negotiations with Japan," he said, "but it is surely going to have its effect on the United States policy toward Russia.

"At one time it looked as if the Hughes policy of the isolation of Russia was going to succeed, but now America itself is the only isolated state. This is already felt in certain American industrial and financial circles and will soon be felt to a greater extent, as our economic relations with Japan are going to grow rapidly. Hence there is a marked change in public opinion. However, it is difficult to guess whether the present movement in America will soon result in direct recognition.

"As for Russia, let me express the wish that the United States should pass over as soon as possible to diplomatic and economic relations, as we have with it much common ground in the East, and America is so well developed industrially that we could learn much there."

M. Rykoff told the convention that the Soviets were already trading with America, and that the Russian textile factories were all the time working on American cotton.

Referring to the present relations with France, he said that despite recognition there were still a number of unsettled questions which demanded early settlement, chief among them the return of the Russian warships retained at Biserta, and the attitude toward Georgia.

He declared that the annulling of debts was a just act and the Government was unable to repeal it.

"The granting of loans to the Czar was a pure commercial business for war," he said. "France at the time looked upon the Russian army as its own northern wing. Russia lost in the field over 3,000,000 men as a result of the war and the intervention which was subventioned chiefly by France. The Russian nation was ruined economically. The question of recognition of debts should be discussed in a businesslike manner, as only by such a way is an agreement possible.

"The Russian war vessels should be returned unconditionally, as the retention of them deprives Russia of strength for national defense."

Referring to the debate in the French Chamber on Georgia, M. Rykoff said: "We shall never allow French public men or the League of Nations, which we never joined, to interfere with our internal affairs."

In conclusion he said there was little chance of Russia's obtaining a loan in the near future or of attracting sufficient foreign capital. The chief efforts of Soviet foreign policy, he declared, would be directed toward a campaign for peace.

WILL FIGHT LA FOLLETTE.

Wisconsin Republicans Plan an Intensive Campaign for Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

OSHKOSH, Wis., March 3.—Five hundred conservative Republicans completed plans today for the foundation of a "rejuvenated" Republican Party in Wisconsin, and formulated the strategy by which they hope to swing this State again into the party columns through the medium of an intensive campaign in 1926, when strictly Republican candidates will be endorsed for United States Senator and State officers.

The convention, representative delegates from every section of the State, adopted a constitution pledging adherence to the representative form of Government as outlined in the United States Constitution, and bitterly scored La Follettism, "extravagance" and "personal politics" in the State.

By a unanimous vote of the convention adopted a resolution praising the Republican organization in Congress for ousting La Follette Progressives from its conferences.

The probability of Governor J. J. Blaine's candidacy for the Senate in 1926 has given the State Republican leaders a double reason for an early organization and the perfection of plans to place a conservative Republican in the Senate.

EARL OXFORD CALLS FOR FACTS ON REICH

CURZON PROMISES FACTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—How, and how far, Great Britain will stand guarantee for the security of France, was the question which lay behind a debate in the House of Lords today, and will be more thoroughly thrashed out in the Commons on Thursday when Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, will be called upon to give more explicit details respecting the policy which he is understood to be advocating in the Cabinet councils.

Lord Oxford, making his maiden speech in the Lords today, put questions regarding publication of the Inter-allied Commission's report on German disarmament. He disclaimed any intention of embarrassing the Government. His questions, he said, did not relate to the problem of the security of France. He recognized that the uneasy feeling that existed in that country was justified perhaps by the failure of the Anglo-Franco-American compact engrossed by President Wilson to materialize.

The rest of his speech was concerned directly with the point of the British evacuation of Cologne. The gist of Lord Oxford's argument on this point was as follows: Under the Treaty of Versailles Great Britain was prima facie obliged to evacuate Cologne unless Germany could be shown to have been unfaithful in discharge of her undertakings as to disarmament. In March, 1923, the British Government had twice assured the House of Commons that Germany was effectively disarmed. What had happened to change that view?

Must Show Changed Situation.

It had to be shown that the situation had changed, that Germany's default had been substantial and deliberate and that Great Britain had allowed for her necessity to increase her safeguards against internal disorders. The only way to prove this was to publish the reasons for remaining in the occupied territory.

The report which alone could give those reasons had been sent to the Versailles Committee and thence transferred to that body of vague authority and sporadic vitality, the Conference of Ambassadors. When would all this mediation produce a positive and public result?

Lord Oxford begged the Lords to recall his past record and give him credence for speaking as a friend of France.

Lord Curzon, replying for the Government, spoke in characteristic vein. Even the Parliamentary correspondent of the London Times refers to his "majestic affability." His argument was that "the Government was so conscious of founding their decision upon really important grounds that it would not publish the whole report, which dealt indiscriminately with unimportant and important allegations of Germany's default." But with the consent of the Allies, added Lord Curzon, the British Government would publish all the main facts.

Lord Curzon's statement on this point requires to be quoted in full. He said:

"His Majesty's Government is of the opinion that the decision of so grave a nature as the retention of their troops in Cologne for a further period, if it is to be taken, should be taken only on matters of real importance. Therefore it appears to us that considerable embarrassment might be caused if we were to publish to the world a voluminous list of minor reflections to which the allied Governments might not be disposed to attach decisive importance when coming to a decision with regard to evacuation. I hold the strong personal opinion that publication of the report would render a pacific solution of the question much less likely.

"It is for these reasons that His Majesty's Government could not propose to their allies—and publication must be in accordance with allied decision—that the report should be published."

Question of French Security.

As The London Times says editorially, the most important part of Lord Oxford's maiden speech in the Lords was his reference to the security of France. This paper, which has now reverted to its pristine tradition of supporting the existing Government with reservation of the right of independent criticism, says:

"Lord Oxford expressed his belief that there was now ground for devising the substitution of a more comprehensive pact than the tripartite pact between France, Britain and the United States, and his hope that the statesmanship of Europe and the world would soon prove their capacity to achieve it."

The London Times editorial proceeds to suggest that this "hope and belief" lie in the fact that "Germany has approached the Governments of Paris, Brussels, Rome and London with the intimation that she is willing to discuss the formation of a quadruple compact on the basis of the frontiers set up by the Treaty of Versailles."

Chancellor Cuno's proposals along these lines broke down because of the absolute refusal of France to consider any arrangement that left her Polish ally without a guarantee. Germany's new proposals are stated to include one providing for the submission to arbitration of all disputes between Germany and Poland and Czechoslovakia. The League of Nations is suggested as the arbitral body.

There is nothing to indicate that these proposals have yet taken more than a very tentative and indefinite form and French agreement is considered here as highly unlikely to be so easily forthcoming as would be necessary to insure the success of what has been alleged by Mr. Chamberlain's policy.

Next Thursday's debate in the Commons is expected to furnish a clearer indication of the British Government's foreign policy than was suggested in the alleged memorandum to the Cabinet issued from the Foreign Office which was declared today officially to be nothing more than an individual opinion.

Memorandum's Plan Opposed.

"After the experience we had of the Continental Allies during the last four or five years it will be difficult to persuade the British people, to say nothing of the people of the Dominions, that after paying all we owe, after foregoing much that is owed us, it is neither our duty nor our interest to mortgage our future resources and the blood of succeeding generations in order to seek a security that would be much better assured by merely requiring that France and Germany, instead of spending money on armaments and military ambitions, should honestly meet their respective obligations."

"If Mr. Chamberlain has not learned by this time that the people of Britain will refuse utterly to confirm any arrangement of this kind involving a military obligation he is not fit to continue in the office of Foreign Secretary.

"If there is one thing less conceivable than that we should be ready to entangle ourselves in defense of French interests in Eastern Europe, it is that without reference to the League of Nations we should engage our forces to defend Germany against supposed French aggression.

"It is a proposition which has only to be mentioned to be dismissed from the mind as outside the range of practical politics. British statesmen who ignore this central fact are simply blinding themselves to the realities of the situation."

In re-emphasizing the fact that the British Government has not yet made up its mind on the subject of a substitute compact for the Geneva protocol the Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent says there are three rival schools of thought that may roughly be classified as follows: One favoring a direct compact with France and Belgium, the second favoring a policy of isolation without any commitment or entanglements in Europe and the third favoring a mutual compact between Britain, France, Belgium, Italy and Germany.

The correspondent says the views of the first school are credibly believed to be those of Mr. Chamberlain and a section of his advisors and a few of his colleagues. The views of the Isolationist School are said to be supported by only a small minority of ministers. The third school is believed to claim a majority of the Cabinet, including most of its leading figures and Lord Balfour.

"It is significant," adds the correspondent, "that not one of these three schools of thought is prepared to guarantee in any practical manner the frontiers of Poland Czechoslovakia. The first would guarantee those of France and Belgium and the inviolability of an agreed demilitarized zone on the Rhine. The third might include an Italo-German boundary."

Advocates no Commitments.

The Daily Express says:

"It is gravely suggested that we should enter into a treaty with France guaranteeing her against a German invasion. We are also told that we must have an air force as strong as the strongest continental power, namely, France. At the same time France will be free to spend all the money she owes to us on armaments which may be directed against us as well as against Germany.

"There would be no security for Britain in such a pact. We should be pledging ourselves to maintain the military supremacy of France for generations and in addition we should be sentencing our own people to bear the burden of the old war debts incurred on behalf of France. This would break our back.

"The only safe course is for Britain to follow the example of America and reduce our continental commitments to zero. We cannot pawn either our blood or our resources to France or any other country.

"There is only one method of preventing another war. It is simple. Let France spend her wealth on paying what she owes and let Germany do likewise. We cannot finance their feud. If they choose to prolong their feud, we must disentangle ourselves and our dominions from it."

The Asquithian Westminster Gazette condemns the Government decision to withhold from publication the report on German disarmament and the evidence whereon they acted in refusing to withdraw the British troops from Cologne, and continues:

"We can hardly overrate the gravity of continuing on that course of irresponsible pandering to French fears which once more have betrayed us into an action that appears to be indefensible. If there is evidence to justify our action in refusing to evacuate the Cologne Bridgehead, our safety, almost as much as our honor, demands it should be made public."

The Daily Telegraph, while recognising that a regional compact between Britain, France and Belgium, and possibly Holland, might help to maintain peace in Western Europe, opposes the idea of any compact whereby Britain would be required to assist in guaranteeing the peace in Eastern Europe, saying:

"Nothing is more certain than that British public opinion could not be brought round by any argument to agree to maintain the existing frontiers of Poland by force of arms. That is wholly outside the ambit of Britain and still further outside the ambit of the Dominions. Indeed it still remains to be revealed whether the Dominions would pledge themselves to any pact at all as far as the continent of Europe is concerned."

FLEET OF 'INVADERS' PREPARES TO STRIKE

Two Destroyers in Defensive Screen in Pacific Are Slightly Damaged in Collision.

ABOARD U. S. S. SEATTLE, March 3 (Associated Press).—The Black fleet of fifty-two warships, represented in manoeuvres as an invading fleet convoying a train of supply ships to capture a base of operations off the Lower California coast, today is getting into battle formation for its dash to the objective. Secrecy shields its movements.

The Blue fleet, a defensive force of fifty-eight warships, is spreading a network over the waters off the Mexican coast in order to locate, intercept and destroy the Black fleet.

Battle conditions prevail on board all these ships, in this the first step in the greatest series of peacetime manoeuvres ever held in the Pacific. The grim hunt, day and night, is on. Scouting forces of the Black fleet, comprised of airplanes and destroyers, are on the alert to guard the pathway it has chosen to the objective. The Black fleet is hampered in mobility, since it cannot move faster than the slow-moving supply craft it is convoying.

DESTROYER BASE, SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 3.—The destroyers Percival and Chase, operating in the defensive screen of the Black Fleet in manoeuvres off the coast here, were in collision today, but were able to resume operations with the fleet, as they were only slightly damaged.

The aircraft carrier Langley, which yesterday was in collision with the destroyer Robert Smith, was not damaged. The Robert Smith returned to the base here with bow plates stove in as a result of the crash.

$1.75 WOOLEN DIVIDEND COMES FROM SURPLUS

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 3.—Weathering a cross-examination by a group of small stockholders at the annual meeting of the American Woolen Company today, President Andrew G. Pierce emerged with most of them apparently firm in the belief that better times are ahead for the company. He answered many questions about the management of the company, promised to remedy a few conditions complained of and spurned any criticism of former President William M. Wood.

"I am a manufacturer and not a farmer," Mr. Pierce told the stockholders when questioned about farm property held by the company. He said that the company owns seven or eight farms and all are operated at a loss.

"You can rest assured," he continued, "that the American Woolen Company will not long be in the farm business. My aim is to make money in the textile business."

The profit and loss statement showed a manufacturing loss of $4,025,865, which, with dividends on common, preferred and subsidiary stocks and an allowance of $2,816,565 for depreciation, reduced the surplus of $34,067,736, as of Dec. 31, 1923, to $22,127,356, as of Dec. 31, 1924.

The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock, payable April 15, to stockholders of record March 16, was declared. It was admitted that this dividend was being paid from surplus.

Henry P. Binney and Frederick R. Edington, both of Boston, were re-elected directors for three years. All other officers were returned without change. The directors re-elected Mr. Pierce as President.

PRISONERS TAKEN IN TAXI ROUND-UP

30 CABS ARE ABANDONED

Fifteen Thousand Taxis and Their Chauffeurs to Be Examined in Crusade.

The second police round-up of taxicabs, which started at 11 o'clock Monday night, continued yesterday. Late last night four taxicab drivers had been arrested for operating without licenses, three robbery suspects had been taken into custody and a chauffeur seized in connection with an attack on a girl by the detectives and uniformed policemen engaged in the crusade against unlicensed and undesirable taxicab drivers.

The first round-up came about two weeks ago as the result of the fatal shooting of Denis J. Kenny by an unlicensed taxi chauffeur. It resulted in the arrest of a score or more unlicensed drivers and the issuance of nearly a thousand summonses.

The new drive was instituted shortly before midnight Monday night without warning. Practically the entire detective division has taken part in the dragnetting, as well as a large portion of the uniformed force. In order to prevent the warning from reaching the unlicensed drivers they were seeking, Deputy Chief Inspector Thomas Fay gave no indication as to the duty of the detectives whom he ordered to report at precincts Monday night.

Just as the theatres were emptying the detectives started their work. The suddenness with which the drive commenced caused more than thirty drivers to abandon their cabs, evidently in fear of arrest either for operating without licenses or because they were being sought for other crimes. The cabs were found in the streets in many sections of the city.

Police to Examine 15,000 Cabs.

The round-up will last until midnight tonight, and by that time the police expect to inspect almost all of the 15,000 or more taxicabs in the city, as well as their drivers, to see that they are properly licensed. The exact figures on the arrests made and the summonses issued will not be made public by the Police Department until the drive has been completed.

Special attention has been paid to the theatre district and Greenwich Village, the lower Bronx and Harlem. Because of the cold weather early yesterday morning few cabs were cruising, and the police failed to seize as many violators as they had expected. A uniformed patrolman accompanied most of the detectives, Because in the first round-up drivers refused to halt when ordered by plainclothes officers, perhaps suspecting robbery. Those taxicabs found to be fully licensed were supplied with pasters and allowed to proceed.

The three robbery suspects were picked up in Columbus Circle last night by Detectives Hoffman, Reilly and Foray of the Bomb Squad, who had been detailed for the round-up. They were Samuel Trauiss, 864 Second Avenue; Nathan Salro, 340 East Forty-seventh Street, and John Musunice, 210 West Sixty-ninth Street. They were taken to Police Headquarters on suspicion of being the men who held up Nathan Nafhilowitz in a cigar store at 1,841 Broadway last Sunday morning and escaped with $300.

Held as Robber Suspects.

The detectives had been inspecting chauffeurs passing through the Circle, when they saw a cab pull up at the curb and the three men alight. One went into a drugstore, while the others waited near the cab. The detectives questioned the driver, found him fully licensed and then searched the two who had got out. On Musunice, they said they found a pistol. They took all three into custody because they answered the description of the men wanted for the hold-up.

While Patrolman William Smyth was on inspection duty at Fourth Avenue and Ninety-third Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning he stopped a cab operated by William J. Reilly, 98 Second Place, Brooklyn. As he looked over the driver's licenses he saw a young woman in the rear. She was hysterical. After being questioned by the policeman she said that she was Miss Margaret Barth of 605 Fifty-first Street, Brooklyn.

She told the policeman that she hired Reilly to drive her to her home after she had finished her work as a waitress in a restaurant at 583 Henry Street. Artey they had gone a few blocks, she said, he stopped the cab and tried to attack her. He desisted only when she screamed and fainted, she said. Reilly was held in $7,500 bail in the Fifth Avenue Court.

The drive had hardly started Monday night when William Guy, a negro, of 24 West 135th Street, was arrested for not having a hack book or an owner's license for his taxicab. Policeman McLaughlin took him into custody at Third Avenue and Forty-second Street.

Thomas McElroy of 508 West 128th Street was arrested at First Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street for operating without a license. Magistrate August Glatzmayer fined him $10 on his arraignment in Harlem Court. Richard Fleugel, 321 St. Mark's Place, was arrested at First Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street by Policeman Dilworth, detailed for inspection duty. In Yorkville Court he was fined $10 by Magistrate Corrigan for not having an operator's license.

Detectives Rutland, Winkleman and Spellain of the Homicide Squad arrested a man who said he was Frank Carnesi of 1,122 Second Avenue, at First Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. He was charged with having in his possession a stolen taxicab and operating it without a license. Jesse Donnell of 1,113 First Avenue, the owner of the taxicab, said that the prisoner was not the man who had rented the car from him.

KIND WATCHMAN A SUICIDE.

Friend of the Poor, Who Gave Away Milk at Abattoir, Found Dead.

"Grandpa Ike" Pickard, an Alsatian, 70 years old, who worked as a night watchman and who was known and loved for his kindliness and generosity throughout the whole stockyard district, was found dead yesterday in the abattoir of Hamburger & Weil, 346 Johnson Avenue, Brooklyn, where he had been employed for years. He had apparently committed suicide during the night.

Joseph Weil, junior partner of Hamburger & Weil, said that yesterday was "cattle day," so he had to be around early. He found the yard gate locked, and getting no answer to his calls he got Patrolman O'Brien and they broke open the door of the office. Pickard was found on the floor dead, with a piece of rubber tubing connected with a gas fixture in his mouth and the gas turned on.

No reason is known for the man's action. He had many friends, especially among the children of the district. One of his prerogatives as night watchman was the milk of the cattle that were driven to be slaughtered. This he gave to the poor children. He had no relatives in this country.

Rockefeller Aids Swedish Farmers.

STOCKHOLM, March 3.—To promote further the educational movement among the young people living on the farms in Sweden, the American Rockefeller Foundation has announced its intention to donate the sum of $5,000. The movement is designed to provide better educational facilities for the outlying agricultural districts.

TWO DEFENDANTS LEFT IN THE STOKES TRIAL

Judge Declares Nugent, Stokes's Former Attorney, Is Innocent of Conspiracy Charge.

CHICAGO, March 3 (Associated Press).—An attempt by the defense to destroy the Stokes conspiracy case by eliminating all defendants except W. E. D. Stokes, charged with conspiring with other co-defendants to defame Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes, his estranged wife, was partly successful today.

Daniel F. Nugent of New York, Stokes's former attorney, will be excluded because the State has failed to implicate him, Judge W. N. Gemmill said, after motions by Nugent's attorney. Judge Gemmill also indicated that he might exclude the evidence against Mrs. Hattie Johnson, one of the negro defendants, but refused to eliminate Robert Lee, another negro, and the fourth defendant.

Had he eliminated Lee, defense attorneys maintained that the conspiracy case would have been the only defendant left, and his counsel maintain that it takes more than one to make a conspiracy. The elimination of Nugent and the expected elimination of Mrs. Johnson leave only Stokes and Lee on trial. Two others who were indicted were granted severances and, while they testified for the State, they refused to incriminate themselves in the alleged conspiracy. A seventh man who was indicted has never been apprehended.

Judge Gemmill said he would issue the formal ruling in the cases of Nugent and Mrs. Johnson tomorrow.

The State closed its case today and the motion to dismiss the case against Lee and Mrs. Johnson was made unexpectedly by Stokes's attorney, who apparently had been uninterested in a similar motion in behalf of Nugent. The Judge had just indicated that he would grant in effect, if not in form, the motion of Nugent's attorney that "all the State's evidence be stricken out and disregarded so far as Nugent is concerned. After Nugent's attorneys had pointed out that only six of the State's witnesses had referred to Nugent at all, and none of them had given incriminating evidence, Judge Gemmill indicated his decision, after which W. W. Smith, Assistant State's Attorney, remarked:

"I respect your Honor's courage."

"I'm not concerned with whether I have courage or whether my courage is respected," Judge Gemmill retorted, scowling and striking the bench. "I'm not thinking of courage at all. I'm thinking of my duty, and my duty is to protect the innocent as well as to promote the punishment of the guilty.

"I am satisfied that this young lawyer, Nugent, is entirely innocent. I consider it a good deal of an outrage that a man should be taken from the bar and dragged into a case of this kind upon such flimsy testimony."

Stokes is expected to be the first witness in his own behalf tomorrow. The State rested after Mrs. Alice Smith Ewing, a girlhood friend of Mrs. Stokes, had testified about pictures which the State maintains Stokes tried to prove were taken in the Everleigh Club, a notorious Chicago resort of two decades ago. The pictures, which showed Mrs. Stokes in various poses were taken in National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Md., near Washington, the witness said.

JUSTICE HOWARD RESIGNS.

Finding $10,000 Salary Low After 23 Years, He Will Practice Law.

ALBANY, March 3.—Supreme Court Justice Wesley O. Howard of Troy today resigned, declaring that he found it difficult to "get along on the salary of a Supreme Court Justice" and that he planned to resume the practice of law.

Justice Howard had been on the bench continuously since 1902 and his term would not have expired until Jan. 31, 1930.

He filed his resignation today in the office of the Secretary of State and then left the Capitol, saying the $10,000 salary of a Supreme Court Justice today was no better than $6,000 before the war and scarcely in keeping with the necessities of the office.

3 KILLED, 1 INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

DRIVER HURT IN COLLISION

Alvah S. H. Innes, 7 years old, of 172 Brinckerhoff Street, Ridgefield Park, was coasting on a toy express wagon yesterday afternoon down the automobile driveway beside a house in Laurel Street, a block from his home, when he was run over by an automobile passing in the street and received injuries from which he died soon after his arrival at the Hackensack Hospital. Homer M. Ross, 20 years old, son of Harlan P. Ross, Borough Clerk of Bogota, who was driving the car, was arrested on a technical manslaughter charge and released in $2,500 bail pending an investigation of the accident.

Herman Engler, 61 years old, Bellevue Hospital's locksmith, was killed yesterday when, on his way to the hospital from his home at 82 Lexington Avenue, he attempted to jump on to the running board of a motor truck, slipped and fell under a rear wheel. The truck, which was owned by the Stokes Coal Company, Hudson River and Thirtieth Street, was being operated by Richard Mooney, 31 years old, of 1,104 Park Avenue, Hoboken. He later was held in $5,000 bail for examination on March 12 when he was arraigned before Magistrate Frederick B. House in the Homicide Court.

A motor truck alleged to have been driven by Richard Snyder of 501 Grand Avenue, Englewood, struck and killed Daniel Tarrant, 62, of 280 Ninth Street, Jersey City, at Erie and Ninth Streets, Jersey City, yesterday. Judge O'Driscoll in Criminal Court held Snyder without bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter.

Firemen and emergency crews of the New York Railways Company and the Consolidated Gas Company yesterday afternoon worked for more than half an hour to rescue Alexander Baris from the wreckage of his automobile, which had been crushed between two surface cars at Broadway and Twenty-fifth Street. An engine company and the emergency crews were summoned when it was found the man could not be freed without jacking the cars.

Baris, whose home is at 143 Maple Avenue, Patchogue, L. I., had driven past a stalled northbound car, when his automobile was struck by a southbound car and wedged between both vehicles. Policeman John Schultz of the Simpson Street Station, in the Bronx, was a passenger on the southbound car, and fragments from the wreckage of the automobile struck him on the right arm. When Baris had been released from the wreckage a physician and the policeman were taken to New York Hospital, Baris having received cuts and abrasions on the head, body and legs.

The accident happened at 1:20 P. M., and it was forty minutes before traffic on that part of Broadway was resumed. Arthur Kornicek, motorman of the southbound surface car, was alleged to have told the police that Baris drove his automobile in front of his car a reflection of the sun from the street struck the motorman in the eyes and momentarily blinded him.

PHYSICIAN IS CHARGED WITH KILLING DAUGHTER

DENVER, Col., March 3.—First degree murder charges today were filed against Dr. Harold E. Blazer, a retired physician at Littleton, near here, in connection with the death of his invalid and deformed daughter, Hazel Blazer, aged 32. He is alleged to have ended her life by chloroforming her while Roy E. Bishop, his son-in-law, and Mrs. Bishop, another daughter, with whom they lived, were absent from the house.

Dr. Blazer is in a hospital, apparently recovering from what his brother-in-law, R. E. Bishop, said were three attempts to end his own life. Twice the doctor took poison, Bishop told the authorities, and the third attempt was made by slashing his throat.

"The details of that afternoon," said the physician, "when my daughter was found dead in bed beside me, are not clear. I cannot seem to recall any of the happenings of that day.

"I loved the girl dearly and had no reason for taking her life, and if I am responsible for her death I murdered her in a fit of temporary insanity."

Dr. Blazer said he had been subject recently to temporary memory lapses, and for that reason had given up his practice. He said that during his professional career he had known persons who would have been better off had they died in their infancy, but said he had never felt that way about his daughter.

In a note written before his daughter's death the physician indicated that he intended taking her life so that she would not be left alone in the world without the care and attention she needed.

$20,875 MORE FOR HOSPITAL

Presbyterian Women Announce Gifts—Total Reaches $2,295,000.

The Women's Committee of the Presbyterian Hospital Building Fund held a meeting and luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Biltmore, gifts aggregating $20,875 to their fund were announced. Nearly $2,295,000 has been raised by the three committees of the Building Fund toward the $4,500,000 sought to complete the Presbyterian Hospital's section of the $10,000,000 Medical Centre building now under construction at Broadway and 168th Street.

Among the gifts announced yesterday were: Mrs. George W. McLanahan of Washington, D. C., $5,000, in memory of her son, George Xavier McLanahan; Bayard Dominick, $5,000; Charles A. Wimpfheimer, $5,000; Miss Annie Stone, $1,000; Mrs. John S. Rogers, $1,000; Arthur Choate, $250; Mrs. William C. Peyton, $100; Mrs. Henry Gray, $100; Robert Hill, $100; Edmund L. Kiely, $125.

Miss Anna C. Maxwell, Honorary Chairman of the nurses' division of the committee, announced that the nurses would continue their campaign until their quota of $500,000 was reached. They have raised $169,322 in three weeks. The next report of the nurses' division will be made at a dinner tomorrow night at the Vanity Fair Tea Room. The next meeting of the Women's Committee will take place next Tuesday at the Biltore at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Linzee Blagden, Chairman, presided at the meeting yesterday.

Seek Man, 60, Missing 2 Weeks.

The police were asked yesterday to send out a general alarm for Joseph Newton, 60 years old, of 767 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn, who, according to relatives, has been missing since Feb. 18. He had been in ill health for two years. His wife is said to be ill as a result of his disappearance. Newton is about five feet six inches tall, slightly stoop-shouldered and has gray hair, a closely cropped gray mustache and brown eyes.

"He happens to be a brother of the Mayor's son-in-law," was the reply.

"But he was in the company before you came, was he not?"

"No, he was not," answered the Yellow Taxi President and there was laughter among the taxi men.

Mr. McGuirk explained after the meeting that he referred to C. J. Sinnott, who is a brother of John F. Sinnott, the Mayor's secretary and son-in-law. He said he held the position of assistant traffic manager with the company.

Reveals Other Connections.

"The State has an adequate bond provided by a reputable company," he replied.

"What is the company?"

"The Fidelity and Casualty Company."

"Who is the broker?"

"Sinnott and Canty," he replied.

James P. Sinnott, another brother of the Mayor's secretary, is President and treasurer of this firm, which has offices at 90 Maiden Lane.

Yesterday's hearing virtually took the form of a continuous denunciation of the Yellow Taxicab Corporation by the independent owners and representatives who formed almost the entire audience, and at whose request the hearing had been held.

The first charge was that inspections by the Bureau of Licenses of Yellow taxicabs were made in the garage of that concern while independent owners had to wait in line at the bureau's laboratory for their turn.

License Commissioner Quigley was asked if this were true and he said it was, adding it was done to relieve congestion by keeping the big fleet of Yellow cars out of the line.

John A. Gillegan, an independent driver, said he had often seen Yellow cabs without the medallions attached to their meters to show they had been through the license bureau.

"I'd be taken up by the police for that," he said.

L. J. Canvin, who said he was an independent owner, read off license numbers of several Yellow taxicabs which he said had not complied with the law in important respects and yet were allowed to keep running.

Favored in Crusade, He Says.

Philip J. O'Brien, President of the Amalgamated Taxi Association, said that in the recent crusade against taxicabs favoritism was shown the Yellows.

"Every policeman was passing up the Yellow taxicabs," he declared.

The one thing on which the independents and the representatives of the Yellow Taxicab Corporation present agreed upon was opposition to the proposal to reduce the maximum taxicab rate to 40 cents for the first mile and 30 cents for succeeding ones. They said the present low rates as a result of the rate war were not profitable.

Besides the reduced rate, other changes in the law the committee had before it were better illumination of taximeters at night, the increase of fines and prison terms for violation of hacking ordinances, an increased license fee and the imposition of a fee for meter inspection. The committee adjourned until Friday without taking formal action on these questions.

Gets $5,000 for Injury by Auto.

Carrie Zwergel, aged 23, of 38 Eighty-sixth Street, Woodhaven, L. I., got a verdict of $5,000 yesterday in Queens Supreme Court against James Meyer of 107 East Avenue, Long Island City, and the Mills & Gibbs Company, wholesale dry goods merchants of 286 Fourth Avenue, Manhattan. Miss Zwergel was injured at Woodhaven July 20, 1922, when struck by an automobile belonging to the Mills & Gibbs Company, which was being driven by Meyer. The company claimed that Meyer was driving without permission, but the verdict was jointly against both defendants.

BUSES IN 90 DAYS PROMISE BY HYLAN

Legislature, will give to the city—in fact, to every city in the State—the power to own and operate its own system or systems, line or lines of street surface transportation by buses or trackless trolleys; and can be placed upon the statute books within a thirty-day period.

If that be done the Administration of the City of New York will appropriate $25,000,000 for municipal bus installation and will have, within a ninety-day period, fleets of commodious, modern omnibuses upon the streets of the city, providing adequate surface transportation for the people. We are prepared to proceed the moment the Legislature vests us with the power so to do.

The Board of Transportation has already submitted a comprehensive report upon the bus situation. It has analyzed eighty applications for omnibus franchises submitted by fifty-two applicants to cover 113 routes in different boroughs. The approximate cost of equipment and the cost of operation and upkeep of each individual route have also been studied. The bus plan of this board supplements the city's plan for a new and independent subway system.

Our attempt to initiate a municipal bus system was prevented by the injunction which Mr. William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens' Union and a traction sympathizer, secured the very day the Board of Estimate, under the powers assumed to be resident in the city by the Home Rule Constitutional Amendment and Enabling Act appropriated $135,000 for an initial municipal bus line on Eighty-sixth Street, Manhattan.

So great is the present emergency that regardless of any personal or official feelings in the premises, the right of the traveling public to immediate surface transportation relief must be considered paramount to every other consideration.

Pleads for Walker-Block Bill.

To obviate delay, to make certain the right of the city to engage in municipal bus operation and to provide immediate surface transportation relief, the City Administration caused the Walker-Block bill to be introduced. This bill should be enacted in the interest of the traveling public in the City of New York.

The only interests opposed to it are the traction corporations, the Wall Street financiers and the public utility profiteers and their friends.

The traction corporations are determined to seize the municipal bus franchises. They are determined to exploit this new source of huge revenue. If the bus franchises and the new subway lines now being constructed by the city can be taken over by these corporations they will have an absolutely complete monopoly of the transportation facilities of the City of New York and will hold the people in traction bondage for generations to come.

It is well known to the people of this city how the B. M. T. insisted in court proceedings in Brooklyn, the I. R. T. directly or indirectly, in Manhattan, and the Third Avenue line in the Bronx, to stop the operation of the municipally supervised bus lines which we had initiated.

These transit corporations were not opposed to bus service itself but merely to municipal operation of such service. They wanted the bus franchises for themselves. They are today the outspoken champions of bus service, but a bus service privately operated by themselves. They are still the bitter opponents of a bus service municipally owned and operated. They are now holding out their hands for the franchises. Some are ready to promise arbitrary to get these franchises. Undoubtedly they do this because past experience has demonstrated that in the event of possible trouble nothing will stand in the way of their rushing to the Federal Courts or to other judicial bodies to escape their contract obligations and to be extricated from any difficulty.

We are unalterably opposed to the installation of a bus system that is to become part and parcel of the present private traction monopoly with its burdens and obligations which would be promptly saddled upon bus operation, were it swept into their grasp. Our plan is to operate buses for the benefit of the people and not for the benefit of the traction corporations which would exploit them and use their revenues to pay dividends on obsolete elevated lines and milked-dry surface car lines, which, because of the wretched, unsafe and inadequate service rendered, have ceased to be as profitable as in days gone by.

Would Put Profits Into a Fund.

Our plan, further, is to have the substantial returns from bus operation devoted to the creation of a fund which will make possible necessary extensions to the modern, popular means of transportation.

Records disclose that for some years past there has been no increase in the facilities provided by the surface car companies. The tremendous growth in population—over six hundred thousand since 1918—a population larger than that of Albany, Rochester, Schenectady, Elmira and Oswego combined, and the opening of new residential areas have not been provided for in any way by the surface car companies. On the contrary, there has been a dwindling of service and a complete stoppage of some lines. Surface car mileage has steadily decreased with corresponding diminution of service.

We are building subways, although the power to lay out and construct additional subways with available city funds and credit was granted to us only about seven months ago. The Board of Transportation, proceeding with all speed consistent with careful study and engineering explorations, has adopted and submitted to the Board of Estimate comprehensive routes and plans for the construction of new subways, its component parts to be constructed in the order of their adaptability; to meet the city's most pressing needs for service and laid out so that they may be operated as an independent rapid transit system for the service and profit of the people. Several subway routes have already been adopted for the Borough of Manhattan. These routes, together with those previously approved by the Board of Estimate, will form part of a city-wide system of rapid transit lines independently operated by the city.

A portion of the new subway system is actually under construction since last August, at 175d Street and Fort Washington Avenue, where the road will be under Public School 178, to be built on that corner. Contracts for the construction of two sections of the Washington Heights line from 112th to 180th Street on Eighth Avenue and St. Nicholas Avenue have been awarded. Contracts for other continuing sections, both north of 180th Street and south of 112th Street, will follow successively. The subway system which we are now proceeding to build will solve the transit problem in a broad way, provision being made for future as well as present needs.

Suggestions that the projected subways of the city's independent system from upper Manhattan and from other boroughs might be connected with the existing privately operated trunk lines traversing the central section of Manhattan were rejected. The city will not link up its independent system with the present privately operated, monopoly controlled traction lines. The best engineering thought is adverse to the introduction of more traffic into the existing lines for the very patent reason that it would add to the existing congestion and create conditions still more intolerable, if that were possible, during certain hours of the day.

We have always regarded the dual subway contracts as a bad business investment for the city. The B. R. T. and B. T. have not been good partners. It would be the worst possible kind of folly to put more money into an enterprise with partners who took all the profits of an enterprise and refused even to give the service which they had contracted to give. We do not want to, nor will we, extend this one-sided partnership.

Feeders to Subways Needed.

The subway is the best type of service for long-haul and rapid operation. There must, however, be attractive feeding connections between the rapid transit lines and those areas inconvenient of access to them, as well as to provide comfortable means of transportation for short hauls on the surface of the streets and to meet the public preference, so unmistakably demonstrated, for motor bus service. In laying our routes for bus lines the Board of Transportation has given consideration to the right of the existing transit companies, competition with them being avoided as much as minimized, parallel service being provided in such cases only where and to the extent that such parallel service will be given in tapping territory not at present satisfactorily served or wholly unprovided for.

Our investigation of the motor bus situation has disclosed some pertinent facts that may be briefly summarized:

That a general system of motor buses of the most improved type, operated in lieu of moribund street car lines, can meet satisfactorily the existing and prospective surface transportation needs of the city;

That bus service is less dangerous than street railway service;

That it would cause materially less traffic congestion than is now caused by surface cars, and aid in the solution of a traffic problem now taxing the ingenuity of the city to its utmost;

That it would afford a more flexible service in that bus movements are unrestricted by tracks and could be changed at any time for either temporary or permanent changes in traffic requirements;

That it would be far superior to street car service from the standpoint of comfort to passengers;

That it would afford a more rapid service than street cars;

That the total investment required for such a system would be materially less than the Transit Commission's valuation of existing street railroad facilities;

That the motor bus is a facility which has been thoroughly tried out, has handled a large volume of traffic rapidly and comfortably and with a high degree of safety, and has proved popular with the people of the city.

The city-wide bus system has not long since been put in operation because the traction companies and their sympathizers have prevented such installation.

Doubts the City's Power.

The Corporation Counsel has advised the city authorities that there is a grave question, in his opinion, of the power of the city to establish, maintain and operate bus lines within the city under the existing law. Pursuant to that opinion we have repeatedly applied to each Legislature as far back as 1920 and up to this very session for the enactment of a law empowering the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to determine whether it is for the interest of the public that bus lines for the conveyance of transportation of passengers should be established in the city, and to establish the routes therefor with power to appropriate money for the acquisition of buses and car equipment required for the operation of bus lines which the city had determined to establish.

The Legislature persistently refused to enact the bills as presented. On Jan. 15, 1925, I addressed a letter to the members of the Legislature urging their cooperation in pushing to passage the city's bus bill. Today we appear before the Legislature requesting that the necessary legislation be enacted so that bus service may be promptly given to the city. The Walker-Block bill vests power in the city to operate buses municipally. The people want bus service; and we want to give it to them.

There is little to be gained by comparisons of private and public operation. We have all said that privately operated with an efficiency that took into account solely the financial viewpoint of the operators. The dominant fact is that the sole purpose of the private operator of any utility is to make money and to make it plentifully, the character of the service rendered being but a secondary consideration.

It is futile to argue that the motives of the private operator are consistent with the public interest. It is just as futile to allege that the State regulatory commissions will compel private operators to provide the service called for by law and contract. The service on the existing lines in the City of New York which are privately operated is in violation of the Public Service Commission's law and the contracts with the operators. The Transit Commission is empowered and charged by law with the duty of having that service kept up to legal and contractual requirements, but the service on the existing privately operated transit lines beggars all description. The Transit Commission persists in spending its time trying to foist upon the people of the City of New York from $500,000,000 to $600,000,000 of traction properties, much of which is ready for the scrap heap.

The Transit Commission failed in its effort to buy for the city at a cost of hundreds of millions of dollars traction properties, many of which were an obsolete type of transportation, primarily because of the opposition of the City Administration and the public resentment against the proposed extortion, in the face of which the Transit Commission, acting in the interest of the traction corporations, did not have the audacity to saddle its plan upon the City of New York.

The buses now in operation in the City of New York are, with but few exceptions, privately owned and operated upon temporary permits. There are thirty-six of such bus lines carrying approximately 188,710 passengers every day. We desire to continue the service which these lines are giving until their replacement by an adequate bus system which the Legislature can make possible. The thirty-six bus lines now in operation may be discontinued at any time. An injunction was secured sometime ago to stop the municipal supervision of the improved bus lines as well as the appropriation of money for the installation of a municipal bus system.

The injunction has not yet been put in effect. If it is made operative, these emergency bus lines, now giving such satisfactory service, will of necessity have to be stopped forthwith. We know of no reason why the people served by this traveling accommodation should be summarily deprived of it. We intend to continue it until traction sympathizers enforces their injunction or until modern buses, providing the comfort and convenience of a private limousine are installed.

Immediate action by this session of the Legislature will make amends in some measure for the obstruction chargeable to certain members of its predecessor bodies. If the legislative relief be delayed or denied, the injunction may be served, the improvised bus lines, carrying almost 190,000 passengers daily, will be shut down, transportation facilities will be denied to those now solely dependent upon the improvised bus service, and unnecessary and unwarranted hardships inflicted upon a great part of the traveling public of the City of New York.

I am loathe to believe that any Legislature is prepared willingly to frustrate surface transportation relief for the people of New York City. Under that belief I respectfully urge that your committee report favorably upon the Walker-Block bill in order that the Legislature may proceed without delay to its adoption.

Mayor Hylan, Mayor Schwab of Buffalo and Stewart Browne were the only speakers before the committee. Mr. Browne said that buses could be run more cheaply by private companies than by the city. City operation, he added, would only swell the city pay roll and increase the number of political jobholders, of whom there were already more than enough.

"If Mayor Hylan was in absolute control of the city as an autocrat, he would give us good government," Mr. Browne said, "but he must depend upon a political organization for support and indorsement for a third term. And incidentally I want to say that he is going to get it and that he is going to be nominated for a third time."

The Mayor smiled with pleasure as he listened. In fact he was brimming over with good nature all through his stay at Albany. Before he went to the Capitol he told reporters who remarked on the excellent health he appeared to enjoy that he was under the special protection of Providence.

"I believe," he said, "that when a man does what he thinks is right a special providence looks after him."

The Mayor repeated what he has already said, that he is prepared to run for Mayor again, "if the people want me."

AMERICAN RANCH SEIZED BY MEXICANS

MEXICO CITY, March 3 (Associated Press).—George Camp, an American citizen, today lodged a complaint with United States Ambassador Sheffield that a band of fifteen armed agrarians several times had attempted to ambush him and that in consequence of attempts against his life he had been forced to abandon the San Pedro Coxtocan hacienda, situated in the Huejotzingo district of the State of Puebla.

This is the property that formerly was owned by Mrs. Rosalie Evans, an American woman, the wife of a British subject, who was killed in an ambush Aug. 2, 1924, near the ranch. The property, under the will of Mrs. Evans, passed to her sister, Mrs. W. J. Pettus of San Francisco, wife of Dr. W. J. Pettus, former Assistant Surgeon General of the United States.

Camp, who helped Mrs. Evans operate the hacienda several months before she was assassinated, was placed in charge of the estate by the heir.

Camp reported to the Ambassador that the ambuscades and threats of shooting, both himself and the superintendent of the Hacienda Trinidad-Madrid, were followed by the forcible seizure of large parts of the hacienda in violation of the Mexican agrarian laws. He said the confiscated fields bear crops of growing wheat, which are almost ready for harvesting.

With 450 acres taken last year by villagers of Tianguismanalco, and 400 occupied yesterday by agrarians from the village of Calpulalpan, and 1,400 acres which residents of the village of Mayotzingo announced they would seize today, the Embassy was informed that the greater part of the hacienda, consisting of 2,800 acres, had passed from the hands of its owners, together with virtually all the water supplies, without which the hacienda could not be worked.

The protest of alleged illegal expropriations was accompanied by a request that the Embassy make diplomatic representations for a Federal Executive order on the military authorities to give Camp protection and drive off the agrarians. The attitude taken by Camp is that the Supreme Court has not yet decided the question of the legality of orders from the Agrarian Commission under which the seizures have been carried out.

ACCUSED OF SHOOTING GIRL WHO VEXED HIM

Kept Writing His Name on Scraps of Paper, Witness Says, and He Flew Into Rage.

Abraham Rellis of 299 Bradford Street, Brooklyn, was arrested last night and charged with probably fatally shooting Ethel Horan, 18 years old, of 1,440 Broadway, Brooklyn, in a rooming house at 116 Hendrix Street, Brooklyn, the police were told, she would not stop scribbling his name on scraps of paper.

Solomon Goorland of 845 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn, who said he was a witness of the shooting, told the police Rellis had quarreled earlier with the girl. The altercation ended and a silence ensued. Suddenly the girl began nervously to write Rellis's name on pieces of paper, which she hastily crumpled and threw to the floor.

The girl, according to Goorland, paid no attention to Rellis's demand that she cease scribbling or to a threat to shoot her. Then, he declared, the man flew into a rage, drew a revolver and shot her through the breast.

Goorland said Rellis walked from the house in a moment and disappeared. The police, who started immediately to hunt for him, were told by Mrs. Louise Kindel, widow of the late Adolph Kindel, Brooklyn lawyer, that the couple had engaged a room there Monday, saying they were married.

He was found at Blake Avenue and Barbey Streets, Brooklyn, several hours later. He ran when the detectives approached him, disappeared into a hallway and climbed to the roof of a house at 852 Blake Street, where the police overtook him.

According to Rellis's story to the police he had known the girl three weeks. He said he was showing her the revolver, which he got two days ago, and that she, fearing he intended to shoot her, grappled with him, whereupon the revolver was discharged.

The police could learn nothing of the girl's relatives at the address she gave as her home. The girl was taken to the King's County Hospital.

MRS. LEE HARDESTY SUES.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 3.—Baltimore society was surprised today to learn that Mrs. Lee Hardesty had filed suit there for a separation from Lee Hardesty of New York City. The proceedings were brought almost two months ago, but were kept secret. Mr. Hardesty is charged with desertion and non-support.

The plaintiff, who lives in Washington much of the time, came to the home of her mother here early in January. Friends say that there is no chance of a reconciliation. Reports are that the husband will fight the case.

Mrs. Hardesty, then Miss Betty Groves, eloped and was married Aug. 22, 1922. She was popular in Washington and Baltimore society. The bride's mother, it is said, opposed the marriage. There is one child, an infant son.

Justices Salmon, Herrmann and Featherstone issued an order of abatement to expire next Tuesday. If by that time the condition is not improved Sheriff Mason O. Smedley of Queens, is empowered to carry out the order by the seizure of property, if necessary. The railroad's representative said that the company would use anthracite instead of bituminous coal.

BORGLUM EXPLAINS DESTROYING MODELS

RANDOLPH ATTACKS HIM

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 3.—Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, came to Cleveland today to explain why he had demolished models of the Stone Mountain memorial to the Southern Confederacy, near Atlanta, Ga., after he learned that he was to be removed. Mr. Borglum spoke tonight at the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium in a public meeting.

He is free, on $5,000 bail, on the charge of destroying and removing the models after which the monument is to be designed.

Mr. Borglum denied reports that his removal and temporary cessation of work on the memorial were the result of a Klan and anti-Klan fight.

"It is a question of attempting to gain control of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 to be realized through sale of memorial half dollars, which I succeeded in getting coined by the United States Government," he said.

"We needed additional funds to complete the work and I went to President Coolidge with my plan. After the Stone Mountain Memorial Association realized the sum of money to be obtained, they planned to oust me as sculptor."

Says Models Were Imperfect.

He charged that a group headed by Hollins N. Randolph, member of an Atlanta law firm, is planning to prevent completion of the 1,000-foot memorial which was being carved on the face of the mountain.

"After I learned that overtures had been made to my superintendent to complete the sculpture I destroyed the models," he said. "These were unfinished, imperfect model, and in the hands of strangers would have ruined all that has been and the future possibilities.

"The man they want to finish my work is a carpenter, not a sculptor. He would be unable to do a decent line of work."

Mr. Borglum has spent years on the memorial. It will represent the Confederate army on the march. The centre group is 320 feet long and 138 feet high. It shows a group headed by Generals Lee and Jackson.

Nearly 250 feet of stone for this group has been cut away.

"Daughters of the Confederacy asked me to carve a statue of Lee at the base of the mountain nine years ago," Mr. Borglum said. "I refused that, but worked out the idea of the gigantic memorial now being used. For eight years I worked on the monument at my own expense, spending $100,000 and pouring my own income into it.

"A year ago I was given a contract to finish the central group at an expenditure of $250,000. This group will cost $1,000,000. The association has put $60,000 on the monument itself and about $70,000 into office and incidental expenses."

Lester P. Barlow, a Cleveland engineer, who brought Mr. Borglum to Cleveland, said that the sculptor alone can complete the idea.

Randolph Assails Borglum.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 3.—The De Kalb County Grand Jury retired tonight without having returned indictments against Gutzon Borglum. The jury will resume its investigation tomorrow.

Four indictments were being sought against the sculptor charging him with larceny for the alleged removal of models, two charges of malicious mischief for alleged destruction of models, and a charge of simple larceny involving the removal of a bust of "Stonewall" Jackson.

Hollings N. Randolph, President of the Stone Mountain Association, in a statement today asserted that at the rate of progress being made on the memorial by Mr. Borglum when he was dismissed, the work of completing the central group would have required twenty-five years. The statement added that the memorial would be completed.

The statement was prompted, Mr. Randolph said, by one made by the sculptor in New York, in which Borglum was quoted as saying that he was dismissed because he had served notice on the Executive Committee of the association of his intention to demand all accounting of their stewardship of the memorial funds.

In part Mr. Randolph said:

"Borglum contracted to produce in three years the central group of the memorial for $250,000, the contract providing that this amount should cover his ideas, drawings, designs, models, labor payroll, equipment and reasonable supervision of the work.

Praises Stonecutters' Work.

"After a lapse of seventeen months and an expenditure by the association of $185,000 at the mountain under the contract, it became evident to the entire Board of Trustees that if Borglum kept on at the rate he was going it would take him twenty-five years and an amount of money beyond calculation to produce the central group—a situation, I must confess, that was rather disturbing to the 'narrow, provincial minds' of the trustees. It seems also to have taxed even the financial genius of Borglum, as evidenced by the fact that he went to Washington and issued a public statement repudiating his contract and attacking the association. * * *

"The association will carry to completion the memorial, but not with Gutzon Borglum. It will engage a sculptor of the highest rank, who can be relied upon to attend to his work, to accept in good faith his agreed compensation and who will deal with the association and the public in a manner becoming a true artist and gentleman."

The county authorities said today that mutilated models of Robert E. Lee and the equestrian figures forming the central group of the memorial, the latter a duplicate of one destroyed in the Stone Mountain studio last Wednesday, had been discovered by county officers in the home of J. C. Tucker, superintendent of construction. The model of the central group was only slightly mutilated, it was reported.

BOWLING GREEN HOME SITE IS PURCHASED

The site of the new home of the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association, made possible by a donation of $250,000 from William Hamlin Childs, will be at 105 and 107 Washington Street. The property was purchased yesterday by Chellis A. Austin, as President of the association, from Erminia M. Schroen.

It consists of two five-story tenement houses, having a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 95 feet, and was sold in negotiations conducted by cable through Childs & Humphries, real estate brokers. The old buildings will be demolished at once and a new home for the association constructed.

Mr. Childs recently gave $250,000 to the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association for the erection of a new home on the condition that the association double its present annual income of $20,000. The acceptance of Mr. Childs's gift was assured by thirty downtown business men, who guaranteed to give $1,000 each for three years as operating revenue for the institution.

The work of the association will be extended to include 15,000 residents in the section bounded by the present Liberty Street division on the south, the Hudson on the west, Canal Street to Broadway on the north, Broadway on the west to Spruce Street and thence along Spruce and Perry Streets on the north to the East River, which will form the eastern boundary line.

The new building will be dedicated to "the perpetual welfare of the men, women and children who live and work in lower Manhattan."

about need of "flat top" ships in the future to combat aircraft, as was published in some of today's papers. That subject was not discussed, according to the record of the testimony made available today. Reports of Admiral Fullam's testimony printed in newspapers today were based on an interview with him.

Representative Perkins and other members of the committee learned finally today that there would be no hope of getting a special commission created to continue the investigation. The Aircraft Committee has ceased to function, except in one particular.

Unanimous consent was granted in the House tonight that a report be filed not later than next December, when Congress will reassemble unless called into extra session. Representative Vestal of Indiana requested the permission, with the explanation that the committee would not incur any further expense. There is a question as to whether even this consent means anything, since parliamentarians regard the present House as having no power of itself alone to convey an authority beyond noon of March 4.

The only legal action that could be taken, it is said, would be for the adoption of a joint resolution, which would have to go through House and Senate and receive the signature of the President. This process would bring such a measure to Secretaries Weeks and Wilbur of the War and Navy departments, unless the President should refuse to give his signature without consulting them. Mr. Vestal, with this situation in mind, simply asked for unanimous consent to file the report.

There is a question as to whether the hearings can be printed and indexed. All the papers will go into the possession of the Clerk of the House, William Tyler Page, tomorrow at noon.

Some members of the Aircrafts Committee were doubtful whether they would be able to accept Secretary Weeks's invitation to go to Fortress Monroe Friday for anti-aircraft demonstrations. One interpretation of the acceptance of his invitation was that it was conditioned on the investigation being held in the week of March 23.

Fullam Criticises General Board.

Admiral Fullam joined forces with General Mitchell and Admiral Sims in rapping the "conservatism" of officials, especially members of the Navy General Board. He attacked the reports of the special board on the Washington experiments, and asserted that naval warfare had been revolutionized by the advent of submarines and air power.

"The operations of surface navies," he said, "will be greatly restricted hereafter. Surface ships are dangerously threatened from above and from below. Sea power expressed in surface ships is completely dependent today, and will be still more dependent in the future, upon air power and submarine power. The surface navy is now between the upper and nether millstones of modern naval progress. The sun of a past naval era is setting. The sun of a new naval era is rising. The nation that fails to see the rising sun will inevitably lose the next war."

Admiral Fullam added that for the last ten years our naval policy has looked toward the setting sun, built upon the single idea of the surface fleet.

"It has not realized," he continued, "that the navy of today must operate on three planes—the surface, above the surface and beneath the surface."

The cause of this mistaken policy, he said, "is unquestionably due to the fact that our naval minds have been shackled by conservatism. It is as though we could not see beyond the bow of a battleship."

The report of Admiral Coonts stated, Admiral Fullam said, that the fleet's speed was reduced to seven and a half knots, and that even then many of the auxiliaries failed to arrive with the fleet at its destination, with submarines the most inefficient unit in the fleet.

"That they were obsolete," continued Admiral Fullam, "badly ventilated, somewhat dangerous to their crews, and that they were useless except by 'accident of position.' He stated that our one experimental airplane carrier, that can at the most accommodate about twelve planes—that is all our fleet could take out to sea, twelve planes—could not at its extreme speed of fourteen knots keep pace with the scouting fleet. He stated that the catapults on the battleships were not reliable and that the planes from the Langley could not safely fly more than ten miles from that ship."

The witness declared that his warnings in 1921 against striking out appropriations for submarines and cutting down air appropriations were ridiculed by officers of the Navy Department and "contemptuously ignored." He was asked to appear before the Naval Committee of the Senate and presented his argument.

"They paid no attention to it," he continued, "because they had but one idea, which was to get seventeen more great big capital ships, and they thought that with the Republicans coming into power at that time they could get all the money they wanted and force that awful bill through for those seventeen additional ships."

"Who do you mean, Admiral, when you say 'they'?" inquired Mr. Perkins.

"The General Board and Admiral Coontz, who now admits that his own submarines and his own fleet are of no use."

"It may be said today that our fleet, as it now exists, is quite useless for the exigencies of modern war," Admiral Fullam said at another point. "It cannot defend itself against modern naval forces. Still less can it leave the home coast to take the aggressive. It must, therefore, to avoid the humiliation of disastrous defeat, remain at home under the protection of our coast defences and of the air forces of the army and the navy, which can alone protect it from the air power of an enemy.

"That is, if any enemy can cross the sea with two or three airplane carriers they could drive our whole navy right into our home ports, and General Mitchell and the navy airmen would be the only hope of protecting our fleet against the airplane carriers and their air power of an enemy and its submarines."

"It is not asserted," he added, "that we should scrap the battleships we now have, but it is claimed that their doom as a type is sealed, that a new type must soon appear, and that it is wasteful and futile to spend money in patching and attempting to keep them afloat in modern war."

Admiral Fullam said he had no hesitation in saying "that the navy was at fault in precipitating a disagreeable and unpleasant controversy."

"General Mitchell," he went on, "was ridiculed, derided and made fun of by the Secretary of the Navy and by officers of the Navy Department high in authority. That is the truth. It is only natural that he and his men at Langley Field should have resented this treatment and that they should have fought back."

While he said he had no brief for General Mitchell, yet he believed that the officer had done more to demonstrate the power of air attack than the General Board of the Navy and all the Admirals combined. He said it was difficult to view seriously the report of the naval special board on battleships, submarines and air forces.

The mysterious theft of jewelry, tapestry and antiques, valued at $20,000, from the home of Abe L. Lowenstein, cotton dealer, at 24 West Seventy-fourth Street, became known yesterday despite efforts of the police to keep it secret. No clue has been unearthed in several days of investigation to indicate how the robbery was executed and no trace has been found of the robbers or their loot.

Mr. Lowenstein, who is a member of Max Lowenstein & Sons, cotton goods, at 40 West Twenty-third Street, Mrs. Lowenstein and five of their seven servants spent Saturday evening away from home, only two maids remaining in the house. Mr. and Mrs. Lowenstein returned about 11:30 o'clock and retired soon afterward. The servants returned at different times, but none reported anything amiss.

Early Sunday morning Mr. Lowenstein was awakened by an excited maid who gasped "The tapestry has been taken from the drawing room!"

Incredulous, Mr. Lowenstein hastened to that room to find that the wall on which had hung a fifteenth century Brussels tapestry, "The Fountain of Youth," valued at about $10,000, was bare. The tapestry, measuring 11 by 10 by 6 feet, had been expertly removed from its hooks. Later, while a detective was questioning members of the household, Mrs. Lowenstein went to a jewelry case in a bureau in her room and found it was empty. It contained, it was estimated, about $5,000 worth of jewelry.

Further investigation disclosed the disappearance of a number of antiques and ivory pieces from mantles and tables in the living room, library and bedrooms.

Closer inspection revealed that attempts had been made to remove other tapestries, but had been abandoned, apparently because the method of hanging had made dismantling too difficult unless the pieces were to be damaged.

There was nothing to indicate how the house was entered. All doors were found locked as they had been the night before, no windows had been disturbed, and there were no fingerprints or other marks of identification to be found.

The loot included, besides the tapestry, a jade diamond-studded card case valued at $750, an ivory card case, estimated to be worth $250; a golden match case, valued at $200, and miscellaneous jewelry.

The robbery recalled that on Feb. 9 the home of Morris Fichter of the Lowenstein business house, at 600 West 161st Street, was robbed of about $13,000 worth of jewelry, none of which has been recovered.

HEIRS TO GET $220,000 BY A WILL COMPROMISE

A petition for a compromise with the sixteen cousins of Florence T. Donnell, who died on May 13 last in a sanitarium, leaving an estate of more than $1,000,000 to what is now part of the New York Public Library, was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. Under the terms of the agreement the relatives would receive $220,000. The petition was filed in behalf of Lewis Cass Ledyard, 27 East Seventy-second Street, who was named executor in a will executed March 15, 1899, a few months before Miss Donnell was committed to an insane asylum.

It is set forth in the petition that the compromise is "in accordance with the suggestion of John P. O'Brien, Surrogate, in the interest of harmony and on account of the uncertainties of litigation and to prevent any delays in the settlement of the estate and to save expense and for the best interest of all concerned."

In December another alleged will, dated July 25, 1899, which left practically the entire estate to the New York Free Circulating Library, now part of the New York Public Library, failed to be admitted to probate. The jury at that time returned a verdict that Miss Donnell was incompetent at the date when the will was executed.

The six first cousins, according to the proposed agreement, will receive $33,-163.19, and the remainder will be divided between more distant relatives. Colonel Charles S. Bryan, a third cousin, 76 East Fifty-fourth Street, who was prominent in breaking the July will, is to receive $2,446.11. In addition to the relatives, Peter R. Gatens, the attorney who successfully contested the July will, will receive $10,000 for his services; J. Frederick Kernochan, for costs, allowance and expenses in connection with his effort to bring the July will to probate, will get $27,426.

NEGRO RABBI RELEASED.

Believed Grand Larceny Charge Against Hermens Will Be Dropped.

Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday released Mordecai Hermens, negro rabbi of the Temple B'Nai Abraham, 134 West 133d Street, on his own recognizance on an indictment charging him with grand larceny. Hermens, who also is connected with the Moorish Zionist Temple in Harlem, was indicted several weeks ago on complaint of Arnold J. Ford, a former member of the B'Nai Abraham congregation, and who recently became rabbi of an independent negro flock in Harlem.

Ford charged that $100 which had been turned over to Hermens for the purchase of a receptacle for the Torah of the congregation by a Jewish newspaper had not been accounted for.

Rufus L. Perry, a negro lawyer, explained to the Court yesterday that Hermens at no time intended to keep the money, and that arrangements had been made to purchase the receptacle. The Court then consented to release Hermens and canceled the bail forfeiture. It was understood that an application to dismiss the indictment would be made by the District Attorney's office in a few days.

ANOTHER RECORD COLD DAY.

Drop to 10 Degrees Made Yesterday the Coldest March 3.

A cold wave from the West, which settled over the entire Atlantic Coast yesterday morning, gave New York the coldest March 3 since the city began to keep weather records. At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the thermometer dropped to 10 degrees, with a wind velocity of 40 miles an hour. The coldest March 3 previously recorded was in 1912, when the temperature was 15 degrees.

The temperature began to climb slowly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning and the weather was milder in the afternoon and last night. A rising temperature is predicted for today.

'DELUSION OF FEAR' HIS PLEA IN SLAYING

HIS ECCENTRICITIES TOLD

Siren Called Employes to Save Him From "Enemies" in Factory, Secretary Says.

The defense of Charles T. Davis, wealthy manufacturer, on trial in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday for killing Detective Joseph Bridgetts, submitted testimony to show that the defendant had lived for months in imaginary terror of others and of himself, "a delusion of fear," which had made him mentally irresponsible at the time of the slaying. Davis now asserts he is sane, admits the murder, but contends it was committed when he was temporarily insane.

Several witnesses told of his alleged eccentricities. These included a "riot call" he had organized in his factory at 217 Dutfield Street, Brooklyn, to call employes to his aid when attacked by "unknown enemies." He went to lunch and the theatre armed with a revolver and wrote notes to expected burglars.

His secretary, Mrs. Esther C. Anderson of 430 Pacific Street, testified he had a mania for buying handkerchiefs, sometimes purchasing 150 of them in two weeks. She said also he would stand in the middle of his office and "spin around on his heels."

"Once he put a note on the safe, addressed to a burglar," testified Mrs. Anderson. "The note read: 'Dear Mr. Burglar, if you come in, do not touch the safe; the only money here is in a box in the cashier's desk.'"

A siren was used to sound the riot call Davis had installed. Mrs. Anderson said she had heard Davis call out the employes on the day the detective was killed. After the slaying he had given her the weapon "to throw from the roof." Davis previously had complained to her concerning his condition, saying he was "nervous and irritable" and didn't know what was the matter—"people seemed to make me suffer," he told her.

An aunt of Davis, Mrs. Susan Traylor of 1,523 Park Road, Washington, D. C., related some observations of her nephew's actions and mental characteristics in boyhood, which the family had regarded as peculiar.

Several policemen, testifying to the slaying of Bridgetts, said Davis knew he was a policeman, as Davis had refused to see him when he called the day before and had been notified that the police were coming again, to question him about his stolen auto.

The prosecution had contended that Davis had slain the officer with a shotgun. Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, testified that Bridgetts was killed with three bullets from a revolver. The mistake in describing the weapon used, it was said, was due to the fact that a shotgun was found near Davis's office desk.

Justice William B. Carswell excluded Mrs. Davis, the wife of the defendant, from the court yesterday on the ground that she is to be a witness for her husband. The several alienists were also barred until called as witnesses.

HIGH COURT DENIED WRIT.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—In the routine account of the proceedings of the United States Supreme Court yesterday, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, it was erroneously stated that the Court had granted a writ of certiorari in Case 824, that of the Oliver American Trading Company against the Government of Mexico. Instead, the Court denied the writ.

The case is an action brought by the Oliver Company for an alleged breach of contract, in which a claim of $1,064,248 is made against the Mexican Government. The Oliver company contended that freight cars and locomotives which it operated in Mexico over the National Railways of Mexico had been held there, and that contracts made with the Mexican Government for use of this rolling power had been repudiated. Suit was brought in the New York Supreme Court in October, 1922, but was taken to the Federal District Court.

The Court, the Oliver Company says, dismissed the action "solely on the ground that Mexico was entitled to immunity from suit in the courts of the United States, unless upon its consent." The Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision of the District Court.

"At the time motion for dismissal was made Mexico had not been recognized, but was recognized prior to the judgment of dismissal," the Trading company's brief states.

Holds Policeman for Grand Jury.

Policeman Jonh J. Roth of the Special Service Division was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Folwell in the Flatbush Court, Brooklyn, yesterday on a charge of felonious assault made by Clifford Bartley, a negro, of 577 Baltic Street, Brooklyn. Several weeks ago the policeman arrested Bartley for possessing policy slips. Bartley said that Roth beat him with blackjack and took $54 from him. A larceny charge against the policeman was dismissed, as was a charge of possessing the slips against Bartley.

'SPANISH PRISONER' IN JAIL AT LAST

MANY AMERICANS VICTIMS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—"General" Ramon de Santa Clara, regarded as the head of the old confidence fraud of the "Spanish prisoner," has been arrested in Madrid, according to an official dispatch to the State Department from the American Embassy there. Details of the arrest were not given in the dispatch which merely stated that the so-called "Spanish prisoner" had been arrested.

The "Spanish prisoner" swindle has been a matter of considerable concern and some vexation to the State Department for some time and the arrest of Ramon de Santa Clara, who was sometimes called Rafael de Santos, and also used the designation of "P. de S." is understood to be the result of investigation by the Spanish authorities following renewed activities last Summer of persons engaged in the fraud.

"General" Ramon was not the only one who is alleged to have engaged in the swindle, according to information in the archives of the State Department, which shows that the "Spanish prisoner" swindle has been successfully tried for at least half a century.

As to the report that the arrest of "General" Ramon had followed a fifty-year police hunt for him, officials stated tonight that they were without data to confirm that statement, but the files of the department running back for many years showed that various persons had been engaged in the "Spanish prisoner" swindle.

This swindle has been in operation so many years and has been so extensively advertised that officials have been amazed over the ease with which it has been revived from time to time. After the renewal of operations last Summer were reported to the State Department by the American Consulate at Madrid, the department issued a warning.

"For the benefit of those not familiar with the fraud," said this warning, "it may be pointed out that letters are received by prospective victims from unknown correspondents in Spain temporarily reclining on hail through 'bankruptcy,' sometimes claiming finality, asking monetary assistance to pay expenses of the trial and to release certain baggage, generally described as a trunk or portmanteau with a secret pocket containing abundant funds, a large share of which is promised the benefactor.

"It is understood that under the Spanish law a mere attempt to obtain money under false pretenses does not appear to warrant arrest. The money must be actually paid over and the prosecuting witness must be present 'in propria persona' to testify; otherwise, prosecution would be useless. It appears that the swindlers have profited handsomely under this condition."

The "Spanish prisoner" usually represented himself as being a man of considerable prospective wealth who had been thrown into jail for some violation of customs or tax laws, but who was unable to obtain access to the "hidden satchel" which was alleged to contain a large sum of money. The "prisoner" appealed for funds to enable him to obtain his freedom, and promised to divide his fortune with those who rendered him financial assistance.

The framework of the swindle was always the same, but there were variations of his "Spanish prisoner's" story from time to time. Occasionally the "prisoner" would claim to be the father of a very beautiful daughter whom he would be willing to marry off to the American coming to his rescue.

MORRIS K. PARKER, BANKER, ENDS LIFE

stabbed himself in the lower part of the left chest, narrowly missing the heart, with a six-inch ice pick that went in up to the hilt, and he had slowly bled to death. There was a razor blade underneath the bed. After stabbing himself Mr. Parker had got out of bed and walked around the foot of the bed to the other side. He was kneeling at the foot of the bed."

Dr. Norris said that the ice pick was not the property of the club, and must have been brought into the room by Mr. Parker. It was new and bore the trademark "Yankee" on its wooden handle.

On a writing desk in the room were found two sealed letters and an unsealed note, all written on University Club stationery. The note directed those who found the body to notify Arthur W. Loasby, President of the trust company; Robert C. Adams, associate manager of the company's bond department of which Mr. Parker had charge, and Harold G. Hathaway, a lawyer, who was the man who had notified the police of Mr. Parker's disappearance. It gave their telephone numbers and said: "Please notify these men."

The two letters were addressed to Adams and Hathaway. Dr. Norris opened these letters and read them.

"This is the best way out of it," said one letter. "Please take care of my wife, Charlotte. The insurance papers and will are in my desk." It was signed "Morris K. Parker."

The other letter was substantially the same. Dr. Norris said that neither letter contained any information as to the nature of the mysterious "it" from which Parker had chosen suicide as the best way of escape.

Mr. Parker's business suit, topcoat, and hat were found hung neatly in the clothes closet. His pockets contained a silver flask, empty; about $40 in cash and some papers. He had no keys except the doorkey to the room at the club. The heavy brief case, which Mr. Parker had taken to the club with him, was locked and could not be opened. With the rest of Mr. Parker's property and the ice pick, it was turned over to the police by Dr. Norris, who notified the West Forty-seventh Street Station of the suicide.

Dr. Norris telephoned to the offices of the three men Parker had left word to notify, but they were out at luncheon. He then had some one call up Mr. Parker's home. A woman, who said she was Mrs. Parker, answered the telephone. She was told that something had happened to Mr. Parker at the University Club.

Friends Tell of Ill Health.

Shortly afterward C. B. Campbell, a lawyer, of 189 Montague Street, Brooklyn, who is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Parker, went to the club with Mr. Hathaway. They told of Mr. Parker's recent ill health and of his disappearance from his home and office on Monday. Mr. Campbell claimed the body and had it taken, with Dr. Norris's permission, to an undertaker's funeral chapel at Lexington Avenue and Fifty-second Street. Mr. Campbell said that the funeral would be held from the Parker home on Thursday morning and that it would be private.

Mrs. Parker was formerly Charlotte G. Thompson of this city. The Parkers were married about ten years ago. Their daughter is in school in New Jersey.

Mrs. Parker could not be seen yesterday. Speaking for the family, Mr. Campbell said that ill health was the only conceivable reason for Mr. Parker's act.

Other friends of the family said that the death of a brother, Grenville Parker, last year at a comparatively early age had preyed upon Mr. Parker's mind. It was reported that Grenville Parker, who was a stock broker, had died of cancer.

Statement by President Loasby.

Mr. Loasby, President of the trust company, made the following statement after he heard of Mr. Parker's death:

"I am more grieved than I can express to learn of the sudden death of our Vice President, Mr. Parker. He had just returned from a three months' European trip in the interest of the bank. Mr. Parker advised us that while abroad he had suffered from severe headaches, and upon his arrival here he showed signs of ill health, but not to an alarming extent.

"I can say without reservation that there was nothing in his relations with the bank to justify his act.

"Mr. Parker has been associated with the Equitable Trust Company for ten years, coming here first as manager of the bond department, and he was made Vice President in 1918.

"Mr. Parker had a most pleasing personality and had the high regard and affection of all his associates."

Business associates of Mr. Parker expressed the belief that his recent illness had driven him into a state of sudden insanity. It was pointed out that his illness had begun with severe headaches, as had happened in the case of the late H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., whose headaches preceded a fatal illness. Mr. Parker's father, it was pointed out, was an authority on cancer and cerebral hemorrhage. The Willard Parker Hospital for Contagious Diseases in New York was erected as a memorial of Mr. Parker's father.

Mr. Parker was regarded as one of the best authorities on municipal financing in the country. He was one of the pioneer municipal bond specialists in Wall Street and was highly regarded in many big banks and banking houses, with which he had cooperated on many big transactions. Tribute to his ability was paid yesterday by officers of the National City, Guaranty, Chase, Bankers and other big institutions.

Mr. Parker was born in New York City 48 years ago, and was graduated from Yale with the Class of 1901. He first attracted attention in Wall Street while in charge of the municipal bond department of N. W. Halsey & Co., at a time when that firm was new in the business, and when municipal bonds were not as popular as they are today. Mr. Parker consummated a $4,000,000 bond transaction in choice issues of a small town in New York State which had high credit, taking the deals from under the noses of a dozen experts in older bond houses.

The result was that Mr. Parker became a member of the firm, and his reputation spread in Wall Street. When the Equitable Trust Company needed a man to take charge of its bond department some time later, it sent for Mr. Parker. He built it up from a comparatively small department until it now occupies the entire thirteenth floor at 37 Wall Street.

Mr. Parker had two hobbies outside of his work. One was an interest in surgery, which he inherited from his father. The other was running to fires. Employes in his bond department always asked his advice before submitting to medical or surgical treatment. Whenever the fire apparatus went through the Wall Street district, he was sure to get up and try to find out where the fire was, if not to go out to see it.

This NEW way will work great changes quickly. It combats the film authorities warn as inviting "off-color" teeth and unhealthy gums .... make this unique test

"OFF-COLOR" teeth; gums that are softening, that lack firmness—you can't be attractive if you have them.

Now modern science has made important, new discoveries in overcoming them. A way that foremost dentists now are urging . . . the most remarkable of all dental methods.

This offers you a test. In fairness to yourself, send the coupon.

THAT FILM—the enemy of teeth and gums

Dental science now traces scores of those troubles, directly or indirectly, to a germ-laden film that forms on your teeth.

You can't see it with your eyes, but run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it . . . a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. And that is why your teeth look "off color" and dingy.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea and decay.

You can't have pretty teeth, unless you combat it. Highest authorities all tell you this.

Brushing won't end it

Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film successfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent—different in formula, action and effect from any other known.

Largely on dental advice the world has turned to it. Tooth and gum troubles hence are on the decline.

It removes that film. And Firms the Gums

It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes that film, then firms the gums. No harsh grit, judged dangerous to enamel.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt. Why cling to old methods when world's authorities urge a better way?

Serve Afternoon Tea

THE SOCIAL FUNCTION OF TO-DAY

MORE than one million pounds of Tea are consumed every day in England. They know its stimulating and bracing effect. In cottage and mansion, in office and workshop, tea is served every afternoon, because no other beverage so refreshes and invigorates.

Serve afternoon tea to your guests and see how they enjoy it. If properly served there is nothing equal to it for creating a cheerful atmosphere—for promoting conversation.

A cup of India tea and a slice or two of nice bread and butter or hot buttered toast are the correct things to serve every afternoon.

But be sure it is made properly with—

HOW to make a perfect cup of TEA

USE an Earthenware Teapot—Put in one teaspoonful for each cup of tea. Be sure the water is poured into the Teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 4 or 5 minutes to infuse. DONALD B. MacMILLAN

Into the Arctic

MacMillan, when he sailed on his last Polar Expedition in 1923, selected a ZENITH 3-R.

He had to be sure. There are no radio supply stores in the Arctic. He couldn't afford to take a chance. Dependability to him was not alone dependable performance and sturdy construction, but ability to withstand the violent elements ranging from 70° below zero to 50° above. Is there anything in the United States that can offer such drastic conditions for what has been believed to be an ultra delicate instrument?

MacMillan tells us—"Night after night, in that great silent Iceland, we heard the music from your popular cafes—the news day by day—your baseball scores and your great preachers from their pulpits." Think of it!!! Could anything be more convincing evidence in radio construction and performance? Is MacMillan's judgment worth your consideration?

Call on your nearest ZENITH dealer and with your own eyes and ears satisfy yourself as to WHY MacMILLAN SELECTED ZENITH. It's worth the test. That's what MacMillan did.

ZENITH RADIO—Costs More—But Does More

Zenith sets are handled only by selected dealers who will give you service AFTER THE RADIO IS SOLD—. When we sell you a ZENITH we are not through. Our service man will call once a week or oftener if you want him. This costs you nothing. We selected ZENITH after thoroughly testing all makes. In other words, we did your shopping for you, when we selected ZENITH.

WOMEN SEND GIFTS TO CATHEDRAL FUND

Bishop Manning announced yesterday that Mrs. Whitelaw Reid had asked that her $10,000 gift for the completion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, previously announced, be applied toward the building of the children's arch in the nave. The gift will be recorded as a memorial to her granddaughter, Elizabeth Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, who died last year of typhoid fever.

The vice chairmen of the women's division, meeting informally yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Church League, at the Allerton House, 130 East Fifty-seventh Street, reported approximately $4,000 raised since the last general meeting of campaign workers. They said their teams would be kept together during the next two months and would continue to make personal calls and write letters soliciting contributions. The next meeting will be held on the afternoon of March 17.

Mrs. Hamilton R. Fairfax, Chairman of the women's division, who presided, said that she had received $1,045 in gifts since the last meeting. Of this amount, $1,000 was from Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane, sent to Mrs. Fairfax from Palm Beach by Mrs. Herbert Shipman, wife of the Suffragan Bishop. Other reports from heads of groups were as follows:

Mrs. Elgin R. L. Gould, $1,035; Mrs. Henry Whitney Munroe, $50; Mrs. William Beflow Beekman, $59; Mrs. Charles D. Alford, $42; Mrs. Frederick Gordon-Smith, $125; Mrs. Arthur C. Choate, $125; Miss Alice Lounsberry, $100; Miss Martha Maynarf, $242; Mrs. Henry Storay, $235; Mrs. Henry C. Sanford, $226; Mrs. Arthur T. Sutcliffe, $406; Mrs. Francis E. Thurber, $25; Mrs. William M. V. Hoffman, $500; Mrs. H. P. Kent, $87; miscellaneous, $7.50.

Mrs. Gordon-Smith represented the British Women's Club of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. Sanford reported contributions from the Churchwoman's League; Mrs. Storay reported contributions from the Order of the Eastern Star, and Miss Maynard, contributions made by the employes of the Hotel Roosevelt.

Students of Union Theological Seminary have asked the Bishop, it was learned yesterday, to adopt the suggestion of John D. Rockefeller Jr. to permit members of other denominations to sit on the Board of Trustees of the Cathedral.

The students made their request when 104 of them sent a contribution of $76.50 to the Cathedral fund and Bishop Manning replied by sending them a copy of the speech he made at the dinner of the Church Club on Feb. 19, when he said that Mr. Rockefeller's suggestion was "manifestly not one to be acted upon, or taken up, during the heat and stress of a campaign."

The meeting of nurses announced for this evening will not be held, as a decision in regard to their objective was reached at a meeting last Wednesday.

1,000,000 FRANCS TO FLIERS

France Offers Prizes for Machines Making Records.

PARIS, March 3.—The French Air Ministry announced today that cash prizes aggregating 1,000,000 francs will be distributed among French airplane manufacturers whose machines hold world aviation records on Dec. 31, 1925.

The prizes will be divided between plane builders and motor manufacturers on the basis of two-thirds to the former and one-third to the latter. No mention is made in the announcement of pilots, but inasmuch as all prizes paid to manufacturers during 1924 were turned over, either entirely or in part, to pilots, the aviators are in a cheerful mood.

Leader—Goosens. Former record, 1,053 miles 5 laps, made by Cameron-Kaiser in 1915.

Harry Stockelynch and Alphone Goosens, Belgian team in the race, and Sammy Gastman and Ernest Kockler, Newark-Chicago team, went into the lead in the thirty-eighth international six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden this morning after one of the wildest jams the race has produced in recent years.

These two teams, which had been trailing one lap back of the Reggie McNamara-Harry Horan and Maurice Brocco-Oscar Egg teams, riding sensationally in a sustained burst of frantic pedalling which lasted for half an hour, gained two laps on the field, going into the front of the race by the margin of one lap over McNamara and Horan, Brocco and Egg, Harry Kaiser and Carl Stockholm, and Ali Nefatti and Maurice DeWolfe.

The first serious accident in the race resulted last night in the withdrawal of Franco Georgetti, Italian rider, who is one of the most popular cyclists on the track. Another accident resulted in the enforced retirement from the grind of Pete Moeskops, giant Hollander, who has won the world's cycling title for the past four years.

Georgetti Out of Race.

Georgetti withdrew from the grind at 8 o'clock last night, following an accident yesterday afternoon, in which the plucky little Italian, in skidding down the banked saucer on the Fourth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street end of the track, known as "dead man's curve," ran a two-inch silver into his left side, sustaining a painful wound.

Dr. M. W. Henry of Brooklyn, race physician, extracted the splinter, and it was thought that the plucky little Italian could continue the race. He returned to the track after a rest of an hour amid a thunderous cheer from the crowd, but, despite his courageous efforts to ride, was forced to withdraw.

Later in the evening Georgetti was removed to the New York Hospital to have an X-ray taken of the injury.

The injury which forced Moeskops out of the grind was a fractured rib. The giant Hollander, in tumbling down the track in the heat of Monday night's furious riding, sustained a painful injury to his nose as well as fracturing a rib, but, out of a desire to protect the interests of his partner, Alois Degraeves, Moeskops continued in the grind, disregarding the pain he was enduring.

He explained he was eager to ride in the hope that the fortunes of the race would produce another partner for Degraeves. The accident to Georgetti gave him his chance to retire and his withdrawal from the race was announced at 10:20 last night.

The withdrawal of Georgetti and Moeskops permitted a reconstruction of teams in which Gaetano Belloni, Italian partner of Georgetti paired with Degraeves, partner of Moeskops.

Bobby Walthour Jr. and Fred Spencer, Alf Grenda and McBeath, Anthony Beckman and Louis Benezatti and Lloyd Thomas and Dave Lands each were two laps behind the leaders when the session of cyclonic riding subsided. The teams of Belloni and Degraeves, a reconstructed combination with the withdrawls of Franco Georgetti and Pete Moeskops; Chapman and Lawrence, Deruyter and Buysse, Ferrario and Rizzetto and Taylor and Hanley, each were three laps back of the two leading teams.

Ferrario Starts the Jam.

Arturo Ferrario, member of an Italian team which has been trailing the pack, started all the trouble at 12:48 o'clock when he suddenly darted out of the pack, a slow-moving train, as the riders were biding their time in advance of the customary morning sprints, and like a streak shot down the high bank on the west end of the track to the straightaway on the south side of the saucer.

Pedaling as if his life depended on the flips of his legs into the toe clips, Ferrario flew over the boards and in a moment the Garden was a seething mass of humanity in which joy-crazed spectators yelled hoarse encouragement to the thirty remaining athletes in the race, spurred by the desire for self-preservation as far as their precious miles and laps were concerned.

An expert at cross-word puzzles would have taxed his powers if he had sought to untangle the mass of riders on the track as the mad dash continued. McNamara and Walthour, with Degraeves lagging at their rear, took up the mad whirl where Ferrario and Rizzetto left off after their unsuccessful bid for a lap.

The two were hauled back, but the riding continued without interruption for Stockelynch suddenly started to tear grimly around the saucer and with Gastman close behind did not stop until the field had been lapped. That ended the first of three successive jams in which a total of six laps were gained.

In the second jam Nefatti was the instigator and he didn't stop until, with the aid of his partner, De Wolfe, he had gained a lap. Gastman and Kockler pedalled with the lap-stealing pair, as did Kaiser and Stockholm, and the announcer advised the crowd at the end of the session that the three teams had gained their objective. Soon after Stockelynch again went tearing away at reckless speed and through his own brilliant riding and that of his partner, Goosens, gained a second lap, pulling even in the matter of mileage with Gastman and Kockler.

It was announced that the teams of McNamara and Horan and Egg and Brocco were punished with fines of $25 for faulty pick-ups in the first installment of this three-reel jam, which has, perhaps, never been excelled in any previous six-day grind.

Jams Mark Night Sprints.

When the regular nine o'clock night sprints were over the teams of McNamara and Horan and Brocco and Egg were a lap ahead of eight rival teams and were two laps ahead of five other combinations. The crowd of 10,000 was thrilled when, in course of the sprints, two of the tail-end teams regained a lap, thereby gaining a place in the division which then was one lap back of the teams which were leading at that time.

The teams which recovered some of their lost ground were Sammy Gastman and Ernest Kockler and Harry Kaiser and Carl Stockholm. A terrific "jam," started by Marcel Buysse near the end of the seventh official point sprint and continuing unabated through the four miles of the eighth and ninth spurts threw the great crowd in a frenzy and ended only when Kockler and Stockholm rode up on the pack, the winners of a lap.

Buysse's dash came with startling suddenness. The track was crowded with cyclists through the four miles the wild riding lasted, the ever-present danger of a spill adding to the thrill of the spectacle.

Buysse quickly was relieved by his partner, Charley DeRuyter, but the pair was quickly hurled back to the field. Then Egg went away like a streak and the popular Brocco took up the quest in a spectacular pedalling in which the French-Italian rode like a man possessed. Fred Taylor and Bill Hanley stuck to the terrific pace of Egg and Brocco through the length of time this pair rode for a lap before being overhauled by the field.

Gastman Regains a Lap.

Then Gastman and Kockler went tearing around the saucer. They were joined by Stockholm and Kaiser, and these two teams, alternating in reliefs during a mile and a half of terrific riding, finally rode up on the field after winning back one of their lost laps.

The jam fortunately witnessed only one accident despite the fact that every rider in the race was on the track. It affected Charley Deruyter, who was sent crashing to the track flat when Stockholm, plunging through the field rounding the Madison Avenue turn on the Twenty-sixth Street side of the saucer, suddenly shot through a small opening in the densely packed cyclists and cut directly across the path of Deruyter. The Belgian was badly shaken, but was uninjured and quickly remounted.

In the point sprints Harry Stockelynch, Belgian cyclist, was the star. He won four of the ten sprints, flashing an exhibition of ability which greatly impressed the big crowd and earned for Stockelynch the cheers of the gathering. Stockelynch spurted over the line in front in the second, fourth, sixth and ninth sprints.

Fourth—Stockelynch, Kaiser, Hanley, Lands.

Fifth—Beckman, Degraeves, Thomas, Ferrario.

Sixth—Stockelynch, Egg, Benezatto, Rizzetto.

Seventh—Deruyter, Lawrence, Lands, Ferrario.

Eighth—Kaiser, Kockler, Lands, McNamara.

Ninth—Stockelynch, Chapman, Lands, Kockler.

Tenth—Walthour, Hanley, McBeath, Stockholm.

Ralph Greenleaf, world's pocket billiard champion, who suffered a nervous breakdown about three weeks ago following his crucial series with Frank Taberski, will resume play in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League, according to the revised schedule for the remainder of Greenleaf's games which was issued yesterday. Forty games will be played by the champion. The schedule follows:

March 13, 14, 16—Woods at Philadelphia, six games; March 18, 19, 20, St. Jean at Minneapolis, six games; March 23, 24, Rudolph at Chicago, four games; March 26, 27, 28, Rudolph at Philadelphia, six games; March 30, 31, April 1, Natalis at Baltimore, six games; April 2, 3, 4, Natalis at Philadelphia, six games; April 6, 7, 8, Taberski at New York.

Taberski, who broke the league record taking two games from Joseph Concannon at the Fourteenth Street Academy last Monday, bringing his winning streak to twenty-one straight, at present is leading Greenleaf by ten games, with twenty-eight games remaining on his schedule. Concannon reported ill yesterday and asked for a postponement of the last four games of the series. The revised schedule for the balance of Taberski's games follows:

March 9, 10, 11, Harmen at Fourteenth Street Academy, six games; March 11, 12, 13, Seaback at Boston, six games; March 26, 27, 28, Natalis at Fourteenth Street Academy, six games; April 3, 4, Concannon at Fourteenth Street Academy, four games; April 6, 7, 8, Greenleaf at Fourteenth Street Academy, six games.

CHICAGO, March 3 (Associated Press).—Young Jake Schaefer, son of the veteran wizard of the cue of the same name, for the second time wrested the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship crown from Willie Hoppe, who has held it for seventeen years, except for a few months, when he beat the retiring champion, 400 to 173 in eight innings, in the closing match of the eleventh international 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament here tonight. Schaefer went out with an unfinished run of 296.

In regaining the championship Schaefer shattered the world's record for a grand average in an international tournament with a mark of 57 5-35 for 2,500 points, surpassing his own record of 51 made when he won the championship in the 1921 tournament.

Schaefer's record showed five straight victories and no defeats. Hoppe had lost the championship before he entered tonight's match, as he was eliminated yesterday when defeated by Edouard Horemans, the Belgian, who tumbled in second place today by defeating Erich Hagenlacher, the German champion, 400 to 354, in eight innings.

Schaefer hit his stride in the final inning tonight with a high run of 296 that equaled in brilliance of performance his work in any of his earlier games. In his early innings Schaefer was not in stroke and the speed on the balls was not good, but his big inning made many long drives, many of them by choice, than he did in any previous performance.

Schaefer Wins the Bank.

Schaefer won the bank and missed his first shot and Hoppe got off to a good start after finding the balls spread and managing to get them together. He had to fight his way to his run of 82 with many bad shots and finally missed on a one-cushion attempt. After drawing a blank in his second frame, Schaefer got the balls under control in the third and started off at a good pace, missing after fifty-six on an ordinary draw shot. Hoppe missed but left Schaefer a tough one-rail shot which he also missed.

Hoppe then got started on a hard three-cushion shot and scattered the balls at the head rail but missed after running five. Schaefer found the balls under teh hat at the head rail, and after running five, missed a masse. In the fifth inning Hoppe ran 28 before leaving a long draw to the end rail. Schaefer followed with a run of 24 at the head of the table, and again missed a masse. On his next turn, Hoppe ran 96, missing a half massé, one-cushion shot. In the seventh frame Schaefer ran 19 and missed a three-rail shot with the second ball frozen to the cushion. Hoppe then ran 30, missing a massé. At this stage Hoppe had the advantage, 173 to 104.

Then Schaefer hit his stride. He began counting fast at the head of the table. The balls kept fairly well separated and he had few easy clusters. In the fifteen he drove the leader back and forth, hugging the head ball and requiring a series of masse shots. In a few minutes he tied Hoppe and was far ahead. He kept the balls close to the head rail and passed 200 as though he never intended to stop. At 296 he made a brilliant table length shot and at 298 a spectacular around the table shot left the balls scattered again.

A series of long cushioned shots with the balls coming back to perfection on each shot, kept the crowd rippling with applause. At 148 he got a kiss on at the head rail. The rest of his run was absolutely devoid of features because of its perfection.

A few minutes after the match ended Hoppe said: "Schaefer beat me and I deserved it. I had plenty of chances to win if I had only been in strokes."

To the winner goes $5,000 in cash and the diamond medal, emblematic of the championship. To Horemans, winner of second place, goes $1,500; to Hagenlacher, third, $1,000; to Hoppe, $750, and to Welker Cochran, winner of fifth place, goes $250. Kamekichi Suzuki, who lost all his games, does not figure in the prize money.

The score by innings:

Horemans Breaks Tie.

Hagenlacher and Horemans were tied with three victories and one defeat at the beginning of today's games, which began with a broadside of high runs by both players and ended with a trickle of little ones. Critics asserted that the high runs made at the beginning of the match by both players were almost as remarkable as the feat of Schaefer a few days ago in running out from spot in 400 points.

Horemans appeared supremely confident and did not seem at all worried by the high runs with which Hagenlacher started. Opening the bank Hagenlacher ran 129 from the spot, starting his run at the head rail and staying there until he had passed 80. Then he got going at the foot rail. The German left the ivories well gathered and Horemans started a session of close nursing and did not stop until he reached 144. During one period he clicked off 100 billiards without making a table length shot and finally missed a three-cushion shot.

Hagenlacher made three runs of 40 or better in four times to the table, but Horemans came back with 122 for his second run and with 25 in his fourth after 18 in the third, led 319 to 204 in four innings. The Belgian maintained the lead from this point and in the last few innings Hagenlacher showed visible signs of the great strain under which he was laboring and missed many shots that he would have made ordinarily.

The score of innings:

Hoppe-Cannefax Match Postponed.

CHICAGO, March 3.—The three-cushion return match between Willie Hoppe and Bob Cannefax, scheduled to start here March 16, will be postponed until a later date, Hoppe said today. He said the date interfered with his exhibition schedules and the league schedule of Cannefax.

KOEHLER IS STAR IN GIANTS' BATTLE

ORANGE BLOSSOMS VICTORS

SARASOTA, Fla., March 3.—The very first ball game of the new blown season was the Giants' contribution to the grand opening of Sarasota's Orange Blossom festival today. Both teams were drawn from the plentiful material on the New York squad, and by approximate count the Orange Blossoms defeated the Manhattans, 11 to 8.

It was a catch-as-catch-can contest without strikes, balls, home runs, errors or double plays, but the umpire missed two decisions and thus lent a touch of reality to it. The players enjoyed the novelty of not being able to strike out, and many a mighty smash was delivered after the hitter had taken more swings than a dub golfer getting out of a bunker. The fact that Arthur Nehf made a triple indicates how free the hitting was.

Among the others who distinguished themselves at bat were Billy Southworth, Travis Jackson, Ralph Fraser and "Pip" Koehler. In addition to collecting a triple and a double, the last named covered, according to Jack Bentley's calculation, $50,000 worth of Florida real estate in right field. Since he robbed Bentley of three hits, the figure may be taken as a conservative estimate.

At any rate, Koehler went so far back for one fly ball that he was all but lost sight of on the big playing field. Some idea of the length of the drive may be had from the fact that there was a general agreement that it would have gone into Eighth Avenue at the Polo Grounds. In all, Koehler, who is a product of Penn State, made five startling catches. He went far after every one of them and he may go further.

The game went nine innings, which was one thing about it that was according to regulations, and Maun, Manners and Greenfield each pitched three frames for the winners. Nehf, Scott and Winter occupied the firing line for the losers and they were more frequently hit than missed. This team was made up chiefly of the Crumps of Virginia and the Frischs of the Bronx.

Frank Frisch, still unsigned, played second base and Hal Frisch played short. The left-handed Crump was in centre field and the orthodox one played third.

The Orange Blossoms had Jackson at short, Groh at second and Young McAuliffe, with whom McGraw is much impressed, at third.

"That fellow," McGraw said, "may make a ball player right off the bat without the usual seasoning."

Freddie Lindstrom, kid hero of the last world's series, played first base and also batted in the first run of the game. This in spite of the fact that he is ten pounds heavier than he was last season. He is also taller and bigger in every way than he was a year ago.

The line-up:

ORANGE BLOSSOMS	MANHATTANS.
Lindstrom, 1b.	Bentley, 1b.
Groh, 2b.	F. Frisch, 2b.
McAuliffe, 3b.	J. Crump, 3b.
Wilson, lf.	Walker, lf.
Southworth, cf.	A. Crump, cf.
Koehler, rf.	Fraser, rf.

The score by innings:

Pancho Snyder, the veteran catcher; Travis Jackson, shortstop, and Al Stoner, pitcher, were the arrivals in camp today. Snyder said that his arm has entirely recovered from the soreness that bothered him during the latter part of last season. Jackson also reported himself in excellent condition. Stoner had nothing to say. He is not fully recovered from the embarrassment, or whatever it was, that drove him out of camp after a four-hour stay last year.

McINNIS IS A HOLD-OUT.

Boston First Baseman Refuses to Go to Training Camp.

BOSTON, March 3.—The second contingent of the Boston Braves left here tonight for the training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., where the batterymen already are at practice. "Stuffy" McInnis, first baseman, who has refused to sign his contract because of a salary cut, remained at his home at Manchester, while his mates of the infield and outfield took the trails out.

Before leaving Secretary Riley said McInnis and Mickey O'Neil, catcher, were the only hold-outs.

BABE RUTH STAGES THREE-HOUR DRILL

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 3.—If the Yankees' pennant chances depend on the amount of hard and faithful training done by Babe Ruth, then the Ruppert entry already is in. The race is all over but the shouting and the division of the world's series money.

No budding rookie ever toiled harder and longer than the Babe did today. He struggled through more than three hours of baseball, wore a heavy sweat shirt under a blazing sun, batted, ran around the bases something like ninety-seven times, fielded at first base in the regulars' practice and in his odd moments gamboled around the lawn behind the backstop.

When Mr. Ruth tottered silently to the clubhouse at 3 o'clock this afternoon he was melting visibly. The perspiration poured down his face, the sweat shirt was wringing wet and the aldermanic stomach and chest were heaving slightly, as if under a great strain. Without recourse to the official figures in the trainer's book, it can be said with no exaggeration that George Herman parted company with a pound or two in the course of the day.

He was hitting them better, too. The new field isn't nearly long enough for the Babe. He shot a liner into the sandy outskirts of deep right, smacked an even longer one out of bounds in centre and ended up by knocking a few among the pond lilies of furthest left. In fact, left field seemed to be his favorite target. He was looking his bat and aiming his drives over shortstop. Later, when his hands became blistery and painful, all his drives went to left, where it was less trouble to place them. What with tender and blistered hands and a batting eye still frostbitten, the home run king did well in his second bow to St. Petersburg.

Miller Huggins was a relentless taskmaster today. He had the athletes laboring until noon, rushed them into the hotel for food and sustenance, and then shot them out to the park again by 2 o'clock. It was a warm day in the morning, but the afternoon was hot, with little wind. Huggins sat on the bench in the shade and seemed to enjoy the sight of such mastodonic individuals as Ruth, O'Neill, Gehrig and Hofmann flitting about in the bright sunshine.

The only players excused from the workouts were Robert Meusel and Aaron Ward. They got the day off to rest after their tiring journey from Arkansas and spent part of the time on the golf links.

There was some resemblance to a regular infield workout this afternoon. At third was Joe Dugan, a short was Scott and at first was Ruth. In the absence of Ward, Howard Shanks played second. Later, Lew Malone took charge of third, Gehrig succeeded Ruth at first and Tom McInnyre was the second baseman.

ROBINS' FIRST GAME NETS FOUR HOMERS

Special to The New York Times.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 3.—Wilbert Robinson sent his squad of Robins through two strenuous workouts today. In the morning drill the athletes were kept in uniform about two hours and while they were at the park they indulged in extensive batting and fielding workouts. In the afternoon the squad was divided into two teams and a six-inning game was played for the benefit of about fifty spectators. In the contest the regulars won over the rookies by a score of 6 to 3.

Jess Rush and Bill Hinkle divided the slab work for the rookies and Tiny Osborne and Jim Roberts each pitched three rounds for the regulars. Many long-distance hits were made off the four pitchers, who did not attempt to fool the batters with deceptive curves or fast shoots. Jimmie Johnston and Tom Griffith, who played on the rookie team, hit successive home runs off Osborne in the first inning, and in the fifth Eddie Brown made a home run off Hinkle for the regulars. In the next inning Judge High hit one of Hinkle's left-handed offerings over the fence for the game's fourth circuit drive. Roberts doubled before High drove out his long hit.

Although he did not get a home run, Dick Cox's playing was one of the features of the battle. Cox is striving to win a regular job in the outfield and so far he has impressed his manager favorably. He made a triple and a two-bagger in the practice contest and also starred in the outfield with two running catches and a throw to third base which nailed a runner going into that bag.

Cox is a right-handed batter and so far he has loomed up as the most promising of the many rookies in camp. At bat he handles himself nicely and may make Tom Griffith hustle to hold a regular job in the outfield.

Jack Fournier, High and Johnny Mitchell arrived here this morning and took part in the two sessions. After the morning workout they were tired, but Robbie refused to excuse them from the practice game. In batting practice before the game Fournier hit several balls over the right-field fence. He appears to be in splendid shape for another championship campaign.

Dutch Henry has not yet signed his contract, but is expected to go through that ordeal in the near future. Henry and Squire Sisler are on hand for another conference tomorrow. Burleigh Grimes, Zack Taylor and Doak are the other holdouts.

Rookies	0 0 0 0 1 0 2 0 0	3	4

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 3.—The Columbia basketball team defeated the Yale quintet in a fast cage battle here tonight, 18—14. Yale got off to an early lead and had an advantage of 6—1, but at half time the score was tied at 8—8. In the second half the Blue and White players played a strong defensive game and the Ells were unable again to take the lead, although a long side shot by Captain Luman tied the score at 12—12 midway in the period.

At this juncture Captain Luman was disqualified by four fouls. His retirement weakened the Ell defense and brilliant shots by Wilson, Donaldson and Baldwin, each getting a basket, clinched victory for the visitors.

Sulsman starred for Yale, while Baldwin and Wilson played championship ball for the winners. Sulsman's nose was cut in the second half of the game. Columbia played without a substitution. Yale's shooting for baskets on free throws was poor, Sulsman missing four shots, while Laub of the victors failed in three out of five.

WALTER JOHNSON SIGNS.

Pitcher Accepts Two-Year Contract With the Senators.

TAMPA, Fla., March 3.—With the signing of Walter Johnson, only Peckinpaugh, Reuther and Ogden remain to come to terms before the entire roster of the world's champion Washington Senators will be under contract with President Griffith.

After giving all matters due consideration, the big pitching ace chose the two-year offer in preference to the contract calling for one year. While neither Johnson nor Griffith would divulge the actual figures, the cash consideration for the two years is understood to be in the neighborhood of $30,000.

KUPCHIK DEFEATS TORRE.

Abraham Kupchik, champion of the Manhattan Chess Club, yesterday won the first game of his match with Carlos Torre, the New York State champion, arranged by that club to send the winner to the international tournament at Baden-Baden next month. Torre, with the black pieces, selected the French defense, the play following the McCutcheon variation.

Kupchik broke the centre with his queen's pawn, thereby gaining a slight opening advantage. This he gradually increased, while Torre was handicapped by the weakness of the pawns on the king's side. Faced by a deficit of three pawns, Torre finally gave up a piece in desperation. This did not remedy the situation, and Kupchik scored after 38 moves. The second game will be contested tomorrow.

MIAMI, Fla., March 3.—Sunsini, the Lilane Stable's speedy little five-year-old gelding, making his first start of the year, ran an impressive race this afternoon at Hialeah Park to win the Tropical Purse, the leading number on the card. Under 105 pounds and with Ambrose up, he beat nine others over the course of a mile and seventy yards. Although he won easily he established a new track record of 1:43 2-5, clipping a full second off the former figures. The winner was the second choice and paid $8.60 for a $2 ticket.

Another track record was shattered when the Lilane Stable's two-year-old filly Hayai, with Ambrose up, ran the half mile in 0:47 flat, also shaving off a full second from the former mark. She carried 119 pounds and beat the much-touted Collier in the Goldblatt colt's first race here. The Lilane Stable, Trainer Bray and Jockey Ambrose completed their triple for the day when Wildlane, the favorite, won the sixth race for the combination.

Sunsini had not carried silks since he was twice beaten at the Bowie meeting and had not earned brackets since the Saratoga meeting last Summer. Harry Payne Whitney's five-year-old gelding Revenge, which won his only previous start here, was made the favorite, but raced wide, ran sluggishly and was not a serious contender.

W. R. Padgett's three-year-old filly Myrtle Belle cut out a fast early pace, stepping to the quarter in 0:22 3-5, the half in 0:47 flat, three-quarters in 1:12 3-5 and the mile in 1:38 4-5. She stopped badly in the last furlong and just saved the short end of the purse by a nose from the Island Farm's three-year-old colt Fuo.

White and solid colors—
Fancy stripes
Rigged in various ways—
Silk and cotton webbing.
("Sock suspenders" too; our own make.)

To go over and under the suspenders—

Favorite Is Beaten.

The winner of the other named feature also was saddled by F. M. Bray of the Lilane Stable. Hayai was the second choice for the El Portal Purse, in which eight two-year-olds went to the post for the half-mile dash, with Collier the odds-on favorite. The son of Huon and Valley of the Moon had started three times at the Fair Grounds, showing a better performance each time. In his last start he won in a field of eleven and equaled the track record of 0:41 4-5 for three and one-half furlongs.

Collier carried 122 pounds and Stutts had the mount. Collier failed to give three pounds and a beating to the filly, which showed a fine burst of speed. She went out into the lead soon after the start, shook off Collier entering the stretch and held him safely in the final drive, giving him a length and a half beating. The quarter was run in 0:23 3-5. Collier was under a hard ride all the way, but was unable to overhaul the filly. Clarence Buxton's filly Astrid was third.

Wildane beat ten others over the six-furlong course. The three-year-old gelding was forced back at the start and operated behind the leaders until entering the stretch. When Ambrose called on him he moved up with determination, assumed the lead and held Chesterbrook off in the drive, beating the latter by half a length.

Dusky Belle Scores.

The R. T. Wilson Stable horses are gathering in the money for their owner. After Faddist's surprise victory of yesterday the three-year-old filly Dusky Belle, also bred by Mr. Wilson, won her first race of the meeting in the dash of five and a half furlongs for three-year-olds and upward, beating eleven others. She was the favorite and paid $4.60. She led the Greenbriar Stable's Contribution by four lengths at the winning post.

4 Northern Countries Favor Reducing Olympic Program

PARIS, March 3.—A dispatch to L'Auto from Oslo, Norway, reports a meeting held by representatives of the athletic interests of Scandinavian countries — Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland to consider the attitude they would adopt at the approaching International Olympic Congress at Prague. It was agreed, says the message, that these countries advocate a reduction in the program for the next Olympic games, the view being taken that the extent of the program placed at a disadvantage the smaller countries which were unable to command large funds to support the games.

LONG POINT VICTOR IN THE MAGNOLIA

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Long Point, F. M. Kelly's four-year-old gelding by Ballot—Ursula Emma, won an easy victory in the Magnolia Handicap, a dash of six furlongs which featured the card at Jefferson Park this afternoon. The winner carried 109 pounds and ran the distance in the fast time of 1:12 1-5, one-fifth of a second slower than the track record. Heupel had the mount and the winner was the 9-to-5 favorite.

Eight faced the barrier in the handicap and were sent away to a good start. Long Point broke well and raced down Romp in the first quarter mile. He then took command and was well in hand at the finish to beat J. McPherson's Marvin May by a length and a half. The latter was well up all the way. P. T. Chinn's Elvina came from far back after a slow start and was up to take third money by a head from Mom's Boy.

A. G. Blakely saddled two winners for William Daniel, sending Walter E. out to win the fifth and Fearnaught to take the closing number. Heupel scored a double, riding John Q. Kelly to win the second race in addition to piloting the winner of the handicap. Four favorites rewarded their followers.

8 COLLEGES FORM POLO ASSOCIATION

DEVEREUX IS NAMED HEAD

University Horsemen to Continue Championship Tourney—Big Three Is Represented.

Following a meeting at which the Intercollegiate Polo Association was formed, the United States Polo Association yesterday received the application of the new organization for membership in the national governing body of the game in this country. The new collegiate body is made up of eight universities, and it is highly probable that it will increase in numbers with the coming seasons, as the galloping game has become tremendously popular as a college sport during the two years that the intercollegiate championship tournament has been played.

It was because there was danger of the college title event being abandoned, temporarily at least, that the Intercollegiate Polo Association was organized. For the past two years the Second Corps Area has sponsored the college play, but, as Colonel William N. Haskell, polo representative of the Second Corps Area explained at the meeting, the tournament has outgrown the facilities which the military authorities are able to offer. The tournament was started by Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard for the benefit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps units in the various Eastern colleges. However, after one year of competition the game proved so popular with the students that athletes who were not members of the R. O. T. C. tried out for the teams, and colleges which were not in the area of the Second Army Corps sought to play in the title tournament.

The result of the great and sudden growth of the event precluded the possibility of the Second Corps Area handling the affair in the future and Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, who succeeded General Bullard in command of the Second Corps Area, this year recommended that the United States Polo Association sponsor the event in the future. This attitude was explained by the military representatives at the meeting, and Louis E. Stoddard, Chairman of the United States Polo Association, approved and agreed with General Summerall's attitude. However, he believed that the colleges themselves should organize and become a member association of the national body.

This suggestion met with the approval of the college delegates present at the meeting, and a constitution was adopted, officers were elected, other business of the organization was completed and an application for membership in the United States Polo Association was presented. This application cannot be acted upon until the next meeting of the Executive Committee of the national body, but there is no doubt of its being accepted, as Mr. Stoddard, who was present at the meeting, not only assured the college delegates of the support of his association, but offered to put the U. S. P. A. business organization at the disposal of the colleges for conducting the championship tournament.

Devereux Is Chosen.

Alvin Devereux, President of the Princeton Polo Association, was unanimously elected President of the Intercollegiate Polo Association. George M. Carnochan of Harvard was elected Secretary and Treasurer and F. S. O'Reilly of the United States Polo Association was elected Assistant Secretary and Treasurer. Mr. Devereux long has been one of the leading influences in the development of polo in the colleges. As President of the Princeton association he is head of the team that now holds the intercollegiate title, and which also won the national college championship at the University of Arizona tourney, four, winner of the Western honors, in a special series at Fort Hamilton last year.

The Executive Committee, with representatives from each college which holds a membership in the new association, was tentatively selected. It is planned to reduce the number of the Executive Committee at a future date, in order to make the handling of business easier, but it was decided that it would be best to have each college represented until the organization began functioning smoothly and details were completed.

The eight colleges became charter members of the new organization. They are Princeton, Harvard, Yale, West Point, Cornell, Pennsylvania Military College, Virginia Military Institute and Norwich University. Their representatives on the Executive Committee follow: Alvin Devereux, Princeton, Chairman; Major V. A. Arnold, Yale; Major Harding Polk, V. M. I.; Lieut. Col. Frank K. Hyatt, P. M. C.; Colonel Frank B. Edwards, Norwich; Major Arthur W. Holderness, West Point; G. M. Carnochan, Harvard, and Major R. E. Anderson, Cornell.

Others who were present at the organization meeting of the Intercollegiate Polo Association were Captain F. B. Prickett and M. H. Wilson, Princeton; Louis E. Stoddard and F. S. O'Reilly, United States Polo Association; Lieutenant G. B. McReynolds, West Point; Colonel William N. Haskell and Captain Arthur L. Warren, Second Corps Area; Clarence L. Connor and Newton Wyman, Pennsylvania Military College; H. R. Shurtleff, Harvard, and Henry Baldwin, captain of the Yale team.

Title Tourney Discussed.

The place and date of the tournament for 1925 were discussed at length, but no definite decision was reached. It was generally agreed, however, that the tournament should be held in June instead of the early part of May, which has been the time for the past two events. The later date was favored because it would give the various teams competing the opportunity to play a longer preliminary schedule and thereby bring their game up to a stronger point than heretofore was possible. This would, of course, tend to produce better polo in the championship event. Norwich University, for example, has had to go into the title tournament with only a few weeks of outdoor practice because of the long Winter in Vermont. The later date would allow the Norwich team time in which to become accustomed to outdoor play and to enter the tournament almost as well trained as any of the other contestants.

Several places are being considered as the scene of this year's tournament and a decision is expected to be announced by the end of this week. Among the possible places are the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye, N. Y.; the Meadow Brook on Long Island, scene of last year's international matches with England; the Crescent Athletic Club in Brooklyn, the Philadelphia Country Club and Bryn Mawr, just outside of Philadelphia, and the Pennsylvania Military College field at Chester, Pa.

CHAPMAN CAPTURES PINEHURST MEDAL

LEADS A FIELD OF 280

PINEHURST, N. C., March 3.—Pinehurst golf history was repeated here today when J. D. Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., led the field of over 280 starters in the Spring tournament with a total of 152 strokes for the thirty-six-hole qualifying round. His two rounds of 75—77 totaled just one more stroke than he needed to win the qualifying medal last year.

Chapman's consistency is best shown in that his rounds, divided into outgoing and incoming nines, read 37, 38, 38, 38. Only one other player equaled Chapman's 77 today, that being Bucky P. Merriman of Waterbury, Conn., who staged a comeback after taking eighty-five strokes yesterday. Joseph Hotchkiss of New Haven was Chapman's nearest rival. On Monday he was tied for third position with a round of 78, played on No. 2. Today, on No. 3 course, he gathered a 79, needing 42 to go out and 37 coming in. He had a pair of damaging sixes.

Donald Parsons of Youngstown, Ohio, wound up in third position with a pair of 79s. T. Russell Brown of Montclair, who was up with the leaders on the opening day, needed 83 strokes over the No. 2 course today and ended in fourth place with P. S. P. Randolph of Point Judith a point in back of him. The latter scored 79, 82—161.

The summaries:

The expected decision by the State Athletic Commission on the question of the acceptance and the disposition of the challenges of Harry Wills and Tom Gibbons was not forthcoming yesterday at the end of the board's meeting, although the subject came in for considerable discussion. It was announced that the matter again had been deferred, this time until next Friday's meeting, because the discussion was suddenly halted through the departure of Commissioner James A. Farley, who had to catch a train for Albany.

It is understood that in the discussion, as far as it progressed, the three Commissioners were divided on the subject. According to information, Commissioner Farley advocated the acceptance of Wills's challenge and recognition of the New Orleans negro as the foremost challenger, giving him preference over Gibbons. Chairman George E. Brower and Commissioner Muldoon, it was said, favored accepting both challenges and ordering an elimination match to determine the man best qualified to face Dempsey when the champion decides to return to the ring. The discussion had not reached that stage where the question was ready for a vote when Commissioner Farley was compelled to leave in order to catch his train.

The ceremony of swearing in Chairman Brower, whose reappointment to the commission was announced last week, was deferred, it was announced, until today.

Survivors of the first round in the commission's lightweight championship elimination tournament and their managers assembled in the office before the regular meeting for the draw for the second round of the tournament, which will be held March 9 in Madison Square Garden. Three ten-round matches are planned for this resumption of the competition arranged for the purpose of producing a successor to Benny Leonard, who recently announced his retirement.

O'Brien Gets Delay.

Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo boxer, will engage K. O. Clyde Jacklo of Toledo in the first match. Benny Valger, east side veteran, will face Basil Gallano, New Orleans contender, in the second, and in the third bout Charlie O'Connell, Cleveland boxer, will tackle Sol Seeman of Brooklyn.

Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee lightweight, participated in the draw and drew a match against Joe Benjamin, Pacific Coast lightweight. This bout, however, was deferred until April 30, to be held at the New York Velodrome, with the consent of the managers and boxers present, because of the fact that O'Brien broke his right hand in knocking out K. O. George Chaney in his first-round match.

Chairman Brower announced that a request had been sent to foreign countries which have agreed to enter representatives in the tournament to arrange their plans in order that the foreign section of the tournament might start on April 30. Spain, Cuba, Italy, England, Germany and South America have accepted invitations to have representation. It was announced that France had not yet replied to the commission's request for the designation of a lightweight contender. Canada also has failed to name a representative.

In South America it was said seven different countries are eager to be represented, and because of this there is the likelihood that an elimination tournament may be conducted there. Chairman Brower has notified the South American officials that unless the tournament can be completed by April 30 several representatives would be accepted in the commission's tournament. In the event that this plan is not acceptable to the South Americans it is likely the commission will designate Luis Vicentini as South America's representative.

By mutual consent the commission gave Sammy Mandell, Rockford (Ill.) lightweight who recently won a decision over Sid Terris, another bye, automatically placing him in the third round of the tournament. It was announced that Harry Mason, England's original entry, has been replaced by Ernie Izzard.

Referees Instructed on Rules.

The commission declined to change its rule governing the situation which arises in the ring when a boxer falls to the floor without being hit. Chairman Brower maintained that there is no conflict in the rules, one of which says the count will be resumed over a boxer who is floored, regains his feet before the count of ten, and falls without being hit, while another describes falling to the floor without being hit as a foul meriting disqualification. Referees have been instructed in the interpretation of the rules as they are to be applied to different situations in the ring, it was said, and it is expected that future confusion on the rules will be eliminated.

John McGrath, manager of Jim Maloney, Boston's young heavyweight, appeared before the commission requesting an expression of the board's attitude on a challenge on behalf of Maloney to Jack Dempsey. Chairman Brower informed McGrath a challenge from Maloney would receive the attention that any other challenge receives, but, at the same time, suggested that McGrath arrange less important matches for the youngster before seeking to gain for him a title bout.

Tran Hawes, boxer, who was disqualified recently for fouling in a bout at the Commonwealth S. C., was let off with a reprimand. Russell Romano, a second, was suspended for thirty days for violation of the rules in connection with a recent bout at the Ridgewood Grove S. C. Mickey Travers, who was summoned to answer a charge of having engaged in a bout in Philadelphia and another in Albany on successive nights, in violation of the commission's regulations, was let off with a reprimand when it was pointed out he was a substitute boxer in each bout.

JIM MALONEY BEATS BRIGHT

Jim Maloney, Boston's promising young heavyweight, last night won the decision from Dan Bright, English boxer, in the six-round bout which featured the heavyweight carnival at the Pioneer A. C. Maloney won every round of the six.

Maxie Rosenbloom won the decision from Hambone Kelly, Boston heavyweight, in the six-round semi-final. Yale Okun, east side youngster, knocked out Phil Weissberger in two rounds. Weissberger having been substituted Tom Kirby, former amateur boxer of Boston. Ed Kinsley stopped Jack Smith in one round and Joe Boggi knocked out Frankie Case in two rounds. In a six-round battle Murray Gilliffs won the decision from Eddie Lagos.

BERLENBACH TO BOX SIKI.

Light Heavyweights Will Meet in Garden on March 13.

Paul Berlenbach, Astoria hard-hitting light heavyweight, and Battling Siki, Senegalese boxer who formerly held the world's championship title, yesterday were matched to clash in Madison Square Garden on March 13. The boxers are slated for the main twelve-round bout. In another twelve-round battle Frankie Schoell, Buffalo middleweight, will tackle Larry Estridge, Harlem negro boxer.

A. A. U. Finalists Will Box In Pan-American Tourney

BOSTON, March 3.—The winner and runner-up in each class of the national amateur boxing championship meet to be held in Boston April 13 and 14 will be selected to represent the United States in an international boxing tournament between North and South America to be conducted in May. This was officially announced in the entry blanks for the annual A. A. U. meet which were mailed last night from the Boston A. A. Entries for the national tournament will close April 6. Not more than ten entries will be accepted from any one district association of the A. A. U. Champions will be crowned in eight classes.

NURMI RUNS TONIGHT IN BROOKLYN GAMES

To Try for Mark in 106th Armory—Will Face Ritola in K. of C. Meet March 17.

Paavo Nurmi, the phenomenal Finn, together with Willie Ritola, his fellow-countryman, Carl Christiernson, Swedish hurdling sensation, and Willie Plant, America's premier walker, will be the star performers in a choice field of athletes who will compete tonight in the fifty-fifth indoor games of the 106th Infantry, in its armory at Lafayette and Bedford Avenues, Brooklyn.

The track at the armory has been remodeled especially for this meet, to conform to that in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, admitted to be one of the fastest in the country. Nurmi's record attempt will be made in the 1½-mile race; Ritola will try to improve his own world's record for 2½ miles; Plant will try to better the world's mark for the 1½-mile walk made by George Goulding of Canada, and Christiernson will start against a select field of hurdlers in the 80-yard high hurdle race.

Jackson Schols, Olympic 200-meter champion, will engage a field of ten of the best sprinters in the district in a special 100-yard race and Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C., Metropolitan one-mile champion, is the outstanding star in the special two-thirds of a mile race.

The annual indoor athletic meet of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, originally scheduled for March 18 at the 102d Engineers Regiment Armory, will be held on March 17 in Madison Square Garden, it was announced yesterday at local Amateur Athletic Union headquarters, when the transfer of the date was completed after arrangements had been made for the use of the Garden. The change in the K. of C. meet date involves a definite abandonment of plans for a second Finnish-American A. C. indoor athletic meet, for which plans were under consideration by Hugo Quist, trainer of the Finnish club and adviser to Paavo Nurmi and Willie Ritola.

A desire to lend added significance to the K. of C. meet through consenting to have Nurmi and Ritola appear in special races originally contemplated as part of the abandoned Finnish-American A. C. meet, and the criticism of the plans for a second Finnish-American meet, were factors in inducing an abandonment of the Finnish plans, it was announced.

The change is expected to work to the benefit of the K. of C., because it involves an arrangement whereby Nurmi and Ritola will appear in two races for which local athletic followers have been clamoring. The two rival Finns are to measure strides in a special 5,000-meter run, and also will race in a special mile run in which Lloyd Hahn, present indoor record holder for the distance; Joie Ray and Leo Larrivee are expected to compete.

Hahn and Larrivee already have entered for this test, and Ray, it was announced, has assured the K. of C. officials of his intention of entering the race, subject to the approval of the tricolor Club. The races promise two of the most important events of the current board floor season, and are expected to produce new world's records.

NEW ZEALANDERS ENTER.

File Challenge for Davis Cup and Will Compete in U. S. Zone.

The fifteenth challenge for the Davis Cup this year was received yesterday at the offices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. New Zealand is the latest country to file its official entry, specifying the American zone. This makes the third country entered in this zone, Japan and Mexico being the two others.

New Zealand played last year in the European zone and was eliminated in the second round by Czechoslovakia. F. M. B. Fisher and J. C. Peacock composed the team from the Antipodes. It is expected that the combination that will be sent to the United States will include several of the younger players of New Zealand, among whom are Oliver, Laurenson, Andrews and Bartlett. Until two years ago the players of New Zealand played on the Australasian team. The New Zealand Association withdrew from the Australasian Association and challenged as a separate nation last year, while Australia challenges separately also. The appearance of the New Zealand players will mark the first time players from that country have been seen in this country since 1914.

COWARD IS BEATEN IN NATIONAL SQUASH

SPEED PROVES OF NO AVAIL

Victor Solves Rival's Smashing Attack at Start — Hyde and Haines Among the Winners.

Thomas R. Coward of the Yale Club, former national amateur squash tennis champion and an even favorite to win the title again with Fillmore Van S. Hyde of the Harvard Club, the present champion, whom he has beaten three times out of four this season, was eliminated yesterday from the national championship tournament in progress at the Columbia University Club. Otis L. Guernsey, also a member of the Yale Club and former star football player for the Blue, defeated the game's greatest exponent of smash in the third round after a terrific battle for over an hour. The score was 17—16, 5—15, 15—11. Guernsey's exhibition was one of the finest ever seen on a court in this city. A capacity gallery that witnessed the match was thrilled again and again by the matchless perfection of his play as he stood off Coward's dazzling speed and beat him at his own game.

Coward was not in the best of condition. In fact, he was jeopardizing his health in going on the court, for on Monday night he had a fever of 102. Nevertheless, he played the sort of squash that one expects from the man who has been able to beat the champion three times in a season, and Guernsey must be given full credit for his victory.

The former hero of the Yale gridiron played as close to flawless squash as it seems possible for any one to play. His recoveries of his opponent's fast, low drives around the corner near the back wall were a constant succession of wonder to the gallery and exemplified wrist action that approached art. Fully as impressive as these marvelous recoveries, made with a flick of the racquet, was Guernsey's anticipation. Almost before he made his shots he sensed where the ball was to go and the kind of stroke his opponent was to make. Whenever he perceived that Coward was to have the chance to bet himself for one of his tremendous drives straight up and down Guernsey was up to the front like a flash to meet the ball as it came off the back wall, with the result that he not only was not aced but was able to time his return shot carefully.

Coward Changes Tactics.

Coward soon despaired of beating his opponent at speed, remarking during a moment's respite, "What good is speed against him?" Before the first game had ended the former champion had changed from a straight up-and-down game to driving around the walls, and he did not switch to his smashing wallops again until he had rushed through the second game and the third had got under way. Guernsey was forced to take a respite from his tremendous exertions of the first game, during which he pounded the ball with as much pace as did his opponent and rushed around the court to make the most daring gets. Coward's footwork was not as good as usual, the result of his illness, and he did not expend as much energy in the first game as did his opponent, with the result that he had a lot left in reserve for the second.

Coward allowed the first game to slip from him after he had led at 14—10, overhauling Guernsey's early lead of 5—1. Needing only one point for the game, the former champion was retired scoreless for three hands, while Guernsey pulled up to 14—all and set a game of five. After the hardest sort of struggling for nine hands, during which the two men showed the finest sort of sportsmanship when a point meant the winning or loss of the game, Guernsey finally won the deciding point on a change of pace.

In the second game Coward's low drives around the walls scored constantly for him, Guernsey making little effort to return the ball, either because he was too tired or realized the futility of trying to get his racquet on it. His best work in the game was a run of three, all beautiful placements, which brought him to within a point of Coward, at 4—3.

Third Game Hard Fought.

The third game was a battle every inch of the way. First one man scored and then the other, neither ever leading by more than two points. Guernsey took the lead at 9—7, Coward went ahead at 10—9 and Guernsey came back with a run of two to lead again at 11—10. Another run of two right after decided matters, and two hands later Guernsey went out with another run of two, Coward hitting into the tell-tale for the final point. The former champion's control was not nearly so good as it is usually, and he constantly expressed disgust with himself over his errors. Guernsey's errors were almost every one forced, so perfectly did he handle his racquet.

Eight players were left in the tournament at the end of play yesterday. They are Hyde, William Rand Jr. of Harvard, Rowland B. Haines of Columbia and Auguste J. Cordier of Yale, all in the upper half, and Guernsey, Dr. Harold R. Mixsell of Princeton, Hewitt Morgan of Harvard and Charles M. Bull Jr. of the Crescent A. C. in the lower division. All of them, with the exception of Guernsey, were seeded in the draw. Hyde will meet Rand at 5:15 this afternoon and Haines will play Cordier at the same hour. At 6 o'clock Guernsey will meet Mixsell and Morgan will face Bull.

Hyde met with worthy opposition from D. S. Baker of Yale. The latter played fine squash and forced the champion to show his best wares at times before yielding at 15—10, 15—12. Bull was extended by C. G. Davidson of the Crescents, winning at 15—11, 18—17. Haines had no easy task to get by H. Victor Crawford of Yale, being closely pressed in both games. The scores was 15—10, 15—11. The other survivors advanced without being extended.

MISS COLLETT WINS MEDAL WITH AN 82

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., March 3.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., former women's national golf champion, easily won the qualifying medal in the annual Bellcair Heights tournament here today, leading Mrs. Alex Smith of New York by six strokes.

Miss Collett, who held the Bellcair title, made the round in 82, with Mrs. Smith netting 88 and Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., 89. The three were the only ones out of a field of 54 to come under ninety.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, national champion, required 93 strokes for the round and scores of 100 were necessary for several of the sixteen remaining in the tournament.

The scores of the other sixteen low entries were:

Mrs. G. H. Stetson, Philadelphia, 91; Miss Dorothy Klots, Chicago, 91; Mrs. C. S. Fox, Philadelphia, 93; Miss Ruth Perry, Philadelphia, 96; Miss Frances Hadfield, Milwaukee, 97; Miss Helen Payson, Portland, Me., 98; Miss Harriet Ellison, Boston, 98; Mrs. G. K. Morrow, New York, 98; Miss Fritzi Bilfel, Wheeling, 100; Mrs. Philip Stevenson, New York, 100; Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kan., 100; Mrs. J. W. Turnbull, Philadelphia, 100.

MRS. MALLORY EASILY WINS.

Beats Miss Brokaw in Florida Tourney—Mrs. Stenz Scores.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 3.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, many times national champion, advanced to the semi-final round today in the annual Florida women's tennis tournament on the Poinciana Courts. In her third-round match she defeated a New York player, Miss Julia Brokaw, in straight sets, 6—2, 8—1. Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz won in the same round from Mrs. Stokes Weaver, also of New York, by 6—0, 6—4.

In the continuation of the second round Miss Clare Cassel, who has won the trophy twice, as has Mrs. Mallory, defeated Mrs. Walter J. Hill, 6—0, 6—2. Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris was eliminated by Mrs. DeForest Candee in a three-set match, 6—3, 1—6, 6—2. The 5 Cent Cigar of Merit

Made by the Makers of ADMIRATION CIGARS

We cut out the BAND—

And give you five good cigars for 15c

SOMEBODY has to pay the piper—when flossy frills are added to the cost of a cigar. And the piper's music imparts no extra sweetness to your smoke.

(C)—And the cost of selling one cigar at a time instead of selling in quantity lots.

All this "orchestral din" of expensive trimmings has been eliminated from LE ROYS. We make them in volume—and sell them that way—five at a clip—giving you the bulk buyer's discount.

There's no tip to snip; no furbelows of any kind to inflate the cost. Just pure cigar quality from opening-whiff to farewell puff.

By selling 5 at a time, we save four profits—and give you the saving. 5 golden blended 4½ inch perfecto quality cigars for 15c.

Actor Going to Italy for Rest—Will Gather Material for Play.

Walter Hampden, Shakespearean actor, sailed yesterday on the Italian liner Dante Alighieri for Naples, Genoa and Palermo. Several hundred of his admirers were at the pier to wave good-bye. Mr. Hampden appeared on the passenger list as Walter Hampden Daugherty, the same name being given in his passport. He was accompanied by Mrs. Daugherty and their daughter, Miss Mary Hampden Daugherty.

Mr. Hampden said he would rest for a few weeks in Florence and then go to the Province of Umbria to gather material for a dramatization of "The Ring and the Rose," in which he probably will appear in New York next Fall.

Another passenger on the Dante Alighieri was William F. Doerr, one of the German representatives who turned over the dirigible Los Angeles to the United States Government after her transatlantic flight.

Basaldos in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 3.—Señor Carlos Ortiz Basaldo of the Argentine arrived from New York late yesterday with his bride, who until last week was Lenore Hughes, partner of Maurice, the dancer. They soon will sail for the Orient and Europe on their honeymoon. They expect to live in Paris. Meanwhile, Señors Basaldo hopes to help Maurice find a new dancing partner, for her marriage was a surprise to him and left him with unfulfilled contracts.

Town's Smartest Address
Acknowledged as the place where society par sang may enjoy to the fullest the courses of a meticulously prepared dinner and still be on time for the rise of the first curtain—without subscribing to indigestion; where, amid exquisite surroundings which harmonize with the irresistible strains of Siry's orchestra uppertendom may dance those palling hours, from nine until one-thirty, away; and where the ultra aristocratic neighbors and their friends no matter where it is they dine, may sip their demi-tasse and, par parenthese, as "guests" of the establishment. Quite the most unique feature that! What's more, one that is proving very popular.

A TRIUMPH IN STAGECRAFT

LOUIE THE 14TH. A musical comedy in two acts, adapted from the German of Frank and Julius Wilhelm, by Arthur Wimperis. Music by Sigmund Romberg. Lyrics by Arthur Wimperis. Staged by Edward Royce. Produced by Florenz Ziegfeld. At the Cosmopolitan Theatre.

Florenz Ziegfeld Jr., in taking over the Cosmopolitan Theatre in Columbus Circle last night, was able to make his first musical production in a theatre completely under his control. That debut as a theatre manager, auspiciously made, he coupled it with the presentation of an abundant and gorgeously staged musical show called "Louie XIV." The results certainly met the expectations of all, and exceeded those of most.

No one knows better than Mr. Ziegfeld, of course, that each succeeding production from his workshop must outdo its predecessors in magnificence. From the standpoint of richness that artists showman has seemed to reach the limit on several occasions, only to dazzle anew with a lavishness of costuming and blending of colorings when the next entertainment came along. The miracle was wrought again at the Cosmopolitan Theatre last night. It is something of a triumph in stagecraft, is this musical production. Mr. Ziegfeld's part in the proceedings has been carried off with so fine a hand that "Louie XIV" emerges as an excellent show, despite the fact that it has intrinsic weaknesses. These occasional shortcomings, however, are in this instance forgotten in the general magnificence. But Mr. Ziegfeld, of course, has done more than merely to furnish magnificence in enormous quantities. He has combined his splendor with taste. That, come to think of it, is what he has been doing all these years.

"Louie XIV," is the work of the English Arthur Wimperis, and, like "Sky High," came earlier from Germany. Its scenes are laid in the French Alps—which has given the scene designer good opportunities, you may be sure—and as played last night in Columbus Circle it seemed to be pretty strictly Mr. Wimperis's play, bent here and there to the Ziegfeld purpose. Probably, for example, Mr. Wimperis had not made room in the beginning for the Joan of Arc pageant which concludes the first act, and it is doubtful if he provided for the gold-laden dinner table that came up through the floor a little later.

At times, too, the story has been opened out a bit, or just halted, to make a little more room for Leon Errol, who is the star. Mr. Errol, if somewhat limited, is undeniably highly humorous. Again and again it is possible to watch his distress over the legs that simply will not support him, and to be vastly amused thereby. In his new venture he is by turn an army cook, an Alpine guide and a fraudulent nobleman—all characters well suited to the Errol purpose. The situations thus provided seem constantly about to become a little funnier than they ever do—they are not wrung to the full by the librettist. The building up of these promising portions of the show, with an accompanying cutting of several less entertaining scenes, would work a vast improvement. Last night, also, many of these scenes of no consequence were played with a stately precision that has no place in musical comedy.

After Mr. Ziegfeld and Mr. Errol, Sigmund Romberg should be cited for the writing of a rich and variegated and musicianly score. A song entitled "Homeland" is an ingenious blending of new measures with the familiar strains of "Home, Sweet Home," and as sung by Harry Fender seemed to be a favorite with last night's audience.

A new prima donna from London named Doris Patston proved pleasantly capable, and there was effective work by Ethel Shutta, a comedienne who manages to look a little like Billie Burke and a little like Queenie Smith. The company is huge, and Edward Royce has handled it skillfully in staging the many numbers.

Theatre Is Redecorated.

In recent years the Cosmopolitan, formerly the home of legitimate productions as the Park Theatre, has been used for the exhibition of moving pictures, primarily those released by William Randolph Hearst's Cosmopolitan Pictures. Mr. Ziegfeld has announced that he has acquired the theatre for five years under a direct lease from Mr. Hearst and in a recent statement stressed the fact that he has complete control of the theatre and the productions to be made there by him.

Several hundred sight-seers braved last night's cold weather to gather around the entrance to the theatre to watch the first night audience enter. Among the well-known persons in the audience were John Wanamaker, Mrs. W. R. Hearst, James W. Gerard, Condé Nast, Adolph S. Ochs, Tex Rickard, R. S. Rothschild, the Grand Duke Boris, Sailing Baruch, A. L. Erlanger, Adolph Zukor, Ruth Chatterton, Beatrice Lillie, Mary Hay, Jesse Lasky, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Bernard Baruch and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. D. Meador. Many of them had seats in the newly created Diamond Horseshoe, which consists of sixty-eight loges arranged within the first few rows of the balcony.

The theatre has been redecorated and in part remodeled, under the direction of Joseph Urban. A new proscenium arch was designed by Mr. Urban. A crystal chandelier, of more than 13,000 pieces of cut crystal, has been retained from the former occupancy.

Sixteen panels, painted by Mr. Urban on canvas, have been set into the walls and ceiling, and twelve Urban lunettes on gold background are at the rear of the orchestra. A number of Flemish tapestries are hung in frames on both sides of the wall above the balcony level, with arches of solid, hand-cased bronze beneath them. There are, too, several panels, with their story of the triumphant entry of Alexander into Babylon.

An episodic play in eleven scenes, always entertaining, sometimes rising in constellation with Doris Keane's lustre into genuine significance and theatrical fascination, "Starlight" finally arrived last night at the Broadhurst Theatre after its California triumphs and New York delays. The final curtain last night brought an ovation here.

The play was written for Doris Keane and turns around her from the first curtain to the last. The starlight character, Aurelie the actress, has something of the fantastic poetry of the Cavallina in "Romance," though less poignancy, something of the Cesarina's cynical flair, though less strength; but she has more variety than either of these and more range in the incidents of her story. "Starlight" is not the history of any one actress, but of all actresses seen quintessentially. Bernhardt is drawn on for material, since she of all the world's theatre was the super-actress in temperament and fantastic fortunes. But the actress in "Starlight," who scatters herself to the wind like golden rain, is not Sarah Bernhardt, though she has been variously said to be.

Gladys Unger has written a play that is frankly theatre; it has the high lighting and glare of effective stage creation. It is at times straight farce. But it has more than that. Ingenious theatre it is, with these scenes that shew Aurelie from her first entrance, as a girl about to make a little début, through her succession of failures and triumphs, her love, her ambition, her marriage to her manager, her divorce and marriage to a title for her child's sake, her glorious and musical fortunes across the seas after every one has despaired of her success, and at length her majestic conclusion. But "Starlight" has also a certain authenticity and point to it. As the life of an actress it is farcically authentic, for all its spirits and clever devilries. It romps about Parnassus and winks at the Muses; it crowds with wigs, busties, half a century of smart gowns and models, with finance, parenthood, faithful love, old age; its tongue is in its cheek over greatness, fame and chance in human life; but it is alive.

Aurelie is seen comically to the point of burlesque, but at bottom the portrait is a true one. For all this banter and speed that the playwright puts her to, she expresses not a little of the fire and animal dignity of genius. The absurdity of her ego is not greater than its indomitable powers; her vanity is less than her applause and fame. You laugh and mock at her but are impressed by her, as her audiences were. You take this creature as an amazing child who should be spanked and then crowned with laurel. And in the end you let her have her triumph, knowing that you may as well do so, since she is insuppressible.

Doris Keane's Aurelie, suffering from first night nerves, had all the characteristics of the role, its variety of mood, its exacting swiftness of shadows and lights, its willful creative drive, all seen through the eyes of wit, farce and sentiment combined, and with a certain cosmopolitan and irony style and an instinct for laughter. Technically the movements on the stage were flowing and beautiful. Her costumes were a drama in themselves. The transitions from scene to scene, with the sudden changes in time and situation, were securely rendered, without too much insistence on the mere change in them. The mere physical feat of such a rôle is immense.

The company as a whole played none too well. Aurelie's mother and father and first husband might all have been pushed much further into characters, every one, in fact, needing pointing up. Florence Short as the mother and Charles Meredith as Lucien, the faithful lover, played sympathetically, but both were in need of more detail and exaggeration. The children's parts went unusually well. Borden Harriman was a satisfactory Lucien the second, Henry Mowbray a presentable marquis. But on the whole Miss Keane deserves a much better company.

The settings by Frederick Jones and Ruth Branner were unequal in quality, but Mr. Jones's design for Aurelie's bathroom in which so effective a scene takes place, and his setting for Aurelie's salon in the tenth scene were delightfully in the key of the play, richly and ingeniously contrived.

"THE COMPLEX" OPENS AT BOOTH THEATRE

Blink	Robert Montgomery
Miss Septima Windle	Miss Percy Haswell
Terry Peters	Georges Backus
Mr. John Weston	Pacie Ripple
Felicia Windle	Dorothy Hall
Rogay Amory Weston	William A. Williams
Dr. Hale	Robert Harrison
Miss Birch	Mildred Lee
Felix Whitteridge	William Balfour

It was inevitable that a full-length play about psychoanalysis would reach the New York theatre one of these days. It came yesterday by way of a special matinee at the Booth, and, called "The Complex," it is the work of Dr. Louis E. Bisch, himself a practitioner of note in the field of the subconscious and allied regions.

The new play is, first, almost incredibly wordy. With a peculiar technique of playwrighting, melodramatic happenings are crowded into the last few moments of each act, and as preparation to them there are tens and tens of minutes of precise conversation.

At least one reporter in yesterday's audience, which attended the proceedings with sympathetic interest, is unable to pass an authoritative judgment on the psychoanalytic problem that the author presented. His plot involved the predicament of a charming young woman, newly wed, who developed what was known to the philistines as a case of nerves, but what turned out to be a deep love for a father whom she had never seen. All, however, was happily adjusted for the final curtain.

The acting was satisfactory throughout. Miss Georges Backus, in a most grateful rôle, seemed to meet with the largest share of audience approval, as a pert, affectionate, Minxy friend. Dorothy Hall, as the matron in distress, was personable and plausibly agitated by her troubles. Robert Harrison was a quiet and confidence-inspiring doctor. William A. Williams was appropriate as the bewildered husband. Further good performances were given by Pacie Ripple, Mildred Lee and Miss Percy Haswell, who also staged the piece.

Francis MacMillan in Recital.

An audience of good size attended the last of Francis MacMillan's violin recitals at Carnegie Hall last evening. Mr. MacMillan began with a Goldmark Aria and the Pugnani-Kreisler prelude and Allegro, both of which require, and received, broad treatment. They placed Mr. MacMillan on a firm footing with his audience, which recalled him four times at the conclusion of Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," but reserved its warmest approval for Brahms's Sonata in D minor. With the valuable assistance of Richard Hageman at the piano, Mr. MacMillan came near perfection in the slower movements, though he was not quite so satisfying in the final presto-agitato. Mr. Hageman, as usual, made his presence felt as an accompanist.

TURKISH CABINET, DEFEATED, RESIGNS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3.—After a meeting of the Popular Party, lasting over ten hours, at which the President of the Republic was present by special request and gave his views in reply to questions addressed him by Fethi Bey, the Prime Minister, the Government was put in a minority and resigned.

The official communiqué does not state the nature of the motion which caused the Ministry to fall. It appears that Fethi was beaten by 93 votes to 60.

Angora correspondents agree in conjecturing that the subject of discussion was the internal policy of the Government with special reference to the Kurdish revolt.

On the assumption that this is correct it would seem that either the insurrection has been unduly minimized by Fethi or that extremist Republicans seized the occasion to upset the Prime Minister, who was never popular with them, and propose now, in the words of one Deputy, "to complete the revolution," presumably by vigorous measures against the new Progressive Party, the Kess, the Hojas and any other persons or institutions suspected of working against the existing régime.

No fresh developments are reported from Kurdistan, but the Government troops are expected to come in serious contact with the insurgents today.

MOSUL, March 3.—Turks are reported to have withdrawn all frontier posts along the northern frontier of Iraq in the neighborhood of Zakho and to have given as the reason that they are "at war with the Greeks."

PARIS, March 3.—The British Ambassador, Lord Crewe, called on Premier Herriot last night with reference, it is understood, to the permission given by the French Government for the transportation by rail across Syria of Turkish troops sent to repress the revolt in Kurdistan.

France in 1921 gave assurances to England that the use of the railroad would never be granted for Turkish operations against England, and the French view is that if the Turkish troops are solely intended for local police purposes England has no ground for objection.

But the British Government is said to feel that it will have the right to complain if the Turks use the facilities thus afforded to bring about a concentration near Iraq with a view to influencing the decision of the League of Nations Council, which is about to attempt settlement of the Anglo-Turkish differences over the Mosul district of Iraq.

TESTIFIES TO KILLING 4 TO CHEAT COMMUNISTS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, March 3.—The trial which has begun at Zhitomir of a man named Simbaluk for the killing of his four children, aged 5, 7, 9 and 15, from religious motives lest they should become Communists, is a striking illustration of the confusion produced among primitive peasantry in the remote Russian villages by Bolshevist persecution of the Russian Orthodox Church and the irreligious teaching of the Soviet anti-church campaigns.

The confusion has resulted in a great increase in the number of sects with fantastic beliefs, some adopting creeds of sects existing before the revolution—the Malevantal sect, for example, which was thought to have disappeared. It recently was revived in the Ukraine and gained considerable following among the peasantry. The sect was founded a few decades ago by a certain Malevanny, who prophesied the impending end of the world. The population of whole districts followed him in selling their property in expectation of death, but Malevanny ended his days in the Kazan lunatic asylum.

Surviving disciples lately have gained a considerable support among peasants of the Ukraine, one of them being a man named Kornei, who started an offshoot group called the Kornei sect, professing strange doctrines and absolutely repudiating marriage.

The trial in Zhitomir disclosed the fact that the Korneists considered it sinful to have children, whom they called "red dragons, who might develop into future Communists."

Simbaluk is said to have put on white raiment and to have brutally killed his four sleeping children. He denied setting his hut afire, saying he felt some pity for the dead children and placed above the corpses a holy taper, which probably fell and caused the hut to catch fire.

Kornei himself, who is worshipped by his followers as holy, is also being tried.

FLETA SINGS IN MADRID.

MADRID, March 3.—The fiftieth anniversary of the first performance of Bizet's opera "Carmen," at the Opéra Comique in Paris March 3, 1875, was celebrated here tonight at the Royal Theatre. Miguel Fleta, the Spanish tenor, who is a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York, sang the rôle of Don José.

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, the Infantes of Spain, members of the Military Directorate and of the Diplomatic Corps and other prominent personages attended. Señor Fleta received an ovation.

Gisella Neu in Debut.

Gisella Neu, a violinist from Hungary, by way of Cuba, made her New York début last evening at the Town Hall, winning patiently and pluckily an audience in no haste to grant its favor. Bach's unaccompanied chaconne was an unusual starting piece, unsuited to a newcomer's nervous, incisive tone and manner. Wieniawski's D-minor Concerto, with Nicolai Schneer's neat support at the piano, found Miss Neu in her native atmosphere in the lyric romanza, if less so in the familiar finale of melodies "à la Zingara." The individuality and playful rhythm, missing here, strangely enough, appeared in the ensuing introduction to Saint-Saëns's "Rondo Capriccioso," done with rich tone on the lower strings and with evident taste that earned many flowers. There were later pieces by Vieuxtemps, Sarasate, Schumann, Hubay, Kreisler and Auer.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Weeds," by John B. Hymer and Le Roy Clemens, will be produced soon by Samuel Wallach.

The title of "The Marionette Man," which comes to the Selwyn Theatre on Monday night, has been changed to "Puppets."

The second meeting of the subscribers and other supporters of the Actors' Theatre will be held at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre on Sunday, March 8, at 5:15 P. M. The subject of "The Actor and the Theatre" will be discussed by Theresa Helburn, Grant Mitchell, Helen MacKellar and Montrose J. Moses.

Ian Keith will play the role of Collini, played here by Joseph Schildkraut, in the forthcoming Los Angeles production of "The Firebrand."

MUSIC NOTES.

Firmin Swinnen is assisted by Marcel Grandjany, harpist, in a free organ recital at Wanamaker's at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

WON'T GIVE UP SLAVERY.

Nagas Declare Also They Will Continue Human Sacrifices.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—Sir Harcourt Butler, Governor of Burma, has returned to Rangoon from an adventurous journey to the land of the Nagas, a savage tribe dwelling in a remote region between Burma and Assam. His object was to put an end to slavery and human sacrifices, which are common in a strip of unadministered territory bordering on and in the Hukawng Valley.

Governor Butler and the large party accompanying him were received with much ceremony by the natives wherever he went, who were much impressed by fireworks displays and gramophone performances given by the visitors for their delectation. But little enthusiasm was shown when Governor Butler, speaking in the native language, explained the reasons for his visit. Maingkwan was reached by the Governor Jan. 24, after a journey through the dense jungle.

"During his stay there," writes The London Times Rangoon correspondent, "Governor Butler had interviews with leading Kachins, Shans and Nagas of the countryside, and the subjects of human sacrifices and slavery were gone into. His Excellency was informed that slavery was common all over the valleys and hills, there being as many slaves as there were free men, women and children.

"The Nagas, on being taxed with the fact, said that slavery had been practiced from time immemorial. They frankly stated they were not inclined to stop it, and advanced many reasons why they should not put an end to it, among them being that if they did they would have no one to reap their crops.

"As to human sacrifices, the Nagas were equally stubborn. They averred that their forefathers had practiced human sacrifices from time immemorial, and the spirits would not be satisfied if they ceased the practice. If they gave it up sickness would befall them and they would die, and, besides, their crops would fail. They were quite polite about it, but firm in their determination that they could not give it up.

"If they were firm in this respect, so was His Excellency. He made it plain to them that he, as head of the Government, would no longer countenance such practices."

MRS. RECHT ASKS DIVORCE.

Charles Recht, who has been attorney here for the Russian Soviet Government almost from the time of its establishment, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for divorce by Arlstine P. Munn Recht. They were married in Philadelphia in 1918, and have a son, John, born in 1916.

Mrs. Recht alleges misconduct by her husband in Paris, in April, 1913, and in this city in November and December last. Mr. Recht is defending the case, but it was said yesterday in his behalf that he would have no comment to make.

THE ROMANCE OF COOLIDGE.

CALVIN COOLIDGE would not be thought of as a figure of romance, yet in assuming today, in his own name and right, the Presidency of the United States he embodies a culmination as romantic as anything in our political annals. If there is any thrill in the unexpected, any excitement in the unpredictable, any glamour in great opportunities and high achievement, his career supplies them all. Ten years ago he might have been picked as the man in New England most unlikely to become President. Even in 1920 no one saw the Presidency beckoning him. When the accident of President HARDING'S death took him to the White House, his national reputation was still to make. But in a comparatively brief time, and by the use of methods long since thought to have become obsolete, he rose in public favor and finally was swept into office in the midst of a popular acclaim usually reserved for military heroes or dynamic and radiant leaders of the people. For a quiet man, not of commanding presence, with no gifts of oratory, and without the display of any of the fetching arts of the politician, thus to have walked away with the great prize of our national life is certainly romantic if anything ever was.

The other part of the almost unbelievable story is the response of the people to the man who never made a burning appeal to them. This was all the more extraordinary since America had been going through a long series of sensational experiences in public life. We had had a President like ROOSEVELT, skilled in rousing the country to great emotional heights. We had had WOODROW WILSON, with his talent for leadership and his command of words that "crystallized into epigrams as they touched the air." The war had stirred our national imagination and made us crave excitement. Then came President HARDING, with his immense geniality and personal expansiveness. Who could have dreamed that after all this the country would turn with eagerness and enthusiasm to a taciturn and reserved man of perfect self-control like Mr. COOLIDGE? If a writer of political fiction had pictured such an abrupt transition, he would have been regarded as a venturesome romancer.

It is a wholesome thing for the nation thus to have learned that some things can be done as well as some others. Our public men do not need to be all of the same pattern. A change in personality and also in practice may be needed, now and then, in order to prevent one good custom from corrupting our politics. Mr. COOLIDGE as President went his own way, and it speedily appeared that it was a way the people liked. They saw him apply himself to his work with inflexible industry. Without haste, yet without rest, he took up one after another the exacting tasks of his great office. The country soon discovered that it had a man capable of iron labor, and also intent on doing thoroughly a big job of national housekeeping. Others had preached economy in the vague; President COOLIDGE urged it in the concrete and with one definite application after another. Others had talked of relieving tax burdens in general; this man attacked the problem in detail, struck his hand upon the spot and showed where this saving could be made and that cut in taxation effected.

In a word, he exhibited the most homely virtues of an administrative officer, and the wonder was that people who had been so long running after the spectacular and the brilliant showed that they delighted to honor this plodding, thrifty, even parsimonious President. No one could have believed it in advance. What, tell excitable Americans to keep cool? Urge the most lavish people on earth to give heed to petty savings? It was ridiculous to suppose that this would go with the great masses, but it did. Here again do we encounter the Coolidge romance. It was the most improbable thing, yet it happened.

President COOLIDGE begins his full term of office today with an unquestioned hold upon the confidence of his fellow-countrymen. They believe not only that he is safe but that he is sound. They approve of the personal quality which they have found in him. They endorse his main policies and hope for public benefit from them. Today, with the utmost good-will and with quite unusual obliteration of party animus, they cherish the hope that his extraordinary success, which he has taken without one trace of vanity, may continue through the next four years.

RAILWAYS, UNIONS AND LAW.

The Supreme Court reaffirmed yesterday the principle of several previous decisions in the lower courts to the effect that the Railway Labor Board has no mandatory powers. It can appeal only to the moral authority of public opinion in support of its decisions. That the decision of the Court is a check to the Labor Board's assumption of power is clear. Less clear, but not less certain, is it that the decision is in the public interest. Both railways and unions must hereafter bow to the law as interpreted by the courts. The Labor Board has named more than one railway as in contempt of its ruling, but the public did not see how it was concerned. No railway would stop transportation in support of its own side of a dispute with its workers. But the unions regard their right to strike as inalienable. It was asserted by a national railroad union in a strike which cost the railways more than $100,000,000 and cost the public even more.

This is the union which the Railway Labor Board sought to impose on the Pennsylvania Railway in a manner which the Supreme Court now decides to be illegal. If legal, there would have resulted a statutory monopoly of labor in the railway industry. Only the national union could have negotiated with the Pennsylvania Railway. The Pennsylvania does not forbid its workers to join any union they wish. It has officially declared that "any employe can belong to any union he desires, but the Pennsylvania Railway insists upon dealing with its own employes, and not with representatives of absentee organizations to which they belong." The decision of the Supreme Court that the Labor Board has no power to impose the national union and the wastes of its working rules upon the railways is a check to the attempt to nationalize both labor and the railways.

PATRONAGE IN TWO STATES.

There has been scheme after scheme for improving and strengthening the Republican Party in the South. In certain States it has been only a pretense to enable the machine to be Federal office broker. Charges of actually selling jobs for cash have been widely disseminated. It is bad for the Republican Party everywhere that they should not be proved or disproved finally. President COOLIDGE has now directed the Department of Justice thoroughly to investigate accusations of patronage-mongering in South Carolina and Georgia. In 1922 Senator DIAL asserted, with considerable detail, in a statement afterward read into the Congressional Record, that Mr. JOSEPH W. TOLBERT, Republican National Committeeman for South Carolina, had been and then was selling Federal offices in that State for money.

Since Mr. COLE BLEASE, who today succeeds Mr. DIAL, is or was on friendly terms with Mr. TOLBERT and described him as "tried and true," it may be said that political resentment may have had part in his animosity; but Representative STEVENSON made the same charges in the House. The fact that Mr. TOLBERT is a "tried" Republican will not be denied if Mr. STEVENSON was correct in saying that the Palmetto boss was convicted of misappropriating funds when a Postmaster. Mr. TOLBERT has denied all the charges. Last Fall Secretary DOYLE of the Civil Service Commission reported to the Borah committee that Mr. TOLBERT and his lieutenants had trafficked extensively in offices; and there were affidavits that money had been demanded for Postmasterships and other places. A month or so ago Postmaster General NEW, after an investigation by his department, reported that there was nothing in the charges.

Mr. TOLBERT'S friends attribute them to "disgruntled" office-seekers. The Democrats are sure that Mr. NEW'S report was "whitewash." Mr. COOLIDGE'S action takes the matter out of the inflamed atmosphere of politics. There will be an unprejudiced inquiry. There will be prosecutions if there is legal ground for them. In Mr. TOLBERT, as the oldest Republican Committeeman and as an antique statesman who never wears a collar and has been famous for ages by his gold collar button, there is an undeniable esthetic interest. But the Beautiful must yield to the True; and the hard-boiled Republican politics of South Carolina and the workings there of the political "referee" system need to be studied impartially. Either there have been intolerable and punishable abuses in South Carolina or Mr. DOYLE, Mr. STEVENSON and Mr. DIAL have been grossly misinformed.

Senator GEORGE of Georgia, a former Associate Justice of its Supreme Court, is no intolerant partisan. As he has told Mr. COOLIDGE, his sole concern in the Federal offices in his State is that they be held by "clean men." He called the Chairman of the Republican State Committee such a man. He wouldn't object to the Georgia patronage being in his hands. He charged that another Republican politician had, through his agents, put a price upon Post Office appointments in the State. One of this man's lieutenants was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on charges which include the sale of Federal posts. The Department of Justice will do justice in regard to these, as well as the ampler cases of alleged corruption in South Carolina. As Executive Mr. COOLIDGE is bound to see that the laws are executed. As a wise party leader he must be especially careful not to blink inquiry into supposed violation of law by Republican officials.

He has done well to act upon the representations of Democrats. The Republican Party of South Carolina and of Georgia should be purged of corruption, if any part of its organization is corrupt. A healthy Republican Party there will require a healthier Democratic Party there.

ASKING THE SCHOOLS TO DO IT.

When any one has a plan for the improvement of the social or economic order, in which children, or their parents through them, can take a helpful part, the temptation is to turn to the schools. Not only have the school teachers come to take on duties that once belonged to parents; they have had thrust upon them all manner of outside tasks without much thought whether these added activities have any educational value for the pupils or can be performed by the teacher without causing neglect of more important things.

Some of these "drives" may be quite worth while, from every point of view. The city remembers proudly what was done during and following the World War for various national and international causes by the schools under the special direction of Dr. O'SHEA, then an Associate Superintendent in charge of such activities. There were special reasons then that made these trespasses upon pupil attention and teacher energy a necessity. Sacrifices were demanded of teachers which they met as uncomplainingly as those who were called into the combat service. But now that those necessitous times have passed, every extraneous appeal ought to have serious consideration in order to determine its relative value to the pupils as future citizens.

There are "drives" and other projects and appeals even in these days of peace that can be made a medium of instruction more effective than the textbook. Geography may be learned in a concern for others dwelling in remote parts of the earth; arithmetic may be made interesting in its practical application to problems of saving or spending; history may become illuminated through a first-hand communication between the children of one country and another or through sharing in pageant or memorial celebrations. But all such things must not be admitted unless they can be fitted into the regular school program without putting an excessive burden upon the teachers. "Let the school do it" is an easy way of shifting the burden, but it is generally unfair to the teachers, for they are already overburdened (and generally underpaid), and also unfair to pupils, whose time and effort the State has no right to appropriate to other uses than for their education. Only those "drives" should be sanctioned that have for their purpose the mental, physical and moral cultivation of the children. It is not the cause, it is the child, that the school must have as its constant concern.

BUSINESS MEN AT PLAY.

Real estate is booming in lotus land. Building lots in Florida are quoted in Manhattan terms—so many hundred or thousand dollars per front foot. The Everglades State professes to see the time when it will be feeding the greater part of the United States. But in their hearts the people of Florida know that their future is not as a granary but as a vacation resort. They think of hotels and not of plantations or canning factories. The Florida boom has more than local significance. It signalizes the discovery of another holiday land by the American people and also the discovery of another holiday season. For multitudes the fortnight or month of Winter vacation has become a habit almost as fixed as the Summer vacation.

And still the foreigners will continue to speak of this land of hustle! Far in the past are the slab of pie and glass of milk which the kings of industry and finance snatched from the luncheon counter. In their place is the two-hour luncheon, with or without oratory. Rare is the railroad king who boasts of never having taken a vacation in twenty years. He and his subordinates now take a Spring vacation in Maine, a Summer vacation anywhere and a Winter holiday in Florida. Where are now the Titans of business who used to reach their desks earlier and leave their desks later than their clerks and office boys? They are on the golf links after 3 in the afternoon.

To be sure, it is not altogether play. The telegraph and the long-distance telephone have made it possible for a man to take his business with him. The wire companies emphasize the ease with which a man can nowadays haul the gamy trout out of the unpronounceable Indian lake and yet keep an eye on the market. ANNE O'HARE MCCORMICK has described in THE TIMES the "ticker hour" at Palm Beach, when the brokerage offices beside the subtropic seas are crowded. No doubt big business deals are swung to the plash of murmuring fountains under the palms as they are swung in the seeming leisure of the two-hour luncheon. To a great extent we have adapted the external dolce far niente of Europe to our own interests and appetites. In Florida we do not relax so completely as the Europeans do on the Côte d'Azur. "Caelum non animum mutant." At Palm Beach Mayor HYLAN retains a good deal of his animus and voices it over the telephone to Manhattan.

Nevertheless, a good deal of play there must be. Even with a ticker at one's elbow in the North Woods, business cannot mean quite the same thing when the fish are biting well. The "big game" is bound to suffer considerably in an atmosphere of orange groves and tarpon. The American business man is learning how to relax. The idea of "retiring" and chafing one's self to a premature grave in idleness is still a horror from which business men shrink. But a couple of months in Florida is a fair substitute for "retiring." Is it mere accident that the growth of the Florida habit has coincided with the remarkable number of young men assuming big executive positions in Wall Street? The ambitious youngster need no longer grumble about the Old Man's selfish insistence on "holding on." The Old Man, with his golf sticks, his Canadian guide in Spring, his Western Rockies tour in Summer and his Winter's jaunt in Florida, is fast ceasing to be a nuisance around the office.

A COLLEGE OF HOME ECONOMICS.

In signing the bill transforming the School of Economics in the College of Agriculture into the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University Governor SMITH has dignified one of the most important enterprises concerned with instruction in home keeping. It is now twenty-five years since Miss MARTHA VAN RENSSELAER started her class in home economics in the basement of the dairy building at Cornell. Tradition has it that the only furniture was a table and two chairs. Today there is a million-dollar plant, with a large Faculty and hundreds of students. Under the joint leadership of Miss VAN RENSSELAER and Dr. FLORA ROSS, this pioneer school has steadily grown and has exerted a great influence, direct as well as indirect, on the training of women throughout the State. At Syracuse, at Columbia, at St. Lawrence University, at Albany, at the Pratt Institute and elsewhere much time is devoted to kindred work, but the practical impetus in New York State is largely due to Miss VAN RENSSELAER'S energy and imagination.

Among those who attend the College of Home Economics are teachers, hospital and nursery directors, hotel managers, dietitians, parents and home makers. Their studies include cooking and the science of nutrition, housing, clothing, recreation and the financial administration of the home. To many city people these subjects appear superfluous, but the practical results of this teaching, as it has finally penetrated throughout the State, more than justifies the belief of those who persistently fought for it during the last quarter century or more. Many of the graduates of the Cornell school have taken up the work of home bureau agents and have gone into the counties and small towns to teach parents feeding, food conservation and other practical matters directly connected with the home. Workers who have seen this movement grow report that cooking and the making of clothing are two of the subjects of greatest interest, and that great improvements can be seen in those communities where teaching by these agents has been faithfully followed. The women of the community themselves have a hand in the work and, in particular, help decide what they are most anxious to study. One of the unconscious reactions to this is a marked increase in the general spirit of community cooperation, as well as a broadened outlook on the world. They begin to look upon their homes as having a direct relationship to the entire community and see in home life possibilities to which they had formerly been blind.

The story is told of Miss VAN RENSSELAER that she put a pedometer on a housework and found that in three days she walked fourteen miles in and about her kitchen. By judicious rearrangement of the kitchen this distance was reduced to nine miles. With the purchase of a few household implements the household mileage was reduced to seven. The imagination which conceived this experiment has devised hundreds of other means of lightening the labor of housewives and of teaching them plain things which they could never have learned by themselves. Such work is on a par with that which devises the means of making three ears of corn grow where only two grew before. By relieving material burdens it makes more time for the enjoyment and appreciation of the less material sides of life.

WYCKOFF'S PERFECT DAY.

There were more fun and happiness in the village of Wyckoff, N. J., on Monday than it will know again until another couple celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary. The event closed the schools and stopped business in the First National Bank of Wyckoff, which, however, got some advertising out of the affair by hailing "Uncle" JOHNNY DEMAREST, 97, and "Aunt" SUSAN, 92, his wife, as its oldest depositors. This worthy pair rode on horseback to Demarest, twelve miles away, to be married on March 2, 1850. There are two sayings of the philosophers that fit the connubial bliss of the DEMARESTS: "Marriage with peace is the world's paradise;" "Marriages are made in heaven." The application to Bergen County should be fairly obvious.

Six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren attended the festivities. Who that finds human nature at its best a delightful study would not have been in Wyckoff on Monday? It was no place for cynics and misanthropes. It was an all-day jubilation. The wedding of 1850 was rehearsed, with a party wearing the fashions of seventy-five years ago. Two hundred and fifty school children sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and "When You and I Were Young, Susan." A hickory cane set with two diamonds was presented with speeches to "Uncle" JOHNNY, while "Aunt" SUSAN spent the day in a triumph of the upholsterer's art, also given by the townspeople.

Twenty-five housewives had baked as many wedding cakes. The DEMARESTS received 2,000 visitors in the course of the day. A letter of congratulation was received from Colonel JOHN C. COOLIDGE of Plymouth. Another letter was said to be on the way from his son in the White House. "HANK" HOPPER of Ramsey hovered about the smiling couple, claiming that he was two years older than "Uncle" JOHNNY. So many floral offerings were never seen before at Wyckoff. Paterson was completely sold out. Governor SILZER, of Dutch descent himself, sent his best wishes. The R. F. D. carrier was bent double in delivering letters that can never be answered, except by a paragraph in The Wyckoff Banner. Commenting upon the progress of the country since 1850, "Uncle" JOHNNY said:

"This is an advanced age. They "take your picture one minute and "send it by radio to California the "next." A receiving set was given him so that he and SUSAN could hear their favorite preacher, Dr. S. PARKES CADMAN, every Sunday. Looking out on the vehicles that brought the guests to Wyckoff, Mr. DEMAREST saw the road black with automobiles. The occasion would not have been complete without a homily from one of the village fathers:

"Your long and happy marriage life "ought to be a lesson to our future "generations and to our present gen"eration as well, and it is an exam"ple that might well be copied." The closing song chanted by the child chorus was, appropriately, "The End of a Perfect Day."

SECRECY AND THE PLAY JURY.

To the plan for a play jury, District Attorney BANTON has added an important feature. The names of the jurors, even the fact that a play is on trial, are to be a strictly guarded secret—at least until after their verdict is rendered. This is a result of his recent experience. He met the publicity hounds of Broadway and he was theirs—not only sundry press agents but more than one manager. He was even prevailed upon to address a university audience on Morningside Heights under the impression that if he told them how very bad the bad plays are they would flock to the good ones. The awakening was rude. He expresses himself as "disgusted to learn how agitation "against bad plays has been fostered "to advertise them." Under the original plan for the play jury, the manager in question was to be permitted, like the representative of the police, to challenge two of the jurymen selected by lot from the panel. Under the present plan, the theatre will be represented only by the President of the Actors' Equity Association. No manager will know that his play is under judgment, or what the verdict is, unless and until the authorities take action.

Against such a course much may be said. The expense of a production amounts to a small fortune. Frequently a question of dramatic art is involved, of the freedom of the artist—and this also, in its way, concerns public morals. Nothing could be more prejudicial to the popular mind and manners than that "art" should be "made tongue-tied by authority." But in the present case the alternative is still worse. As was shown in the case of "The God of Vengeance," the method of formal indictment and trial before a petit jury involves long delay, the management meanwhile profiting hugely by unsavory publicity. Except for the play jury, there would now be an agitation, probably irresistible, for an official, a "political," censorship—upon the evils of which it is not necessary to enlarge. If injustice results, the managers themselves will be to blame, because of their failure to maintain the dignity and the morality of their profession.

Of such injustice there is little danger. The jury panel, which is to be enlarged from 130 to 300, will not be connected in any way with the theatre or with "reform" organizations. It will represent not merely the general public, but the more enlightened and world-wise element in that public. So long as there is any hope of rendering a play decently presentable the manager will be given a fair chance to revise it. If he produces a play which nine of twelve qualified citizens pronounce irremediably bad, his loss will be richly deserved.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Authentic Case of Amnesia.

Not infrequently, when somebody drops out of sight, to reappear at the end of months or years with the assertion that during all that time he did not know who he was, having lost completely his memory of his past life, there is a tendency among people not familiar with the queer ways in which the human mind may act to suspect the truthfulness of the claim. And, now and then, suspicions of this sort probably are well founded, the disappearance having been due not to amnesia but to a determination to escape from a situation which was deemed intolerable. In other cases, however, the temporary loss of memory is entirely real, and probably there are still other cases in which the loss is permanent and its victim takes up and follows till his death what is practically the life of a person other than what he was.

For personality consists very largely of memory; at any rate, without memory personality would be reduced to next to nothing, and he whose memory is gone is little better than a cabbage or an oyster.

Presumably the young Swede who, this week, after wanderings as yet unknown, suddenly "found himself"—in two senses—after he had drifted into the Bowery Branch of the Y. M. C. A. illustrated the possibilities of true amnesia. He seemingly had none of the ordinary reasons for disappearing. Well born and well educated, with a profession for the practice of which he was competent and with congenial employment for his abilities in a legitimate way, he was as little likely as about anybody who could be imagined either voluntarily or involuntarily to drop all his customary activities and associations. Yet he did it!

Why the strange mishap occurred may or may not become known. He now recalls—still a little mistily—what and who he was before his adventure began, and he is himself again. His other identity also may be recovered, by himself or others.

It is a little alarming to think that a like misfortune may befall any of us at any moment, but the alarm should not be great. We are much more likely to be struck by lightning than we are to lose the most important of all our possessions, which memory certainly is.

When a Right Turns Into a Duty.

Uniting in purpose for once, the representatives of the National Women's Party and of the League of Women Voters gathered in the Capitol at Albany this week and vehemently demanded the passage of a bill removing all sex discriminations in the selection of jurors in cases of all kinds.

No doubt the women are sincere in wanting to have removed one of their few disqualifications as women that remain, and perhaps they are sincere in thinking that they will be glad to serve as jurors. One cannot help remembering, however, how eager a large majority of women were to get the electoral franchise and how far from eager many members of that same majority now are to go to the polls on registration and election days.

They are at least as negligent as men in the performance of what is the citizen's highest duty in a democracy, and while the negligence of men never has any except poor excuses, those that the women will have are likely, if anything, to be less good. As human beings they will find jury duty a burdensome one. Having acquired what they now call a right, they will evade it as sedulously as most men do, accepting, as men do, exemptions, if they can get them, for the most absurd of reasons.

But that the women should hate a sex discrimination, with its implication of inferiority or incapacity, is natural enough. The most reluctant of male jurors would be deeply pained if told that he was unfit to be one.

For How Many Negroes Does He Speak?

Great numbers of telegrams, all worded alike, are reaching The Associated Press office in Washington, telling of large and enthusiastic meetings of negroes in many parts of the country, at all of which resolutions have been passed demanding clemency for MARCUS GARVEY, now in the Atlanta penitentiary under conviction of having conspired to defraud members of his own race.

The more intelligent members of that race cannot be taking any part in such meetings, if really held. They all must realize that GARVEY, apart from his proved dishonesty, exemplifies those primitive traits of negro character that form whatever reason there is for calling negroes inferior. He is a grotesque figure, half ridiculous and half pathetic, in his wonderful uniform and bearing his wonderful titles, both self-invented and self-imposed. He has a considerable command of words, but nothing to say, and his appeal is to men and women at the same stage of civilization as himself. If they really are many, it speaks ill for the average standard of sense among the negroes.

But, though the Garveyites can assemble big crowds in this city, all cheering him and his crazy schemes for a black empire in Africa with himself as its Emperor and Dictator, a far larger number of colored people must be humiliated by his proceedings and deeply regret that he can pose as representative of their social status. He is one of their very worst enemies.

This Charter Creates Two Mysteries.

As it is the Supervisors of Westchester County who, of all the county officials, will be most seriously affected by the proposed new charter, it is somewhat strange that they are not numbered among the charter's vociferous opponents. Instead of fighting it, they have voted to transmit it to the Legislature for action. This they have done without expressing either approval or disapproval of the instrument, but while from that it may be inferred that they are not its enthusiastic admirers, yet the implication is not clear or the conclusion necessary.

Perhaps the Supervisors put their trust in their ability to beat the charter when it is submitted to the people of the county for ultimate acceptance or rejection, and, until that time comes, are wise enough to keep silent in a matter so deeply involving their official interests.

Even more mysterious than the silence of the Westchester Supervisors are the loud outcries against the new charter that are coming from the local League of Women Voters. They seemingly are convinced that it is a most evil document, doing all the things which its compilers insist that it does not do, and not doing any of the things it ought to do. What they want, apparently, is that nothing shall be changed, and, as that is the natural desire of the politicians now in power, it occurs to some that these very audible women are speaking from inspiration rather than on their own initiative.

Sir William Tyrrell's Bereavement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Sir William Tyrrell, one of the principal Under-Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs in London, is so widely known in the United States that the sudden death in London of his eldest daughter, Mrs. Ronald Renton, will call forth many expressions of sympathy among his very large circle of friends in America. Mrs. Renton was in many ways the right hand of Sir William, his principal private secretary and confidante, and, thanks to her extraordinary gift of languages and her exceptional knowledge of foreign affairs, she was able to be of great help to him. Indeed, he came to depend more and more upon her companionship and assistance, especially after the loss of both his sons, the one an officer of the Coldstream Guards and the other a Lieutenant of the Royal Navy, in command of a destroyer during the early stages of the great war.

Sir William Tyrrell has been often in the United States in an official capacity and is credited at the Foreign Office, of which he is one of the most experienced veterans, with a more intimate knowledge of American affairs than any other member of the department. It may be recalled that with the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary he accompanied Lord Grey of Fallodon to Washington on the occasion of the latter's special mission to the United States at the close of the great war and was likewise with the Prince of Wales at the time when the British heir-apparent paid his first visit to the United States.

Through her mother, the late Mrs. Renton was a granddaughter of the late David Urquhart, M. P., the great authority on international law. The Tyrrells are a very old Staffordshire family and played an important role in the reign of Charles I., when one of them was Master of the Royal Hunt, another a distinguished General of the Royalist forces, a third gentleman-in-waiting to the ill-fated monarch and a fourth member of his Privy Council. They claim descent from Sir Walter Tyrrell, who is credited with having speeded the arrow that pierced the heart of King William II., surnamed Rufus, son and successor of the Conquaror, while out hunting in the New Forest.

F. CUNLIFFE-OWEN.

A Possible Explanation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reply to Mr. Hotchkiss's letter in today's TIMES, I think there is a very reasonable explanation as to why the old verse occurred to him. Your editorial of the same date, "A Jam as Planned," indicates the explanation in its reference to the waste of time in the Senate discussing Muscle Shoals, whereby many of the people have been woefully deceived as to the importance of this undertaking and the business of the nation neglected. Mr. Hotchkiss has doubtless read columns of nonsense about Muscle Shoals, and in his subconscious mind there probably ran a verse something like this:

Uncle Sam,
He built a dam
On Tennessee's sunny plain,
There wasn't any water
Within miles and a quarter
Unless there came a rain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems strange that there has not as yet been an emphatic public protest against the practice recently adopted by the subway management of labeling the trains with the names of both termini, leaving the passenger to guess which way the train is going, and to hesitate lest he may have come down the wrong stairway by mistake. In the rush there is confusion enough without adding this element of uncertainty. The management is highly commendable in many ways, and is appreciated by those who realize the magnitude of its problems, but in this particular it is inexcusable and exasperating. Incidentally, the signs in many cases cannot be read at all if the train is moving, on account of the dirt on the windows. For sanitary reasons alone the Board of Health should require that that condition be revolutionized. It has long been a disgrace to the city.

A BALLADE OF OLD FAITHS.

Canonical chains and pronouncements dogmatic
Recruits to the ranks of the skeptical send,
And much iteration of creeds autocratic
To generate heresy always will tend.
But not to the yoke of blind faiths shall they break us;
We'll cherish, revere and forever defend
The old simple faiths that will never forsake us.

Somewhere between heterodoxies erratic
Wherein wild chimeras and sophistries blend,
And plain orthodoxy, strait-laced and fanatic,
There must be beliefs the elect comprehend.
There are such beliefs! When the shadows impend
We sleep and doubt not that the sun will awake us,
Nor that a new night will have sliver to spend;
And these are the faiths that will never forsake us.

In nature's renascence our faith is emphatic,
Though riot the tempests that shiver and rend.
We fully believe, with expectance ecstatic,
The orchards will pay us a fine dividend;
That merciful showers will softly descend
When heat and the burdens of day overtake us;
In friendship of kin and the love of a friend;
Ah! these are the faiths that will never forsake us.

A gentle Physician torn spirits to mend;
A loving Creator who waits to remake us
Deterged of our meannesses. These to the end
Will be of the faiths that shall never forsake us!

STAFF BIDS HUGHES A HEARTY GOOD-BYE

HYDE COMES TO COLUMBIA

Solicitor Will Succeed John Bassett Moore as Professor of International Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Charles E. Hughes will continue to function as Secretary of State throughout tomorrow and relinquish the reins of the State Department to Frank B. Kellogg the following day. Secretary Hughes has cleared his desk of all important pending matters and has only a few finishing touches to make incidental to his retirement from office. Mr. Kellogg will take the oath as Secretary at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mr. Hughes will sail soon for Bermuda, where he will spend several months recuperating. It is his desire that his stay in Bermuda shall be wholly a vacation, and for that reason he has indicated that he does not care in any way to enter into the official and social life of the island.

Mr. Hughes took farewell of his associates today at a luncheon which was tendered him at Rauscher's by officials in the State Department. The guests numbered about 150 and were all identified with the State Department, its diplomatic and consular services.

Joseph S. Grew, Under Secretary of State, paid a high tribute to the Secretary at this luncheon, both for his public services and the inspiration Mr. Hughes had given those who have been associated with him.

Secretary Hughes was visibly affected and made a striking extemporaneous speech in reply to the remarks of Mr. Grew. The speech was not made public, as Mr. Hughes felt it was of "too intimate" a character to be printed.

Grew Speaks for Colleagues.

Under Secretary Grew spoke as follows:

"A colleague of ours remarked to me the other day that work in the State Department nowadays was 'fun.' As he is one of our hardest working officials there was, fortunately, no necessity of reporting his remark to the Personnel Board for investigation and entry on his record. I knew just what he meant, and I believe that every one of us here feels exactly as he does. Any work is fun when one has one's heart in it. That's half the secret of efficiency and success. But it must be absorbing, stimulating, sometimes, at least, inspiring.

"Our work in the State Department is all of that, because our chief has made it so. Those of us who have had the good fortune to hear that particular peremptory note on our buzzers (I can always recognize it on mine without looking), or who have seen the glow of the little light that summoned us to headquarters, will never, as long as we live, forget the thrill of satisfaction that it entailed. For it brought us into contact with a mind that tore aside the unessentials of a matter with the first thought and then penetrated to the heart of it with unerring precision; a mind that with all its logic and great wisdom still welcomed the other man's point of view, still found place for humor and, still more, place for human sympathy.

"There are certain moments in life when one's inmost thoughts and feelings surge to the surface and cannot be denied expression—moments when conventional phrases would be wholly inadequate, wholly misplaced. Today, if only today, we are privileged to express the thoughts and feelings that are held by every man and woman at this table, every man and woman in the department and in the field. We are at the parting of the ways with our chief, who, through four strenuous years, has held in unstinted measure our admiration and respect, our devoted loyalty, and, what is more, our deep personal affection.

"Few chiefs fail to command the loyalty of their subordinates, but it is quite another matter to bring out and steadily maintain a feeling of genuine and deep-rooted personal affection among those who work under their leadership. Relations of this kind alter the whole complexion of the sometimes dull round of business and inspire in any organization a cooperative spirit that develops the very best it has to give.

Tells of Hughes's Influence.

"Every one of us today must be taking stock of the influence the Secretary has exerted upon our lives; influence that will be turned to account according to our several capacities. If any greater monument to his work can be erected than the specific achievements of the last four years, it may be found in the inspiring and enduring influence he has exerted upon those about him. Because of it we shall always be better servants of the Government, better men.

"During the last four years the Department of State has attained a cohesion, an enthusiasm and an esprit de corps which have never before been equaled; a department where every man and woman works for the joy of working and knows that his work is being directed into right channels to constructive ends. The Foreign Service has been efficiently reorganized; initial difficulties and obstacles have been overcome; encouragement throughout all ranks has been given; merit has been recognized. Neither the department nor the Foreign Service will ever forget this record, nor will they ever forget the Secretary of State who successfully championed them throughout his term of office.

"Mr. Secretary, our most earnest wishes for continual achievement and for the happiness that comes from achievement will be with you always. We wish you Godspeed in whatever activity you may in future turn to. We thank you for your unfailing consideration in the face of our often inadequate abilities. Our personal loyalty to you will not terminate tomorrow; loyalty and affection such as we have for you, sir, can be limited neither by time nor circumstances."

Hughes's Aid Joins Columbia Faculty.

Charles Cheney Hyde, Solicitor of the State Department, who leaves office with Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes today, has been appointed Hamilton Fish Professor of International Law at Columbia University, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Hyde succeeds John Bassett Moore, who, after more than thirty years of distinguished service, retired from the university Faculty last year to carry on his duties as American member of the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague.

In making the announcement for the university's trustees President Nicholas Murray Butler said they had taken other steps for the coordination and advancement of effort in the field of international law and international relations. In this field, he added, Columbia now provides through its various divisions more than 100 courses, covering, besides international law and international law relations, the allied fields of international trade, international banking, economic geography, history, comparative government and comparative education.

It was also announced that Philip C. Jessup of the Solicitor's office in the State Department had been appointed lecturer in international law.

Parker Thomas Moon of the university's Department of History, has been transferred to the Department of Public Law as Assistant Professor of International Relations.

Mr. Hyde taught international law for many years in Northwestern University Law School, Chicago. He is the author of a treatise entitled "International Law Chiefly as Interpreted and Applied by the United States," and has contributed to legal and other periodicals many articles relating to international law. He is also the author of monographs printed by the State Department for confidential use of the American delegations at the Paris Peace Conference. He was appointed Solicitor of the State Department by President Harding in February, 1923.

MISS PILLOT TO WED L. R. STUYVESANT

Peter Stuyvesant Pillot of 116 East Fifty-third Street announced yesterday the engagement of his daughter, Miss Rosalie Stuyvesant Pillot, to Lewis Rutherfurd Stuyvesant of this city and Tranquillity Farm, Allamuchy, near Hackettstown, N. J. The engagement is one of wide interest in New York and abroad.

Miss Pillot was introduced to society two years ago by her father and at that time she became a member of the Junior League. For the past two Summers she has been with her father in Southampton, where they had a house for the season. She gave a ball there for her two sons last August.

Mr. Stuyvesant is the elder of two sons of the late Rutherfurd Stuyvesant of this city, who was born Rutherfurd but changed his name to Stuyvesant owing to the provisions of a will of an uncle named Stuyvesant by which he was to take that name. The late Mr. Stuyvesant married more than twenty years ago the Baroness de Wassenaer, the young widow of a Dutch nobleman. The Stuyvesant home in New York was at 246 East Fifteenth Street, opposite Stuyvesant Square, which had been founded by a member of that family. Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant passed much of their time in Europe, and at his death Mrs. Stuyvesant and her sons inherited the place in New Jersey as well as the property in this city.

On his father's side Mr. Stuyvesant is a nephew of Winthrop Rutherfurd, who lives in Aiken, S. C., during the Winter, and he also is a nephew of the late Lewis M. Rutherfurd, whose widow married the late William K. Vanderbilt, and of the late Mrs. Henry White, who was Miss Margaret Rutherfurd. Some years after the death of Mrs. White her husband married Mrs. Emily Thorn Sloane, widow of William Douglas Sloane and a daughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Stuyvesant with his younger brother, Lucius Rutherfurd Stuyvesant, is a student at Princeton University. Both Miss Pillot and her fiance are descendants of Peter Stuyvesant, the Dutch Colonial Governor of the New Netherlands, though they are very distantly related. The date of the marriage has not been set, but it will take place early next month in this city and before Holy Week.

ADOPT PLAN FOR ST. PAUL'S.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 3.—The committee considering plans for the preservation of St. Paul's Cathedral has at last made up its mind what method it will adopt to work that end. It was decided today to adopt the report of its commission of experts and, having done so, not to ask independent advice from anybody else.

This means that the "grouting," or filling in of crumbling piers with cement, will be undertaken, instead of more radical expedients recommended by other experts, including a proposal to raise the whole dome until new piers could be built beneath it.

In addition to grouting, the piers will be reinforced with steel and the dome encircled with an iron hooping. The Earl of Oxford and Asquith is one of those who accepted an invitation to join the committee.

INSISTS G. O. P. KEEP PROMISES ON LIQUOR

DEMANDS THAT SMITH SIGN

Missionary Warns That Bootleggers Are Giving Us a Bad Name In Other Lands.

"We will hold the Republican Party responsible for its pre-election promise of the passage of a new State enforcement law," declared the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling yesterday to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the State of New York.

Dr. Poling, who is the associate pastor of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, spoke as President of the National Temperance Council.

The occasion was a luncheon of the W. C. T. U. at the Hotel McAlpin, at which 169 white-ribboners from this and the six neighboring counties were present. There were also representatives from Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"We won't insult the Republican leaders by saying that they cannot get the one vote necessary to pass a State enforcement law," Dr. Poling further declared. "We want the Republican Party in this State to put a State enforcement act up to the Governor for his signature. And we trust that he will sign it."

Earlier in his address Dr. Poling said: "The average New Yorker thinks a State prohibition law better than the Mullan-Gage law cannot be passed. The average New Yorker knows very little of what is going on west of the Hudson River.

"It was west of the Hudson that prohibition was underwritten, and underwritten with a determination that will keep prohibition on the statute books. But east of the Hudson we want a State prohibition law such as is now before the Legislature at Albany."

Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Brooklyn, State President, presided. She reviewed that the Wise bill had the previous day passed the Assembly. This is a State enforcement code taking the place of the Mullan-Gage law, which was repealed. She praised the Crampton Federal bill, which provides, among other things, that the appointment of Federal enforcement agents be placed under civil service.

Other speakers were Miss Flora E. Strong, C. T. U. missionary, and Miss Grace Leight Scott, Associate Director of Social Morality, National W. C. T. U. Miss Scott, who has spent seventeen years abroad, said that "the prohibition law in this country is better observed than in many other lands." But she warned that "criminals and bootleggers are giving us a bad reputation abroad."

REJECT DRY REFERENDUM.

Kings County Republicans Vote Down Resolution by Large Margin.

A resolution offered by Thomas A. Crowley of the First Assembly District approving a State-wide referendum on prohibition was defeated at a meeting of the Republican Executive Committee of Kings County, held yesterday at its headquarters, 137 Remsen Street, Brooklyn. There were few dissenting votes. The resolution was first introduced at the January meeting. It called for a referendum to be asked for in a bill sponsored by Senator John L. Carle of Queens.

The committee gave unanimous approval to a resolution introduced by Mrs. Beatrice Stevenson, co-leader in the Ninth Assembly District, calling for equal representation of men and women on the Executive Committee. The resolution makes the mandatory the election of one man and one woman to represent each election district on the committee. Although a woman has been generally chosen as one of the committee representatives, this sometimes happened that two men have been named from a district.

Because of the addition of new election districts to meet the growth of population in the Borough of Queens, members of the County Committee will be chosen at the meeting of the County Committee on March 24. There are now 2,800 on the committee. At the March meeting Mrs. Katherine Walter, it is expected, will be elected assistant secretary to succeed Miss Hazel Kessler, who resigned yesterday.

HOTEL SAVOY PLAN HALTED

Building Restrictions Cause Postponement of $20,000,000 Project.

Construction of the $20,000,000 hotel which was planned to replace the Savoy at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street was indefinitely postponed yesterday, when the Hotel Savoy Corporation, the builders, withdrew an application pending before the Board of Standards and Appeals.

The owners and builders are Lucien M. Boomer and T. Coleman du Pont, who also own the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Their original plans called for the erection of a building with a straight front on Fifth Avenue. The Bureau of Buildings in Manhattan rejected the plans and called for the setbacks required under the Zoning law. An appeal was then made and has been pending.

The Boomer-du Pont interests purchased the Savoy Hotel property and the Bolkenhayn leasehold in July, 1923, and later enlarged the site by buying the property on the east. It was planned to erect a hotel on the Fifth Avenue frontage from Fifty-ninth to Fifty-ninth Street, from plans by McKim, Mead & White, architects.

While the architects are considering new plans the Hotel Savoy and the Bolkenhayn apartments will be altered to lease suites, and stores will be installed in the ground floor. The work of alteration will be done by Todd, Robertson & Todd from plans by McKim, Mead & White.

Last week Mr. Boomer announced that seventeen stores would be installed in the Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street frontages of the Waldorf-Astoria.

BOTANICAL GARDEN PLANS.

Dr. Frederic S. Lee, President of the Board of Managers of the New York Botanical Garden, outlined yesterday to the Advisory Council at the home of Mrs. Theron G. Strong at 25 East Sixty-fifth Street plans to develop the New York Botanical Garden as a world centre to direct explorations and conduct research work.

"The Board of Managers," he said, "realizes that the garden offers remarkable opportunities for development along both artistic and scientific lines. Moreover, in the thirty years of our existence we have accumulated almost unrivaled collections of plants from all parts of the earth. Possessing these, we now wish to use them.

"The realization of the new plans would place the New York garden in the forefront of the world's efforts to the study of plant life in its esthetic and scientific aspects. Determining the relation between human disease and plant disease will be a central aim of a vast scheme of coordinated effort carried on in association with botanical gardens in this country and abroad."

The council discussed ways to raise the $4,000,000 now sought of the public to increase the garden's funds by $7,000,000.

AUGUSTIN DE YTURBIDE DIES IN WASHINGTON

Adopted Son of Emperor Maximilian of Mexico Had a Romantic Career.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A romantic career, running the scale from the Imperial Court of old Mexico to a life of seclusion in Washington, ended here early today with the death of Augustin de Yturbide, grandson of Emperor Augustin de Yturbide of Mexico and adopted son of the Emperor Maximilian.

After many unusual adventures "Don Augustin," as he was widely known among Latin-Americans, came to the United States years ago. His father had been attached to the Mexican Embassy, and his mother was a native of Washington. For a time he served as Professor of French and Spanish at Georgetown University.

Advanced age and a general nervous breakdown was the cause of his death. His widow formerly was Miss Louise Kearny, a granddaughter of General Phil Kearny.

Augustin de Yturbide was a grandson of the Colonel of a Spanish regiment which took over to the Mexicans in one of their revolutions. The Colonel was elected President and later declared himself Emperor, for which he was in time put to death. When Maximilian became Emperor in the early sixties, having no children of his own, he adopted young Yturbide, the Colonel's grandson (they say in Mexico City he bought the boy from his mother), and made him heir to the throne. The boy's imperial prospects ended with the execution of Maximilian. While serving as an officer in the Mexican Army he offended President Diaz, who revoked his commission and imprisoned him, and later sent him out of the country.

He came to Washington and, through his uncle, Oscela Green, obtained membership in the Metropolitan Club, which later expelled him for alleged improper conduct toward his former fiancée. Many persons held that, for all that appeared in the case, he was harshly dealt with. He lost a legal action against the club. In the Winter of 1910 he entered the Franciscan Monastery at Brookland, in the District of Columbia.

CLARK FUNERAL TO BE HELD FRIDAY

Funeral services for William Andrews Clark, former Senator from Montana, will be held from his home at 926 Fifth Avenue at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's, will officiate. Interment will be at Woodlawn Cemetery. The services will be private.

Telegrams from all over the United States were received yesterday at the Clark home and at the offices of the United Verde Copper Company at 111 Broadway. The condolences included many from friends of the late Senator in Montana, which was his legal home.

Yesterday friends recalled incidents in the career of Senator Clark. It was said that he was on his way to Washington from New York while serving in the Senate and he stopped to drop a penny in the slot machine at the station. He pressed the plunger, but the bit of chocolate was stuck. Senator Clark ordered his men to remove his luggage from his private car and to summon the station agent, whom he roundly scored for the presence of the "cheating" slot machine. Then, satisfied with the effect on the station agent, he hired a special train—the other train had gone—and proceeded to Washington.

It was pointed out yesterday that Senator Clark was interested in many charities and that he always kept himself informed of the progress of the organization he was helping, giving as much of his time to it as possible. One of his charities was the Paul Clark Home in Butte, named in honor of his son, who died at the age of 16 while preparing to enter Yale. This institution was built by Mr. Clark and endowed in perpetuity as a real home for orphan and half-orphan children.

As a perpetual memorial in honor of his mother Senator Clark spent $400,000 for a home for working girls in Los Angeles. To Senator Clark Butte owes the creation of Columbia Gardens, a large park, which he continually had enlarged and improved.

WIFE SUES JAMES BARTON.

Charges Dancer With Cruelty and Asks Separation.

James Barton, comedian and dancer, is being sued for separation by his wife, it became known yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner granted her $200 a week temporary alimony, pending trial of the suit.

Mrs. Barton, whose maiden name was Ottilia Kleinicke, was married to Barton in Baltimore in 1915. She stated in affidavits filed in the suit that at the time of her marriage Barton was making only $30 a week. His present weekly salary is more than $2,000, she said.

HIS HEROISM FRUITLESS.

Policeman Dives Into River, Pulls Man Out, but He Dies.

When Policeman Daniel J. Doris of the Old Slip Station heard cries coming from Pier 9 on the East River early yesterday and saw a man struggling in the icy water he did not even wait to remove his outer clothing but dived in.

After a hard battle with the tide and the cold, he managed to bring the man back to the pier to which he was hoisted by another policeman and onlookers. But the policeman's act was in vain for the man died of submersion and shock before a physician arrived. Doris reported sick and went home.

Ryan Answers United Parents.

Replying to the request of the United Parents' Association, which asked him why the vacancy of Associate Superintendent of Schools has remained unfilled since May, 1924, President George J. Ryan of the Board of Education has written to the parents' organization that he had "strong hopes" that the appointment will be acted upon before many days." Mr. Ryan did not explain what had caused the long delay.

NEW DRESS TREND IN FRENCH MODELS

Bodice Front Certain to Be Plain and Skirt Has All Its Ornamentation In Front.

A collection of French models made from Spring fabrics by the leading couturiers of Paris is on display at Haas Brothers, 417 Fifth Avenue. They show a decidedly new trend in the matter of lace and sheer materials, including chiffons and indicate that the creators are in accord in two details—that any trimming above the waist is used in the back and that any below the waist is used in the front. Thus, the front of the bodice is certain to be plain and the skirt has all of its ornamentation in the front.

The apron effect has gradually gained in favor until it now holds a predominant place. It is rendered more effective by the sheer materials in vogue and is varied with any number of new ideas. It may be pleated; it may have its edge scalloped; it may be short, or it may be long, but it is certain to be present. Only occasionally does it grow into a full-sized tunic.

Of course, Spring always brings an interesting assortment of diaphanous fabrics. There are several new and engaging ones, cousins and step-sisters to familiar ones of former seasons. Lace has a definite place in this season's favored group, and in the collection is shown to advantage by several models. Printed chiffons and crêpes are used quite alone or are combined with other materials to achieve a more brilliant color effect. There was one of black Callot net over a slip of flesh kitten's ear crêpe and black lace. Great chiffon poppies of Titania chiffon print were appliqued on panels of the net which comprised the skirt. Another of all-over black lace had small chiffon flowers appliqued, giving the effect of a pattern in the lace itself.

Beige lace was effectively used in a dinner dress which had bisque crêpe du jour as its material and was made over matching kitten's ear crêpe. There was a marked absence of embroideries. Occasionally a bit of beading was found, but even that was shown only in the more elaborate evening things. An evening dress of black crêpe du jour had the beading on the skirt in the knee. The only other decoration was a long black silk tassel which fell from the right shoulder at the back and a pleated drape which hung from the left shoulder.

Stitching is sometimes substituted for embroidery, especially in street clothes. An ensemble dress of samos, black and white Bagdad print, had a coat of white Majestona trimmed with black crêpe Siam. Blocks were chainstitched on the coat to a depth of about twelve inches at the bottom, and also decorated the body of the coat. Another interesting ensemble was of oyster white, with the coat of faille espagnole lined with matching crêpe Siam, and the dress of white crêpe Renee. There were inserts of the same material cut the different way of the goods and finished in scallops.

Among the designers whose models were shown were Miller Soeurs, Welly Soeurs, Gerbe, Quessen, Germaine, Aimée, Chantal, Molyneux, Berthe, Renee, Chanel, Patou, Goupy, Thebaut and du Vine.

Without obligating you in any way, a "Y and E" representative will be glad to demonstrate the extra fire-resistance of this file.

ASBESTOS is the answer! A single plate of steel would grow red-hot in a few seconds. But it takes heat a long time to penetrate two walls of steel with asbestos and air space between.

That's the secret of the greater protection of "Y and E" Fire-Wall Steel Files—the only steel files built with two walls of steel plus two layers of asbestos on all sides of your papers.

"Y and E" Fire-Wall Steel Files are offered for all kinds and size of records. See them at the "Y and E" store today.

MIMI [REGISTERED]

The Series for Spring 1925

MIMI Fashions have become as well and as charmingly known as Puccini's famous heroine in "La Boheme," who was the inspiration for the first MIMI Frock in the Spring of 1921.

MIMI Fashions are presented for the purpose of giving to Miss 14 to 20 the Newest and Best in Fashion—both of Paris and New York—at prices exceedingly moderate, $29.50 to $69.50, considering that the Wanamaker Standard of Quality is upheld in every detail.

JEAN PATOU, the young master couturier of Paris, especially created one of the new MIMI Frocks.

"The young American girl is vivacious, so attractive—indeed, very lovely!" exclaimed Jean Patou.

"It is for HER that we would like you to create a frock, for you have now seen her at home in her own environment—and EXCLUSIVELY for the Wanamaker Store." "I shall be delighted," he replied—"and how inspiring!"

Monsieur Patou sailed away from New York the next day. The frock arrived—via our Paris House—a few weeks ago.

"Exquisite and so new and different," we exclaimed when we unpacked the frock—it is apparent that the American girl was a charming inspiration for Monsieur Patou. Then came the task of reproducing this dress—and it was a task. Tomorrow this MIMI Frock—illustrated at right of photograph of Monsieur Patou—will make its bow in a fine quality of Georgette crepe over slip of crepe de chine, at $49.50. The colors are ravishingly lovely!

The MIMI Hat

By Molyneux

Youthful—small—and of fine felt. Decidedly new.

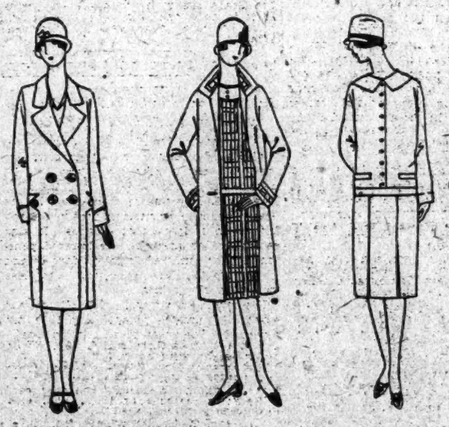
Our reproduction in fine felt, with tassels of silk, in all the new colors, is $10.

As every young girl's wardrobe should have a two-piece dress we present the MIMI Jumper Frock—after the idea of Chanel—in crepe de chine, at $29.50. The MIMI Sports Frock of wool taffeta is also featured at $29.50.

MIMI Ensemble has the advantage of really being a two-in-one costume and not merely an ensemble. The coat of charmeen is very simple and is lined with plain crepe de chine (matching tunic of frock), and thus may be worn with other dresses. The frock has a tunic of crepe de chine embroidered in Oriental design; foundation border of charmeen. Narrow fringe is cleverly used as an entre deux. This ensemble is $69.50.

Edgings of badger fur form the border of this coat—a new Parisian idea. The coat is of kashmir. $59.50.



MIMI Junior

MIMI JUNIOR Fashions for the younger sisters are carefully proportioned for growing girls of 8 to 14 years.

MIMI JUNIOR Topcoat is of fine fleece, lined with peau de cygne; $29.50.

MIMI JUNIOR Ensemble has frock of printed silk and coat of flannel; $29.50.

The TAILORED MODE is also featured in MIMI Fashions. And following the latest trend of Paris we have had the MIMI Suit at $39.50 and the MIMI Coat at $39.50—both double-breasted, of course—tailored of fine imported tweeds.

MIMI FASHIONS ARE PRESENTED IN THE GRAY SALONS, SECOND FLOOR, OLD BUILDING.

BLUE LAW BACKERS SHY AT REFERENDUM

CHARGED WITH DECEPTION

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—Advocates of a measure introduced by Assemblyman Jenks of Broome, which provides for more rigid observance of Sunday than any bill ever before introduced in the New York Legislature, were asked in a hearing before the Assembly Codes Committee today what their attitude would be toward a general referendum in the State on the question of Sunday observance. They balked at the proposal.

The Rev. George C. Myer of the New York conference of the Evangelist Church had the floor when Assemblyman Esmond of Saratoga, Chairman of the committee, asked about a referendum. The Chairman already had indicated that he regarded the bill as too extreme to be enforced.

"Would you prefer to have us hold the law as it is on the statute books at present, or have the whole question of Sunday observance submitted to a popular referendum?" Mr. Esmond asked, and Mr. Myer replied in the negative.

"Then, I take it," Mr. Esmond went on, "that you do not think a popular referendum would get you what you want?"

Banned by the Jenks Bill.

Should the Jenks bill become law, motoring and golfing on Sunday would be difficult, if not hazardous. Caddies could not work on the first day of the week. Automobile repairs would be out of the question. In fact, all "traffic," except for purposes of necessity, would be specifically prohibited. Public discussions of any topic where an admission fee is charged would be taboo. Theatrical or motion-picture performances, the opera, concerts and playing of music, except in churches, would be taboo. Art galleries would have to close their doors on Sunday. The business of Summer resorts would be confined to six days of the week, and the little merry-go-rounds in Central Park would come under the ban.

All these things were pointed out to the advocates of the measure, all of whom, with one exception, were clergymen and members of the Lord's Day Alliance. They protested that the bill was not of religious origin; that it was merely to give the workers a day of rest, and that, if directed against anything, it was against the commercialization of the Sabbath, which they declared was increasing at a terrifying rate to the happiness of the people and involved a menace to American institutions and to the Republic.

The Rev. David D. Jamison, an Albany preacher, declared that his observations while in Europe during the year prior to the World War had led him to the conclusion that the war had been brought on largely by the Continental Sunday.

"Well," broke in Assemblyman Wallace, who fought in France during the World War, "speaking about the war, we heard no objections to fighting on Sunday on the part of anybody in this country while we were overseas."

Mr. Jamison declared that the present Sabbath law was not fair and equitable to all the people, who should have one that was.

One Man Attacks the Bill.

C. B. Haynes, President of the New York State Conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, attacked the Lord's Day Alliance proposal. Dead silence fell on the rather large crowd when Mr. Haynes began to speak.

"The proponents of this bill deliberately have been concealing the guiding principle of their proposed legislation," Mr. Haynes said. "They say that it is directed against commercialization of the day of rest and that this is its sole purpose. That statement is not in accordance with the facts.

"At the present moment identical bills are under consideration before twenty Legislatures in this country. They have been many years molding this legislation. For a quarter of a century the Lord's Day Alliance has been trying to get a measure of this kind through Congress. Having failed miserably, they now come to the States.

"Unless it be the Presbyterian Church, this organization does not represent the churches at all. They do not represent one-tenth of the membership, and that is a liberal estimate. They say there is no religion in this bill. Yet everybody who has come before you to advocate it has been a clergyman. It is not with the things that are done, but with the day on which they are done that they are concerned.

"There can be only one answer. It must be because they believe that there is a radical difference between one day of the week and the other six. They are determined that all other men shall be compelled to share their belief, or be punished by law. The Spanish Inquisition never attempted anything more desperate to better the conscience of men.

"This bill is an all-religious matter. It is religious class legislation, if there ever was such a thing. They want their own religious ideas and prejudices enacted into law. The preachers of their creeds cannot by their own eloquence gain audiences, and to remedy this they want to enact a law to step everything on Sunday so that people will have nowhere to go except to church.

"We have been through the Stone Age, the Bronze Age and the Golden Age. Now we appear to have reached the age of the preacher in politics."

Calls Bill "Quite Reasonable."

The Rev. Dr. John Ferguson of the Lord's Day Alliance explained what the bill was designed to do and said he regarded the bill as "quite reasonable."

"There were many who advocated a bill that would have made Sunday a day of gloom," he explained. "We did not want that sort of a measure, because we were well aware it could not be enforced."

Dr. Ferguson said that the ban on commercialism on Sunday was already in the law, although it is not being enforced.

"The present law provides that any article exposed for sale shall be forfeited," he declared. "That includes a house and lot. If exposed for sale it can be seized by the authorities and sold at auction on a day's notice. It is not enforced because it is extreme and unjust—highly improper, I should say."

"What would be the effect of this bill on the people?" Chairman Esmond inquired.

"It would set the people free on one day of the week from the greed of commerce, the grind of toil and the whirl of pleasure and give them an opportunity to live on a higher plane," Dr. Ferguson replied.

Aimed at Commercialization.

Dr. Ferguson added that the commercialization of the Sabbath was the feature they were most determined to combat through the bill.

"But don't you take up collections in church?" a member of the committee asked.

"That is free-will offerings," was the reply; "not a fixed fee."

"Would a farmer be permitted to milk his cows and gather his eggs on Sunday?" another member asked.

"All necessary labor would be permitted," Dr. Ferguson replied.

"Does the bill prevent playing golf on Sunday?" asked Assemblyman Wallace of Nassau.

"No," Dr. Ferguson said; "it would prevent the commercialization of caddies. That is all."

"But it does not prevent a minister from preaching on Sunday, although he is paid a salary for doing it," broke in Assemblyman Robinson of Tompkins.

"It does not prevent any one from rendering self-sacrificing, devoted service on the first day of the week," said Dr. Ferguson.

"But you are commercializing the minister, and you charge pew rents in church," came the rejoinder. There was no answer.

Says Measure Would Be Popular.

"What do you think the effect would be on the people?" Chairman Esmond asked, "if, as you propose, they were prevented from motoring on Sunday, from playing golf, from athletic exercises, from listening to intellectual discussions—if the people were frozen into their houses on Sunday and prevented from doing anything except walking a short distance to and from church and back again? What would be the mental attitude toward such a measure? What we want to do is to pass a law that can be enforced."

"This bill was drafted with that end in view," Dr. Ferguson replied. "We think we have drafted a measure that will be popular and as such enforceable."

"Would you prevent Sunday papers?" was asked.

"I would not prevent anything," he replied. "They are gotten out on Saturday, anyhow. You can get New York Sunday papers here in Albany on Saturday. The sale of Sunday papers would be more difficult, involve a more difficult question. If Sunday papers, why not magazines and books?"

"That is how it impresses me," said Chairman Esmond. "The difficulty is in attempting to draw the line. Would it not be better to give everybody absolute right to do as he pleases, as long as he does not infringe on the right or offend—not a minority, mind you you—but the majority?"

"Majority or minority makes no difference!" Dr. Ferguson exclaimed. "My liberties end where the rights of others begin. No one has any right to interfere with another."

"Is it your honest opinion that one-third of the members of all the churches favor this bill as it stands now?" asked Mr. Esmond.

"No," was the answer, "not in its present form.

"That answer is fair enough," said Chairman Esmond.

"Opponents of the bill got very little time to make their arguments. Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin, appearing for the outdoor showmen, said it would kill their business. Alderman Isaac Frank of New York declared that out of 225,000 persons in his district not 100 could be found who favored the bill. The Rev. L. H. King of the International Religious Liberty Association of New York denounced the measure as un-Christian and un-American, and Joseph Flynn of the West Harlem Community League spoke in opposition to it.

The prospects are that if the bill goes through the Assembly at all it will undergo radical changes.

Art in Home Cooking Seen As Aid to Happy Marriages

The raising of culinary activity to the level of an art will go a long way toward making marriages happy and solving health problems, said Dr. J. A. Patton, medical director of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, yesterday.

Men are unhappy because the cooking at home is not good, and suffer digestive complaints, the cause of many ills, because they eat improperly at other places, was the way he expressed it.

"What we need is greater attention to the home dietary," he said. "Men will eat more at home if wives have been taught to regard cooking as an accomplishment as worthy as music. If they eat more good food at home there will be more happy marriages."

41 BAPTIST MINISTERS IN TRIBUTE TO FOSDICK

At a meeting of the Baptist Ministers' Conference of New York yesterday morning in the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, at Thirty-first Street, a committee was appointed to send a signed statement of appreciation of his ministry to the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, who on Sunday ended his six years service as associate minister at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street. Forty-one ministers signed the statement, and it was mailed yesterday afternoon to Dr. Fosdick. The statement follows:

"The undersigned, your brethren of the Baptist Ministers' Conference of New York, appreciating the remarkable ministry your have rendered, wish to express to you our fellowship with you in your attitude toward the truth of Christ, and our admiration of your kindly courage under great trial.

"We greatly desire and confidently hope that on your return opportunity will open for you to exercise the great preaching gift in some pulpit of our city."

The resolution was presented by the Rev. Dr. Alvah S. Hobart of Yonkers. Dr. Hobart and the Rev. Dr. Avery S. Shaw of Brooklyn were appointed the committee to draw up the statement. There was no discussion.

One of those to sign was the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, of which John D. Rockefeller Jr. is an officer.

Fall May Not Attend Cheyenne Trial

EL PASO, Texas, March 3.—Albert B. Fall of Three Rivers, N. M., in whose administration as Secretary of the Interior, Teapot Dome was leased, has not decided whether he will attend the trial in Cheyenne of the Government's suit to cancel the lease, which begins Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Fall returned Sunday from the Three Rivers ranch. Mr. Fall today said that he did not wish to make any statement in regard to the Teapot Dome case and had not formed any plan in regard to the suit.

STATE REPUBLICANS CALLED IN COUNCIL

TROUBLE OVER INCOME TAX

State Fair Commission and Dry Enforcement Measures Other Issues Causing Anxiety.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—With Chairman George K. Morris of the Republican State Committee due here, Senate Leader Knight has called a conference of all the Republican Senators with a view to ironing out differences which are threatening to disrupt Republican solidarity in the Senate.

Not only the proposed 25 per cent. reduction in the personal income tax, to which the Republican Senate leaders are opposed but which enough Republican Senators favor to make up a majority with the aid of the solid Democratic minority, but the gloomy outlook for the Wales-Jenks State Prohibition Enforcement bills has caused the calling together of the party Senators.

Another trouble is dissension over the proposal to abolish the State Fair Commission, which is favored by Lieut. Gov. Lowman and Senator Knight but opposed by a group of Republican insurgents headed by Senator Fearon, who is believed to be able to control 10 out of the 29 Republican votes in the Senate.

It has not been announced what the conference will discuss. It is likely, however, that the tax proposition which, according to Republican leaders, is becoming more impossible every hour as special appropriation bills are being presented and pressed by up-State Republicans, and the dry bill will be the chief topics.

One of the difficult elements in the situation is that while several Republican speakers during the recent campaign pledged the party to the enactment of a dry enforcement bill, the pledge is not included in the State platform. This evasion is now coming back to plague the Republican lawmakers. Passage of the Wales-Jenks bill, under the circumstances, cannot be made a caucus measure.

The Republicans still are shy at least one vote in the Senate, with four of their members out in open opposition to the dry enforcement bill. It is understood that Chairman Morris, just back from Florida, will find as the first job awaiting him here the somewhat difficult problem of whipping the insurgents into line.

The highway appropriation bills, recalled last night, will not have to be passed again. They can be returned to the Governor by concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly. Such a resolution, it was said today, will be adopted before the end of the week. The Governor will then have ten days in which to consider reductions in the items, aggregating $14,500,000, which the two bills carry.

"When the Governor has done this we will take his recommendations under consideration," said Chairman Hewitt, of the Senate Finance Committee. "There is no pledge or committment on our part that we will change the items, even if the Governor should recommend such a course. But if there is any cutting to be done, it is up to the Governor to find the way to do it."

NILS FISCHER OPERATED ON.

Attempt to Restore Memory Said to Be "More or Less Experimental."

Nils Fischer, the young Swedish engineer who turned up at Manhattan Police Headquarters last Saturday night after having been missing since Dec. 6, yesterday underwent an operation which was resorted to in an effort to restore his memory, it was learned last night at the home at 1,671 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn, of E. J. Lufter, who identified Fischer in Manhattan, and has since been taking care of him.

Mr. Lufter declined to state where and by whom the operation had been performed, but said he had decided upon it after having the young man examined Sunday and Monday by two physicians, whose names he likewise would not divulge. He said the doctors had agreed that a bone in Fischer's nose was pressing upon his brain, and that this bone had been removed by a minor nasal operation.

According to Mr. Lufter, Fischer had not shown any marked improvement last night as the result of the operation, which Mr. Lufter described as "more or less experimental." Mr. Lufter said he had agreed on his own responsibility to have the operation performed without consulting Fischer's father, Dallas Fischer, a wealthy machinery manufacturer in Sweden and reputed to be a millionaire.

It was said yesterday at the offices of the Founders Company, of which young Fischer's father is the head in Stockholm, that he would be sent home in a week or ten days.

ANCIENT FRIGATE IN MODEL.

An unusually large and completely equipped 18th century ship model and replica of the frigate man-of-war Fearnought is a feature of the sale of marine paintings, ship models, prints and engravings belonging to Mrs. Ida King of Brooklyn, with additions from other consigners this week at the Rains Art and Auction Galleries.

This model is 80 inches long, carries 54 guns and is completely rigged, including sails, and has a carved figurehead, stern and quarter galleries. It is painted white to the water line, with red hull, and the deck and rail and gallerien show touches of gold. The deck equipment is also complete and the model is in perfect condition.

An odd ship model is that of the racing barge Mongolian, a 20-oar type with crew of 14 oarsmen, coxswain, cheer leader and a band of three musicians, all of native wood.

There are also examples of the work of Henry Reuterdahl, American sports painter. One is an oil of "Fine Cloth Winning the Twin City Handicap at Sheepshead Bay" and the other is an oil of the "Great $10,000 Match Race between Salvator and Tenny at Sheepshead Bay."

MISTRIAL IN $75,000 SUIT.

Reading From Medical Work to Jury Protested as Prejudicial.

On application of his attorney, a mistrial of the suit brought by Charles Noble for his daughter, Ann Noble, against Daniel Reeves, Inc., was declared yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Richard P. Lyon. He sued for $75,000 damages for injuries his daughter received. Counsel for Noble moved to withdraw a juror when an extract was read from a medical work to the jury, saying that the reading was prejudicial to his client. The attorney for the defendant agreed to the motion. A juror was then ordered withdrawn by the court and the mistrial declared.

Miss Noble was injured on Nov. 23, 1921, at Broadway and 106th Street, by a truck belonging to the Reeves Corporation. She sustained concussion of the brain, and was subsequently removed to a sanitarium in Buffalo, where she remained for fourteen weeks. She is now in the Towanda State Hospital, and, according to witnesses, is mentally incompetent.

34th Street Ferry Abandoned After 67 Years; Tunnels and Bridges Kill Off Famous Route

For the first time in nearly sixty-seven years there is no passenger ferry service across the East River between Manhattan at East Thirty-fourth Street and the Hunters Point section of Long Island City. Passenger service on the old Thirty-fourth Street Ferry was abandoned last night by the Long Island Railroad Company, which controls it.

In these modern days of under-river tubes, cantilever bridges and electric transit the time had come when the old ferry no longer paid. The Thirty-fourth Street ferryboats had been plying the East River since May Day of the year 1858.

It was 6:30 o'clock last evening when the shabby old Southampton churned out from her slip on the Long Island City side, bound for the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street. She carried only ten phlegmatic passengers and the half dozen employes of the railroad's marine department who are necessary to man the craft. Standing in her wheelhouse, in command during this historic trip, was Captain Thomas Hinchley of Whitestone, a veteran riverman.

A few minutes later the ferryboat Pennsylvania blew a long, hoarse blast from her whistle and glided out from her Manhattan slip. She, too, carried only about a dozen passengers, with Captain William R. Schow in command. As the two craft came abeam in midstream their captains simultaneously reached for their whistle cords and rendered to each other for the last time the passing homage of a marine salute. Down in the engine room, alert for signals from the wheelhouse, was Thomas Mulligan, ferryboat engineer for forty-six years. Mulligan is the veteran of them all. He is entitled to wear whatever service stripes may be won for having crossed the East River nearly 50,000 times, with some millions of passengers in his keeping. After berthing his boat Captain Schow stepped ashore, a landlubber after twenty-five years of river piloting.

"Too slow for New York today," soliloquized Skipper Schow. "The ferryboats that were good enough for the late Theodore Roosevelt, Russell Sage, Charles A. Dana, August Belmont, William C. Whitney and William K. Vanderbilt, as they went to and fro between Manhattan and their Long Island homes, won't do for the army of wage-earners riding nowadays from home to their work and back again. 'T. R.' and all the rest of them were satisfied with our speed then, but now even the hearse drivers complain when funerals cross the river.

"In the old days when the Long Island race tracks were going at full blast the ferry rush before and after the races was so great that passengers swarmed over every inch of deck space, and they almost pushed one another overboard. It was like the Times Square station of the subway is during the rush hours now. There were five boats and five ferry slips kept busy on this line in those days, and on Sundays, race days and holidays we had to have special guards to handle the crowds bound for Belmont Park, Sheepshead Bay or those two extremes of merriment and solemnity—North Beach and Calvary Cemetery.

"Now patronage has dwindled from 80,000 a day to less than 200, and on some trips the boat's crew exceeds the number of the passengers."

ASK $3,000,000 MORE FOR STATE BONUS

TAX CUT EFFORT HINDERED

Other Assembly Measures Propose Day Off in Seven for Labor and Injunction Limit.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—Because the original $45,000,000 bond issue will not be sufficient to pay a bonus to all the living veterans of the World War and to the next of kin of deceased veterans, Assemblyman Davison, Republican, of Nassau today introduced in the Legislature a bill providing for an additional appropriation of $3,000,000.

This amount is expected to be enough to carry the Bonus Commission over until next year when another appropriation of $4,000,000 probably will have to be made to clean up all the claims.

When the bill providing for a bonus for the next of kin of deceased veterans was introduced early in the present session it was expected that the $45,000,000 bond issue would be sufficient to pay all the claims of the living veterans, together with those of the relatives. It has since been found, however, that the original bond issue will not be enough to take care of the living veterans, to say nothing of the dependents.

Members of the Bonus Commission had expected that they would have about $3,000,000 left after paying all claims under the original bonus measure. The additional appropriation for the bonus comes just at a time when Governor Smith and fiscal leaders of the Legislature were bending every effort to keep down the cost of government in an effort to bring about a tax reduction.

Three Labor Bills Submitted.

A bill carrying out one of the recommendations made by the Whitely Commission, which recently completed an investigation of the delays in the payment of workmen's compensation cases, was introduced today by Assemblyman Miller, Republican, of Genesee, Chairman of the Labor and Industries Committee of the lower house. It provides that an award shall bear interest unless paid within thirty days after notice of the award has been sent to the employer or to the insurance carrier.

Assemblyman Nugent, Democrat, of New York sponsored a bill providing that State, municipal, town or village employes shall have one day of rest in seven. It would also strike out a provision in the labor law which excepts janitors, foremen, employes in dairies, bakeries and hotels from having one day of rest each week.

A bill urged by the State Federation of Labor, which would prohibit an injunction from being granted in an industrial dispute unless the court and jury were satisfied its issuance was necessary to protect property, was introduced today by Senator Lipowitz, Republican, of Buffalo. A similar measure introduced last year was killed in committee.

Members of the Legislature would be furnished with free transportation on all common carriers when on official business if a bill introduced by Assemblyman Cuvillier should become law.

Cuvillier Assails Lowman.

Speaking on a bill providing for a small appropriation for highway construction, Assemblyman Cuvillier charged in the Assembly today that Governor Smith was making every possible effort to reduce taxes this year, but that he was being blocked by the Republicans in the Legislature. He assailed Lieut. Gov. Lowman, saying:

"When did Lowman become the grand mogul of the Republican Party in New York State? I think he is the worst specimen the Republican Party has ever brought out. I should think the party would disown him because he is making his party ridiculous in the eyes of the people of the State."

The Republicans were charged by Assemblyman Bloch with "playing politics" with the State Fair Commission when the Hutchinson bill providing for the abolition of the commission and the transfer of its functions to a bureau in the Council of Farms and Markets came up for advancement to the order of final passage in the lower house.

"A leopard can't change its spots, and the Republican Party can't stop playing politics," Mr. Bloch said. "The Fair Commission was created originally by the Republican Party for its own political benefit."

The bill was advanced with all the Democrats voting against it. A similar measure is expected to come up for final action in the Senate this week.

FINDS RECOUNT HELPS BLY.

Lawyer Says Coughlin's Majority for Assembly Has Been Overcome.

F. H. Warlan, counsel for James F. Bly, Republican, who is contesting the Assembly seat in the Eleventh District, Kings County, said yesterday, the second day of the recount of ballots, that Mr. Bly apparently had made up enough votes to overcome the sixty-eight majority given to Edward J. Coughlin, Democrat, in the official tally. The recount is being made in the Board of Elections rooms in the Municipal Building.

Ex. Ivan Rubenstein, counsel for Assemblyman Coughlin, said he had nothing to say at this time as to the outcome of the recount, in view of the fact that only forty-one of fifty-six boxes had been counted. The recount is expected to be completed today.

WOMEN AT ALBANY PRESS FOR EQUALITY

MANDATORY DUTY ON JURIES

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 3.—Twoscore women for two hours today asked the Senate and Assembly Judiciary Committee for favorable action on a dozen bills which would give them equal rights with men. The League of Women Voters and the National Woman's Party, which opposed each other last week at a hearing on the Forty-Eight-Hour bill, were united today.

Chief among the bills under discussion were two jury measures. One would make it mandatory for women to serve on juries, while the other would make their jury service permissive. All of the women favored the mandatory bill sponsored by Senator Straus and Assemblyman Goodrich of Westchester, Republican. They opposed the permissive measure.

Of twelve of these equality measures, introduced at the 1924 session, four were passed. The women predicted today that a majority of their measures will be adopted this time.

Mrs. Clarence M. Smith of New York City, State Chairman of the National Woman's Party, told the committee it was a "shame" that the women of New York State, now that they have the right to vote, could not serve on juries.

"It is a shame that the women of the Empire State have to come here and ask the Legislature to give us the right to serve on juries inasmuch as we have been given the right to vote," said Mrs. Smith. "We believe the women of the State are just as qualified to serve on juries as the men and we feel it is our duty."

Pointing to the fact that women now serve on juries in twenty-three States, Mrs. William Blauvelt of Scarsdale said those of this State felt they had as much right to qualify as jurors as the women elsewhere.

"There is no earthly reason why the women of New York State shouldn't serve on juries," said Mrs. Blauvelt. "The opposition to this bill, while not expressed here today, is purely sentimental and emotional, and it's all nonsense."

Abram J. Rose of New York who said he had practiced law for fifty years, urged the committee to report out the bill.

"After my long experience in law I am frank to say that I believe women are more solid in their judgment than the men, and I am certain that women jurors would be an improvement in our jury," he said.

Mrs. Leslie Tompkins of New York led the members of the League of Women Voters who spoke.

"The women of New York State should serve as jurors and every one of you men on this committee know in your heart that we have a just right to, now that we can vote," said Mrs. Tompkins.

Miss Sally Peters of New York said:

"I think the members of this Legislature are too progressive not to pass the mandatory bill and give the women of the State the right to serve on juries. If it is not done this year then it will have to come next year or the year after."

WANTS MORE GUARDS HERE.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 3.—A material increase in the number of guards of the penal and correctional institutions of New York City was recommended by the State Prison Commission today, following an investigation of escapes. It also recommended that the "antiquated penitentiary be removed from Welfare Island to a location less accessible and less visited by the public."

The report shows that from 1918 to last month 272 inmates escaped and 177 were captured. The greatest number to escape in one year was forty-six, in 1921, when twenty-eight were caught.

The escapes from Welfare Island from Jan. 1, 1920, to Jan. 1, 1925, were twenty-nine, of whom seventeen were captured.

The daily average population of the institutions in New York City from Jan. 1 1918, to Jan. 1, 1925, ranged from 2,967 to 4,158. The inmates who were admitted and transferred ranged from 71,443 to 105,892.

The report also recommended that the private land on Hart's Island be bought and that strangers and private boats be kept away. Cecila D. Patten and Frank E. Wade signed the report.

Favors Child Labor Referendum.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—The Senate Judiciary Committee today reported favorably the Fearon bill to provide for the submission to the voters of the State in the election this Fall the pending Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Smith Signs Highway Bills.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3.—Twenty-nine bills became law today with the signature of Governor Smith, among them eight highway measures carrying appropriations of approximately $10,429,000. The only other measure of general importance among the group was the Fearon-Stapley bill relating to a minor change in motor omnibus fees.

SWINDLES WOMEN; GETS 8-YEAR TERM

MANY FRAUDS ARE BARED

Many swindling schemes were charged against Allen Kichman yesterday when he pleaded guilty to two grand larceny charges before Judge Collins in General Sessions, was condemned by the Court as a "despicable thief" and was sentenced to from four to eight years in Sing Sing. The court was well filled with victims of the dishonesty of Kichman, who is 35 years old, and said he was a fertilizer manufacturer of 192 Shephard Avenue, Newark. In the front row of the spectators' benches were six women who had been defrauded by Kichman of sums ranging from a few hundred dollars to $10,000 after he had become engaged to their daughters. Two of them were the complainants in the cases in which indictments had been returned.

Kichman swaggered into court between two Deputy Sheriffs but when he turned and saw the row of women he paled. Assistant District Attorney Albert B. Unger told Judge Collins that although Kichman was known to have obtained a considerable sum of money from his victims, only two of them would make complaints.

Victims Tell Stories.

Mrs. Esther Barsky and Mrs. Bertha S. Glaser were the complainants, the prosecutor said. Mrs. Barsky said that Kichman became engaged to her daughter Anna on Feb. 15, 1923, although, Mrs. Barsky later learned, the man had a wife and a 14-year-old son living at the time at 452 Washington Street, Newark. Kichman, the prosecutor continued, got $598.50 from Mrs. Barsky soon after the engagement was announced, and subsequently induced her to cash several bogus checks. Mrs. Glaser, whose home is at 20 Seventy-sixth Street, Long Island City, was swindled out of $4,300 through bogus checks and other means, Mr. Unger added, after Kichman had become engaged to her daughter, Hortense, about two years ago.

Irving W. Halpern, a probation officer, then told how Kichman victimized Miss Anna Kleinman of 199 Hewes Street, Brooklyn, from whom the man obtained $700 immediately after proposing marriage. Two other girls, whose parents he swindled, Mr. Halpern reported to the Court, were Miss Anna Shevitz of 20 Rutgers Street and Miss Barbara Tractenberg, who lived on the next block from Miss Kleinman at 166 Hewes Street. They had refused to make complaints against him.

Judge Denounces Kichman.

"This man is known as a 'hotel skipper,'" Mr. Halpern continued. "He has swindled the Waldorf-Astoria, the Pennsylvania and other hotels, and he even succeeded in swindling a Burns detective. His career as a Lothario appears only to have been terminated by his arrest."

Judge Collins looked at the man for a few minutes and then said:

"You are the most despicable kind of a thief and a crook. You victimized dozens of confiding young women and their mothers. You preyed upon the love sentiment you aroused in their hearts. If there is any swindling scheme you haven't tried I've not heard of it. I'm sorry the law only permits me to give you from five to ten years because, despite your twenty-five arrests, there is only one other conviction, for a misdemeanor, against you. I am giving you a year off your minimum sentence because you pleaded guilty and saved the expenses of trial."

NATURAL BEAUTY BEST, ZIEGFELD DECLARES

Says He Can Produce Some Girls That No Plastic Surgeon Could Help.

Florenz Ziegfeld showed annoyance yesterday when he learned that at the convention of the American Master Hairdressers' Association at the Waldorf-Astoria it was said that he and his confrères would shortly be developing beautiful women to order through the agency of plastic surgery. Mr. Ziegfeld declared there was no need of such measures now and that he believed there never would be.

"There are plenty of beautiful girls in America," said Mr. Ziegfeld, "and they seem to be more numerous as the demand increases. Of course, styles in beauty change, but I never seem to have any difficulty in getting enough beauties to meet my requirements. I don't say that all girls who come to me are beauties. Far from it. I interview more than 10,000 of them a season and there are certain to be some that can't make the grade.

"I'll bet I could produce a couple of girls for Dr. Fernel that he couldn't make beautiful with all his skill in plastic surgery. I'd like to have him try.

"It is a mistake, I think, to tamper with your features. You can never tell how it will turn out. It is a pretty uncertain job trying to match a nose with a particular kind of mouth just with a little piece of bone. It doesn't seem possible to me. Of course, I don't say that I wouldn't take a girl in one of my shows that had her face lifted—I will take them if they are beautiful, no matter how the beauty is achieved—but I still believe in natural beauty."

Samuel S. Penn of Dayton, Ohio, declared at the convention yesterday that nowadays quite as many men are having permanent waves as women. Just now wavy hair appears to be a feature of manly beauty and the well dressed man is losing no time in adopting the fashion. Of course, this fact is often a secret between the hairdresser and his male client and the waving is done behind tightly drawn curtains. Sometimes, it was said, the customer even insists upon having the wave done after hours when even the female attendants are away.

HADASSAH 13 YEARS OLD.

Women's Zionist Organization Celebrates an Anniversary.

Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America, celebrated its thirteenth birthday yesterday afternoon at the Free Synagogue House, 40 West Sixty-eighth Street.

Mrs. Irma L. Lindheim, the only woman student at the Jewish Institute of Religion who will be ordained as a rabbi, addressed the large gathering. She said she had become a Zionist eight years ago, and would sail Saturday for a three months' visit in Palestine. She spoke on the ideals of Judaism, and said Hadassah in its work here and in Palestine had made it possible to perpetuate the contributions which the Jewish people have given to the world.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise spoke on the rebuilding of Palestine, and referred to the achievements of the organization there as the soul of the cause.

Say She Used Slugs In Turnstile.

Charged with putting metal slugs in a turnstile at the Eighteenth Street station of the Sixth Avenue elevated on Monday night, Mrs. Florence Irene Brown, 18 years old, of 216 West 140th Street, was held in $50 bail for Special Sessions by Magistrate Richard F. McKinley yesterday.

Newsboy Catches $4 Thief Who Duped Him 2 Years Ago

Two years ago Thomas Reid, 12 years old, whose father was a city detective when he died, was swindled out of $4 by a man while the boy was selling papers at Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street. The man took the money under pretense of holding it as security for the boy's return with $72, which the stranger said Thomas could collect for him at a garage in East Thirty-fifth Street. Nobody knew the man at the garage and when the boy returned to the corner the man had disappeared with the $4, which Thomas had contemplated turning over to his widowed mother that night.

Last week the boy came across the swindler selling candy in Union Square Park. He recalled instructions his father had often given him about the best manner of causing a thief's arrest. He kept out of the thief's sight until he got a policeman and both crept up on the fellow from behind and the policeman arrested him.

This came out yesterday when Thomas testified against the thief in Special Sessions. The man said he was Phillip Husten, 33 years old, of 119 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn. Husten pleaded guilty and received an indeterminate term in the penitentiary.

4 DEAD, 9 INJURED IN BROOKLYN FIRE

Fire, which destroyed the four-story tenement at 72 Johnson Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday, caused the death of four persons and injured nine others.

The Dead.

CARROLL, JOHN, Jr., 7.
CARROLL, RUTH, 5.
LA BRUYERE, Mrs. MARY, 65.

Injured.

LA BRUYERE, Mrs. MARIE, 25.
LA BRUYERE, FRANK, 30.
MISAK, FRANK, fireman, 79 Berry Street.
BARBERI, LOUIS, policeman 457 Eighty-fifth Street.

The fire is believed to have started in the rear of the basement. It spread with such speed that within a few minutes flames were rolling up the stairwell and mushrooming through the front part of the second floor. It was the barking of Duke, a collie belonging to George Fallon, who with his wife lived on the second floor, that aroused the Fallons. The family wrapped themselves in bed clothing and hurried to the street, where they called Policeman Barberi. Fallon turned in an alarm, while Barberi tried to gain the upper floors through the smoke and flame.

Driven back, the policeman ran through the adjoining tenement and by climbing the fire-escape managed to get to the third floor of the burning building, where the La Bruyere family was trapped by the flames.

Barberi reached the mother and her two children and, taking Margaret, the four-year-old daughter, started down the fire-escape, telling the mother to follow with Louis, the six-year-old son. Instead of following, the mother in a panic ran to a window and, holding the boy clear of the sill, shouted: "Catch my baby!"

The child fell with his night dress on fire as a dozen men with outstretched arms ran under the window. They broke the fall and Louis sustained only a broken arm and leg.

Extension ladders were run up to the La Bruyere apartment and Captain Ferdinand Brier and Firemen Burns and Misak carried Mrs. La Bruyere and her parents to the street. The elder woman's clothing had been nearly burned off her body and she died a few hours after she was taken to the hospital.

The collapse of the upper part of the building brought death to Mrs. Carroll and her two children. John Carroll was leading the way to safety over the roof with two of his children when the collapse caught his wife and the other two children.

Fireman Bachschmidt went to help Barberi arouse the tenants. He managed to reach the third floor when he was overcome by smoke. He was not missed in the excitement until firemen stumbled over his body.

In his attempt to arouse the Carroll family Barberi was overcome by smoke in an upper hallway. He was carried to the street, where Dr. Pelkin of the Cumberland Street Hospital revived him.

Firemen Burns and Misak were injured while fighting the fire on the third floor.

Miss Catherine Baldwin, living at 74 Johnson Street, was leaving the house just as an entire window fell from an upper story of the burning building and some of the glass cut her.

The material damage to the building, which was a total loss, would exceed $20,000, the police said. All ten families living in the structure were cared for by neighbors. They were compelled to leave their homes in scanty night attire.

ASKS ANTI-FRATERNITY ACT.

Queens Assemblymen to Father Law to Punish Members.

Assemblyman William F. Brunner of Queens left for Albany last night to confer with other State legislators on a proposed bill to empower the Board of Education to punish high school students who join fraternities or sororities.

Mr. Brunner expects to keep Charles H. Voshurgh, principal of Jamaica High School informed of the progress of the proposal. The Assemblyman became interested in the Jamaica principal's efforts to curb high school secret societies when he learned of the roadhouse dance held by more than 150 Jamaica High School boys and girls, at which the principal said a number of students were intoxicated.

Cave-in on Lower Broadway.

Traffic on lower Broadway was congested shortly before 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning when a section of the street, about six feet in diameter, directly opposite the Standard Oil Building at 26 Broadway, collapsed and exposed a hole about eight feet deep. Electric cable linemen had been working in a manhole below that point yesterday and had replaced the cement covering the Belgian block top and the surfacing.

GENERAL BAN DISCUSSED

Walter Guzzardi, President of the Hotel Belleclaire, Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street, announced yesterday that there would be no more high school fraternity dances at the hotel. This decision had been reached, he said, because there had been more drinking than dancing at many of the student organization "hops."

FOUR PLAY JURIES DRAWN BY ENRIGHT

They Will Make Their First Reports to Him in Writing Within a Week.

IDENTITIES KEPT SECRET

Theatre Managers Will Not Be Informed When Censors Will Be In Audiences.

The play jury began to function at noon yesterday, when Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright drew the names of forty-eight men and women from a box and thus created four play juries.

The names were picked in the presence of John Emerson, President of the Actors' Equity Association; John P. Donlin, secretary to District Attorney Joab H. Banton, and Dr. Charles K. Gilbert of the Episcopal Social Service Commission.

After dividing the names into groups of not more than three, Commissioner Enright turned the names over to confidential agents. The jurors were asked to visit the plays individually and make their reports in writing within a week.

The names were drawn out of a jury wheel similar to those used in the courts. They were taken from a list of 130 men and women who have agreed to serve as a permanent panel. The first six drawn were the names of women. None of the names was given out, nor will they be.

Commissioner Enright explained that the jurors will not be aware of the identities of their colleagues, so there can be no consultations among the members. Each will report his or her findings to the Police Commissioner.

After the forty-eight had been drawn Mr. Donlin selected the plays to be passed on. He took four plays and gave them numbers under which they will hereafter be known to the Police Commissioner and the other members of the committee. The reports will be on the numerical designation of the play.

It was hinted that a play jury might visit several plays in one week. With four juries available it is possible that all the thirteen plays against which complaints have been made could be studied this week.

The jurors will decide whether a change in the script of the play should be made or whether a play should be withdrawn because of its indecent character. If the jury decides that revision would accomplish the desired end, the suggestion will be passed on to the manager. The jury will then visit the play again and ascertain whether the changes have been made.

No announcement will be made to the manager of the theatre when the jurors will be in the audience. Expenses will probably be met out of a contingency fund of the Police Department.

It was said that the jurors included well-known artists, writers, business men, social workers and ministers.

WANTS BRADY PROSECUTED.

Dr. Straton Also Assails Play Jury in Letter to Banton.

Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, in an open letter yesterday to District Attorney Joab H. Banton suggested that in view of the admission of William A. Brady that he had produced an indecent play, the theatrical manager should be prosecuted.

Dr. Straton declared he had no faith in the working of the play jury, as it was not constituted by legal authority and was brought together at least in part "by the very interests that are behind the theatre, with its acknowledged violations of both the law of the land and the law of human decency."

Dr. Straton inquired whether Mr. Banton had the authority to choose a method for quarrying the drama rather than invoking the penal law. He desired to know whether it was the habit of the District Attorney's office to choose the wrongdoers who would be brought to trial and to let the others go free. And if Mr. Banton did propose to adhere to this line of action, Dr. Straton asked whether he proposed to enter into a gentlemen's agreement with burglars, stipulating that if they refrained from stealing in the future they would not be brought to trial for past offenses.

Dr. Straton's solution was the rigid enforcement of present law, passing of even more stringent laws and, so far as popular entertainment was concerned, he suggested that Mr. Banton charter the Hippodrome, rent Will Rogers and a few of the real artists from the Metropolitan Opera House and give the people of New York—all of them, not merely the highbrows—some real music and some real fun at prices that will be within the reach of all."

PRESENTS BUST TO NURMI.

Paavo Nurmi was hailed as a great Ambassador of Amateur Sport by Lincoln Ellsworth, the explorer, yesterday, when he presented a bronze bust of the fleet runner to the Finn at the studio of Captain Ernst V. Chandler, 20 West Fortieth Street. Nurmi modestly remarked that the people at home would be pleased.

In presenting the bust, Mr. Ellsworth said:

"I, for one, shall never forget the beauty, the grace and the rhythm of his wonderful running. I feel that he has done more for real sport in this country than any other man has ever done before, by stimulating greater effort. America owes Paavo Nurmi a great debt of gratitude and so is offering him this memorance I do not want him to think of it merely as a personal gift, but rather that it expresses the gratitude of all real Americans."

The bust is about twelve inches high and was produced by a new process of photo sculpture. It is inscribed: "To Paavo Nurmi, the Ambassador of Amateur Sport, from Lincoln Ellsworth, an American admirer."

Hugh D'Arcy, 85, to Radio His Poem

Hugh D'Arcy, veteran newspaper man, actor and poet, will celebrate his eighty-fifth birthday by broadcasting his most famous poem, "The Face on the Barroom Floor," from the New York studio of WOR this evening at 9 o'clock.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU.

Brooklyn Merchants Discuss Plans to Organize One.

A plea for the establishment of a Better Business Bureau in Brooklyn was made yesterday before the Advertising Club of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce by Thomas F. Comeford, director of publicity for A. I. Namm & Son. He stood ready to contribute to its establishment. He stressed the dangers to responsible stores through advertising by irresponsible agencies.

Mr. Comeford said that he was ready either to support a separate Better Business Bureau in Brooklyn, or else take steps to extend the workings of the New York Better Business Bureau to the borough. There was need, he said, of an outside force which would scan advertisements and act as spotter to those who might be accidentally led astray in their statements, and which would eliminate those deliberately deceptive.

Support of such bureau was voiced by R. H. Gilbert, publicity director of Abraham & Straus, and John T. Ballou, advertising manager of Frederick Loeser & Co.

BOSTON, Mass., March 3.—Gerald J. Farrelly of 1,049 Park Avenue, New York City, a junior at Harvard University, and Miss Frances E. White, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Preston White of 205 Walnut Street, Brookline, took an automobile trip yesterday to Milford, N. H., and were married by Deputy Town Clerk Bruce.

The couple then returned to Boston, the bride to her Brookline home and Farrelly to Gurney Hall, Cambridge, where he rooms while studying at Harvard.

The couple intended to keep the marriage secret until Farrelly had secured his degree, it was said.

The marriage was discovered by newspaper men at Milford and the bride, when interviewed, admitted the marriage. She is a recent graduate of Miss Mary's School. Her father is a landscape engineer.

Snow Cost Long Island R. R. $80,000

The Long Island Railroad spent more during January for snow removal than in any twelve-month period for several years, it was announced yesterday. The cost in January was $80,000, while for all 1922 it was $52,370; $72,769 in 1923, and $46,725 in 1924.

The Count's Counsel Hopes Kellogg Will Reverse Hughes Policy.

After making public the text of a letter in which he intimated that the State Department was suppressing the facts in denying complicity on the part of the Hungarian Minister in the controversy over Count Karolyi's passports, Morris L. Ernst of Greenbaum, Wolff & Ernst, 7 Day Street, announced yesterday that he was resting the case of the Count pending the inauguration of the new Administration. Mr. Ernst hopes that Secretary Hughes's policy of preventing the former President of Hungary from conducting political activities while in this country will be reversed by Ambassador Kellogg, who is to be the new Secretary of State.

Count Karolyi will be the guest of honor and will speak at a benefit dinner organized by his Hungarian sympathizers here, to be given this evening at the Hungarian Home Restaurant, 350 East Eighty-first Street.

The International Committee for Political Prisoners announced yesterday that Count Karolyi would be the guest of honor at a protest mass meeting on behalf of political prisoners of all countries to be held at the Town Hall, 123 West Forty-third Street. Norman Hapgood will preside. At this meeting the Count is to sit on the platform while Hungarian representatives protest against imprisonment of political offenders under the Horthy regime. The Count is not to speak himself.

CATHOLICS TO USE RADIO.

Unity League Told of Paulist Fathers' Plan to Spread Doctrine.

Although the membership of the Catholic Unity League has grown to more than 14,000 in the seven years of its existence, the Rev. Bertrand L. Conway, C. S. P., told the members at the annual meeting in the Hotel Astor last night that there was more work than ever to be done during Holy Year, and he hoped the members would cooperate with him in the movement for the instruction of non-Catholics.

Michael Williams, editor of The Commonweal, said that the spirit of the Paulist Fathers, who plan to broadcast Catholic doctrine by radio, should be emulated by each member, and the league made a unit for the broadcasting of Catholic belief.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Yesterday's action of prices on the Stock Exchange—in general, they advanced—suggested the probability that the market was preparing a demonstration for today's inauguration of Mr. Coolidge and in response to his inaugural speech. In Wall Street, the fact that the event itself and the nature of the address to the people are foregone conclusions has no bearing in the matter; when the Stock Exchange is in a complacent mood it "responds" to anything that attracts public attention. There have been occasions in the past on which a Presidential message, distributed in advance, but nevertheless treated as a state secret, was greeted by the stock market when it was formally released with a movement of prices which expressed complete and ingenuous surprise.

Coupled as the inauguration is, however, with a nine months' vacation of Congress and the definite ending of the unhappy performances of the present legislative body, it is not altogether unreasonable that the double event should impart a spirit of relief to conservative finance. It was displayed with some irregularity yesterday; for the general run of prices changed very little and a few stocks declined. But the familiar bidding-up of what are usually described as the "speculative favorites" was much in evidence.

In New York money rates there was no further change yesterday; at London, the money market's movement was more or less confused in trend. This is natural enough when nobody positively knows how much the advance in the Bank of England rate will be on Thursday, even supposing an advance to be a certainty. Sterling rose fractionally, but dropped back again, and the franc got to the lowest rate since last July. Apparently, the French Government has as yet made no move to support the rate. At least one influence in the reaction of sterling rates was indicated by yesterday's Government figures on our January foreign trade by countries of origin and destination. The month's excess of exports to Europe is shown to have exceeded January, 1924, by $51,929,000, to which export surplus England alone contributed $23,929,000. On the other hand, the persistent flow of gold to India finds some explanation in the figures. We imported from India last January $3,500,000 more goods than we sent to her; our import surplus in trade with the whole Asiatic continent was $50,500,000 greater than in January, 1924.

Although the first of the monthly "index numbers," given out yesterday, shows a decrease of 1 1-3 per cent. in average prices during February, the decrease is mostly accounted for by the grain market's reaction. Wheat had reached $2.05⅞ per bushel just before the month began, and got down to $1.77½ when February was half over. Even with the lower breadstuffs prices, the comparison with pre-war values still wholly favors the grain producer. The breadstuffs average stands 86⅛ per cent. above August, 1914, as against an increase of 62 1-3 in all other products combined. But the figures have significant bearing on another aspect of the discussion of prices; the London contention that sterling's rise since the middle of 1924, and our own subsequent export of gold, were primarily due to an extremely rapid advance in all American prices, while England's prices were virtually standing still.

The truth is that prices have not advanced violently in this country, except for grain products. Since the beginning of last June, the low point of 1924, Dun's "group average" has risen 37½ per cent. for breadstuffs alone but only 4¼ per cent. for other products, and Liverpool's grain prices have for obvious reasons moved in step with Chicago's. The last British averages are not yet accessible. The year-end computations showed that between last June and the end of December British prices, as measured by the Board of Trade, had advanced 4½ per cent. on the average while American prices, as measured by the Bureau of Labor statisticians, had risen 8¼. But use of this comparison wholly ignores two other facts—first, that British prices had been rising during the preceding six months while American prices were falling, so that the rise for the full twelve months was 4½ per cent. in England against only 4 in America; second, that even the December average in England was 13 per cent. further above the pre-war figure than the same month's average in America.

TUESDAY, MARCH 3, 1925.

Quiet prevailed in all departments of the money market, moderate demand for accommodation, while lenders show little willingness to shade their quotations, which have lately hardened, resulting in limited business in either day to day or fixed periods. Stock Exchange demand funds again loaned at 4½ per cent., while maturity money was also quoted without variation. The active maturity was 90 days, at 4¾ per cent., with a little 60 days at 4 per cent. Commercial paper and acceptances remained firm and unchanged in discount.

SAY FORD MAY HELP SAVE THE ST. PAUL

BANKERS HERE SKEPTICAL

Byram Denies Any Plan Whereby Manufacturer Would Try Single-Handed to Meet Crisis.

The name of Henry Ford was injected into the tangled affairs of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company yesterday when it was reported in Wall Street that he might attempt to help salvage the road from possible bankruptcy. With a balance sheet showing total assets of $765,000,000 and a system which operates over 11,000 miles of main-line track, the company is figuring in one of the most interesting dramas of 1925 railroad history. The problem is one of getting an extension of time to pay off maturing bonds, or of throwing the railroad company into the courts.

Whether or not Ford was taking a part could not be learned. Wall Street bankers scouted the idea but asked for details. H. E. Byram, President of the railroad, said the report was wrong in so far as it intimated that Ford might pull it off the rocks single-handed, but he said that Ford in the course of his enterprises had helped to increase the revenues of the road. He said Ford had shown a keen interest in the electrification of the St. Paul, but there had been nothing as yet to indicate that Mr. Ford wanted to dig into his pocket for $50,000,000 odd to help the St. Paul out of its difficulties.

Letter Brings Rumor East.

The Ford rumor originated in the Northwest. A letter was published in Wall Street yesterday which, it was stated, came from a "responsible banker of the Northwest." This said that there is evidently "something going on in St. Paul affairs that have something to do with Henry Ford. I know that on nearly all the inspection trips that have been made by high officials of St. Paul they have been accompanied by representatives of Henry Ford. I understand that three of Ford's men were with President Byram when he passed through this city on the St. Paul a week ago."

The last sentence brought an emphatic denial from Mr. Byram. "There were no Ford men on my last trip," he said. He explained, however, that Mr. Ford had shown an interest in St. Paul's operating facilities, but this was primarily from the viewpoint of a shipper and railroad man who was interested in studying first-hand the advantages or disadvantages, of using electricity. Ford took a trip over the railroad's 646 miles of electrified line and presumably was impressed with its efficiency.

As for the St. Paul and its prospects of clearing its next big financial hurdle in the form of $40,951,515 of maturing bonds due on June 1, Mr. Byram said that much would depend upon the Coverdale & Colpitts report which is expected out at any time.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Company, it is expected, will marshal their financial resources to take care of this problem. Should Henry Henry Ford appear in the financing, no one, it is said, would be more surprised probably than the bankers. As nearly as any of the old-line banks of Wall Street could analyze the situation the proposition rested primarily upon these two large houses, and only by a manoeuvre which even Wall Street would not expect of the Detroit manufacturer would it be possible for him to hurry to the rescue of the St. Paul property. The two banks directly concerned did not show any particular interest in the report. On the other hand the theory was advanced that the banks and the road would welcome Ford, or any other man, who might contribute to a solution.

Engineering Report Awaited.

Upon the Coverdale & Colpitts report, it was believed, the entire question of the St. Paul's immediate future would rest. The road's officials are satisfied that the railroad fills a transportation need. The bankers are keeping an open mind, and it was believed that the engineering study of the road's earning power and condition was made primarily for their benefit. If they feel that they can recommend to the holders of the maturing bonds an extension in time and can find evidence that the St. Paul would be enabled thus to clear off its debt out of future earnings they would tackle the job.

Because of a proposal before Congress that the interest charge of the United States Government on its war-contract period loans to American railroads be reduced, President Coolidge's inaugural address is awaited eagerly. If he recommends such action, it was stated, the outlook for the St. Paul, which is one of the largest borrowers from the Government, would be made rosier, but if he ignores the subject, it would be darker.

Nearly every investment bank in New York City and a number of the savings banks which at one time were important holders of St. Paul securities, have made studies of the situation. One such house, Spencer Trask & Co., recently set forth the problem as being dependent upon two things: "The immediate refunding of the securities maturing this year, and the re-establishment of net earning power." If the latter is done, it was explained, the refunding problem could be readily overcome. The road's dilemma, it was said, could be attributed in important measure to the World War. When the St. Paul electrified its mountain roadbed, it had the assurance of substantial traffic, but the war, according to this analysis, greatly changed things.

Still another view expressed by bankers was that only through a change in the competitive basis for Panama Canal traffic and transcontinental railroad traffic or a remarkable development of business along the St. Paul's lines could any marked change in the railroad's gross earning power be effected.

I. R. T. JANUARY REPORT.

The statement of earnings and expenses of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for January shows revenues from all sources of $5,282,475. After deducting operating expenses, taxes and allowing for all income deductions, there was a balance of $112,215. This is $67,624 below the same month a year ago.

Seven months of the company's fiscal year, including January, show a gain of $600,944 in revenue from all sources compared with the same period last year. This advance was more than offset, however, by higher taxes and the increased rate of the Manhattan (elevated) rent which became effective July 1, 1924, under the readjustment plan. Though the company was able to lower operating expenses, it had a deficit of $156,301 after allowing for all charges.

Decline in Railroad Employes.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—At the end of 1924 class 1 railroads, which operate about 90 per cent. of the country's rail mileage, had fewer employes in service than at any time since 1922, it was reported today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The number was 1,736,699, compared with 1,793,719 a year ago. The payroll, during December, 1924, however, was $240,348,853, while in December, 1923, it was $234,863,008. The decline in employes was attributed chiefly to Winter reduction in maintenance of way and structures.

Dresden Bank Declares Dividend.

MANY SIMILAR INSTANCES

The failure of security holders to respond to company calls for conversion is an old story to financial executives, who give various reasons for what is commonly termed indifference. A company may advertise its call for conversion of bonds into stocks or stocks into bonds a half dozen times and still there will be many stockholders who fail to take advantage of their privileges. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost by security holders each year because of their negligence.

The most recent example of this sort is furnished by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company holders of the two-year convertible 4½ per cent. bonds. These bonds have been selling at 112 and were convertible into stock at 120 up to 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. After that time the bondholders automatically lost their privilege of conversion through no apparent fault of anybody but themselves.

Up to the final day for conversion—Monday—the bonds had a market value of $112 per $100 bond. Yesterday, without the conversion privilege, the bid price was 96½, representing a loss of nearly $16 per $100 bond to holders who neglected to convert. The loss is greater when the current market price of the American Telephone and Telegraph capital stock is figured in. These shares have been quoted above $130 a share for weeks, and yesterday the closing price was 135.

About $2,000,000 of the original issue of bonds was not converted. The loss to the holders concerned, without taking into consideration the present market value of the stock, was figured out yesterday at approximately $320,000.

BURLINGTON TO SHOW A $4,500,000 SURPLUS

The forthcoming annual report of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company will show a surplus of about $4,500,000 after a 10 per cent. dividend, according to Hale Holden, President.

"The road is in a position to handle traffic more economically than last year," Mr. Holden said yesterday, "and provided the crops of the Northwest are reasonably good, will carry more freight during 1925 than it did in 1924. The recent sagging of the road's loading in the Central West was only seasonal. Present conditions in the wheat belt are very encouraging."

An unusually large volume of traffic came to the line in February, which, it is anticipated, will cause an increase in gross receipts over last year.

The heavy movement of wheat, cotton, livestock, lumber and building materials in the West has made the car-loading report of the Missouri Pacific for February the largest in its history, it was stated yesterday. Loadings for the month just past show an increase of 10,245 cars or 9.4 per cent. over 1924, which held the advantage of an extra day. The 120,930 cars were divided between 87,729 cars loaded in St. Louis and the 33,651 received from connections. Average daily loadings went up from 4,608 to 5,258 carloads. Two allied lines, the International-Great Northern and the Gulf Coast line also showed a February increase. Loadings of revenue freight on the former totaled 18,739, against 16,518 in 1924, and on the latter 16,737, against 13,774.

GETS $1,000,000 CONTRACTS

Two Power Companies Place Equipment Orders With Westinghouse.

Contracts for two complete generating units to develop a total of nearly 80,000 horsepower and costing more than $1,000,000 have been received by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The turbines and condensers will be built at the company's South Philadelphia works and the generators at the East Pittsburgh works.

The large contract is for one 60,000 horsepower Westinghouse turbine generator and one condenser of 62,500 square feet for the Springdale plant of the West Penn Power Company of Pittsburgh. This unit will give the station an aggregate output of 210,000 horsepower.

The other order is from the Madison Gas and Electric Company, Madison, Wis., for a turbine generator of 18,750 horsepower with a condenser of 15,500 square feet.

It is the intention of the directors to distribute 5,000 shares of the new stock in the form of a stock dividend to stockholders of record March 21. The other 20,000 shares of stock will be offered to stockholders on a pro rata basis at $200 a share, subscriptions for the new stock being payable April 15.

RESUME TRADING IN ROME.

Bourse Feels Its Way Slowly Under Government's Decree.

ROME, March 3.—The Bourse, which threatened yesterday to suspend operations because of the Finanace Minister's decree requiring brokrs dealing in futures to demand cash to the extent of one-quarter of the current price of the securities dealt in, officially resumed operations this morning, but trading was slack.

Everybody seemed to be awaiting instructions as to how to proceed under Minister de Stefani's decree, the application of which was postponed yesterday because of the confusion in the market. The turmoil over the decree, however, had practically subsided, the brokers apparently having made up their minds to make the best of what they considered a bad arrangement.

Signor de Stefani's attitude on the question was illustrated by his refusal last night to receive a deputation of the brokers who wished to present a resolution against the decree.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD'S PLAN

Officials Want Authority to Issue $100,000,000 When Needed.

Requests for proxies for the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, to be held April 14 at Philadelphia, are being mailed today. The stockholders will be asked to approve an increase in the company's indebtedness. Authority will be asked for an issue of $100,000,000, in accordance with the company's desire to keep in a position to finance to this extent when necessary. The $100,000,000 authorized in 1921 has been practically exhausted, and the purpose of the new authorization is merely to provide for future capital requirements. No financing is contemplated at this time.

The proxies for this year's meeting are being requested in the name of Samuel Rea, President; Effingham B. Morris and Charles E. Ingersoll, directors, and Lewis Neilson, Secretary.

The Pennsylvania Railroad system earned revenues of $37,101,829 in January, an increase of $1,963,906 over the same month a year ago. Net railway operating income declined $435,002 to $4,805,123.

Associated Gas Dividend.

The directors of the Associated Gas and Electric Company will meet tomorrow and among the matters to be considered is the initial dividend declaration on the Class A stock. It is expected this will be 50 cents a share for the quarter.

TRADE GAINS BETWEEN RUSSIA AND BRITAIN

The Amtorg Trading Corporation, 136 Liberty Street, made public yesterday cabled statistics from London refuting reports from there that the volume of trade between Great Britain and Soviet Russia had shown a marked decline in the past year.

The message, which was from Arcos, Ltd., which the Amtorg Trading Corporation represents in this country as agents both for that company and the Russian State Import and Export Department, stated that the reports were "obviously inspired by opponents of Anglo-Russian relations."

The message quotes the London Board of Trade as putting the volume of trade between Russia and Great Britain in 1924 at more than £31,000,000, or about $150,000,000. Of this amount, imports into England from Russia were £19,994,000, and exports from England £11,177,000. These figures compare with a trade volume of £11,175,000, both imports and exports, as reported by Arcos, Ltd., for 1923.

The exports from England in 1921 and 1922, according to the message, included large seed purchases which had been made necessary by the famine situation in Russia.

Exception also is taken to the reports that all of Russia's purchases from England are done on a strictly cash basis. Nearly 30 per cent. of the British export transactions with the Russians are done on a credit basis, on terms running up to eight years, the message said.

Detroit United Railways Report.

The Detroit United Railways report for 1924 net income of $302,172 after charges, equal to $1.97 a share on 153,750 capital shares outstanding, against $329,521 or $2.15 a share in 1923.

The Bucyrus Company yesterday reported for 1924 $1,489,458 net earnings, after all expenses and reserves for depreciation, interest, taxes and other charges. It paid off all accumulated dividends on the outstanding preferred stock and paid regular quarterly dividends. The profit and loss surplus increased from $4,265,744 to $4,882,671.

President W. W. Coleman said in his statement to stockholders:

"The volume of orders on hand at the beginning of 1925 was not so great as a year ago, and the business which has been received since the first of the year is not nearly in so large a volume as in the first two months of last year. The inquiries are numerous and active, and the general underlying business conditions are so sound that we have every reason to expect the year 1925 will be successful, if not as good as the previous one. Our foreign sales again showed a marked increase, and certain new fields were entered which are most promising."

NEW RAIL MERGER LIKELY.

Rumors of a future consolidation of the Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville & Nashville and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railways gained ground yesterday. These roads are grouped together in the tentative plans of the Interstate Commerce Commission and now have a close traffic relationship. The Atlantic Coast Line owns $59,670,000 of the $117,000,000 L. & N. capital stock, while the L. & N. owns $11,484,100 of the $16,000,000 capital stock of the N. C. & St. L.

It is generally thought that the stockholders will come in for an even larger share of the profits than in the past if the consolidation takes place. Present returns on the roads are unusually large. The directors of the Coast Line declared a regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50 and an extra dividend of $1 at their last meeting, the L. & N. a semi-annual dividend of $3 and the N. C. & St. L. one of $3.50.

BRITISH-AMERICAN OIL.

Canadian Company's Stock to Be Quoted Ex Rights on March 17.

Directors of the British-American Oil Company, a Canadian company, have ruled that the capital stock of the company be quoted ex rights on March 17. The right is given the stockholders of the company to subscribe to new shares at $30 each, such right to expire on May 18. Payment for such stock should be made through the Union Trust Company in Toronto or the New York agency of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Under the plan the stockholders have the right to subscribe for one new share for each five shares now held. The new stock purchased will be entitled to dividends payable April 1. No warrants will be issued for fractional shares.

INCOME OFF SLIGHTLY.

The American Cigar Company yesterday reported for 1924 $1,632,899 net earnings, after all expenses, tax reserves and other deductions. These figures compare with $1,734,712 in 1923. After regular dividend requirements on the preferred stock the income was equal to $6.88 a share on the $15,000,000 of common stock outstanding, compared with $7.40 a share earned in 1923.

After payment of $1,500,000 dividends on the common and preferred stocks the company reported a surplus of $132,899, against one of $224,712 in 1923. The profit and loss surplus increased from $5,220,835 to $5,353,734.

Western Pacific Plans Issue.

The Western Pacific purposes to issue $4,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds in a single block to sell at not less than 90 per cent. of par, if the Interstate Commerce Commission grants the authority, it was stated in a Washington dispatch yesterday. The proceeds will be used to reimburse the road's treasury and to meet expenditures from income for additions and betterments.

FORBIDS 'BLIND' ADVERTISING

Stock Exchange Issues Ruling on Brokers' Hunt for Men.

New York Stock Exchange officials have ruled definitely against so-called "blind" advertisements, it was learned yesterday. Hereafter when a Stock Exchange firm advertises for a customers' man, a salesman, a bookkeeper or other employe the name of the firm advertising must be published.

The reason for the order is said to be that many of the large Stock Exchange houses have lost valued employes during the last few weeks through higher offers made to them by other Stock Exchange houses who have attracted this help through "blind" advertisements placed in the daily papers.

240% Security
Five-Fold Safety and an Unconditional Guarantee

The 5½% First Mortgage Gold Bonds of The Mortgage-Bond Co. of New York combine to an unusual degree every known factor of safety. Note these five points of protection:

Security: The property securing the mortgages behind these bonds is conservatively appraised to be worth nearly 2½ times the face value of the mortgages. The actual value of the property, as proved by selling prices over a period of 20 years, has averaged 5% above these appraisals.

Restrictions: The Trust Agreement, under which the Company operates, definitely limits the Company as to the type and character of loans that it can make. Mortgage loans deposited may be made only on residence or business property. No loan can be deposited which is secured by farm property, unimproved property, an undivided interest in property, leaseholds, churches, factories, clubs or theatres. Further, the mortgages must be placed in cities of the United States having a population of not less than 40,000.

Diversification: The loans are made in 24 substantial and growing Southern and Western cities, and average about $4,000 each.

Record: The Company has never lost a dollar of either principal or interest for any investor during the twenty years of its existence. It has made 11,074 loans in cities of the South and West, of which only 22 have been foreclosed, and these foreclosures have resulted in a net profit to the Company.

A more detailed description of the Security, the Trust Indenture under which the Company operates, and its unusual Guarantee are given in a booklet, "Creating the Safeguards of a Guaranteed Investment."

WALL ST. NAMES IT "COOLIDGE BOOM"

STOCKS MAKE BIG ADVANCE

Records Show Many Millions Added to Value of Securities in the Last 4 Months.

In the four months that have elapsed since the election of Calvin Coolidge to the Presidency, millions of dollars have been added to the open market value of securities and commodities. Wall Street has come to think of these advances in the terms of a "Coolidge boom," and to attribute the situation to the fact that a conservative Administration swings into the saddle today.

It would, of course, be entirely too much to say that the election of Coolidge as President had been responsible for the exuberant bull markets which have developed in almost every direction. The knowledge that a conservative President will be at the head of the Administration for the next four years is considered in many quarters as merely a contributing factor to the strong economic situation which has developed since midsummer. This included an improvement in the agricultural situation, due to the fact that foreign grain crops failed, and that practically the whole world was obliged to call upon America for grain products; an easy money situation by which speculation was facilitated, and finally and probably most important, a condition in which gradual industrial improvement was to be noted from day to day, coupled with distribution in small quantities of merchandise more rapid than ever before.

Probably an important factor in the situation was that the pendulum of prices had swung too low in midsummer, as it always does in periods of temporary depression, and that the upswing of prices in the last four months was in a measure the "taking up of the slack." At any rate, the price advance, measured from Nov. 4 to March 4, has been one of the most remarkable in the economic history of the country.

An idea of the advances may be gained from the fact that industrial stocks have swung up an average of 22.70 in the four months' period, and that railroad stocks have advanced 11.86. The average of fifty representative stocks advancing in that period was 17.28. The same is true of the wheat market, the market for corn and for cotton, the so-called "money crops" of the country. There has been a wide appreciation, too, in practically all of the exchanges with sterling the feature, showing an advance of approximately 25 cents to the pound in the interval between the election and the inauguration of the new President.

The following statistical summary gives prices for stocks and bonds, wheat, corn and cotton and for the two principal exchanges, at the close of business on Nov. 3 and last night:

Probably the most dramatic advance has been made in the stock market, which usually keeps ahead of actual conditions. Since the election there have been eighty-seven million-share days on the Stock Exchange and twenty-seven two-million-share days. In that interval a total of 160,724,570 shares of stocks have been dealt in, of which 123,101,395 shares were industrials and 37,623,175 were railroad shares. Possibly the size of the volume is best illustrated by the fact that up to 1899 no full-year markets in the history of the Stock Exchange had exceeded this four months' volume. Subsequent years have run considerably behind 1924-1925 in volume of trading. During the same period a total of $1,477,098,875 in bonds were dealt in. The greatest total was thus established for a four months' period in the history of the New York Stock Exchange.

Some of the most spectacular advances in the stock market, in the four months' interval, have been as follows:

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

French and Italian Continue Lower, While Sterling and Other Continentals Go Higher.

Except for a continuation of the reaction in French and Italian rates, other European exchanges were firmer and at moderate improvement over Monday in yesterday's trading. Pressure against the franc and lira was again the result of selling by the Continent, in which both settled to new low points for the year just before the close. The Paris bill dropped 2¼ points to 5.05¾ cents, and the Italian 2 points to 3.96¾ cents. Profit-taking purchases later brought a slight rally from these levels.

Sterling was in good demand by importers, and coupled with the paucity of export bills ran up from an opening at $4.75⅞ to $4.76⅛. Belgian francs advanced 2¼ points to 5.01¼ cents, bringing the spread between the French and Belgian to a narrow margin, whereas a year ago this had been as great as ⅝ cent. Holland, Spanish, Swiss and the Scandinavians were steady.

Japanese yen was strong, although other Easterns were irregular. The yen sold up to 39.75 cents, a new high on this movement. The declines in the Chinese remittances extended from an ⅛ to ¼ cent. South Americans were dull.

FEWER FAILURES SINCE JANUARY

HIGHER THAN A YEAR AGO

Number of Defaults 22.8% Less Than in January and Liabilities 28.1% Smaller.

Business failures in the United States during February were much fewer than those in January, partly because the month was short. They were somewhat greater in number than a year ago.

Decreases of 22.6 and 28.1 per cent., respectively, in number and liabilities of commercial failures during February as compared with January are shown by reports to R. G. Dun & Co. Numbering 1,793 and involving an indebtedness of $40,123,017, last month's defaults contrast with 2,317 in January for $54,854,082, and with 1,730 for $35,942,037 in February, 1924.

DECLINE IN AVERAGE PRICES IN FEBRUARY

The first of the monthly index numbers of average prices as of March 1, published yesterday by Dun's Review, shows an average decline of 1.3 per cent. during February. As compared with the index of March 1, 1924, the average rise in prices was 5¼ per cent., and from the low point of 1924, reached on June 1, there has been an advance of 9⅝ per cent. As compared with July 1, 1921, the low level since the war, averages prices are shown to have increased 26 1-3 per cent. Compared with May 1, 1920, the high point since the war by the Dun computation, there has been a net decline of 23 1-3 per cent. Compared with the average of Aug. 1, 1914, the Dun index number shows an advance of 97¼ per cent.

In the seven groups of commodities for which separate index numbers are computed, five show a decrease in average prices during the month of February. There was a slight increase in average prices for the group of meat and meat products and of clothing and textiles.

CAR LOADINGS ROSE AFTER DULL HOLIDAY

Total for Week to Feb. 21 Was 925,295, an Increase of 22,418 Over Previous Period.

DROP IN GRAIN, COAL, ORE

All Districts but One Showed Increase in All Commodities Over Same Period in 1924.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—After a slump attributed to the Lincoln Birthday holiday, loading of revenue freight increased in the week ending Feb. 21, according to tabulation made public today by the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. Cars loaded were 925,295, showing an increase of 22,418 cars over the preceding week. The growth of revenue freight business was illustrated by the fact that the showing for the week of Feb. 21 was an increase of 79,506 cars over the corresponding week of 1924 and an increase of 95,108 cars over the corresponding week of 1923. This advance was due partly to the fact that the Washington Birthday holiday came in the period covered in the two prior years.

Loading of miscellaneous freight, as well as merchandise and less than carload lot freight, forest products, coke and live stock for the week of Feb. 21, showed increase over the week before, but decreases were reported in the loading of grain and grain products, coal and ore.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week amounted to 326,913 cars, 18,318 cars above the week before, 46,465 cars above the same week last year and 43,629 cars above the same week two years ago. Merchandise and less than carlot freight totaled 253,777 cars, which was 5,938 cars above the week before, 40,639 cars above the same week last year and 52,051 cars above the same week in 1923.

Forest products totaled 83,030 cars, 3,502 cars above the week before, and 5,206 cars above last year. Compared with the corresponding week two years ago, it also was an increase of 18,268 cars.

Grain and grain products loading amounted to 41,042 cars, a decrease of 372 cars under the week before and 3,006 cars under the same week last year. It was, however, an increase of 698 cars over two years ago. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading totaled 26,466 cars, a decrease of 2,607 cars under the corresponding week last year.

Livestock loading for he week totaled 30,826 cars, an increase of 294 cars over the week before but 2,539 cars under the corresponding week last year. Compared with the same week in 1923, it was a decrease of 1,177 cars. In the Western districts 23,363 cars were loaded with livestock during the week, 1,305 cars below the same week last year.

Coal loading totaled 165,359 cars, a decrease of 5,237 cars under the preceding week and 10,394 cars under the same week last year. Compared with the same week two years ago it was a decrease of 13,190 cars.

Coke loading totaled 13,339 cars, 25 cars above the preceding week and 729 cars above the corresponding period in 1924. Compared with the same period in 1923 it was a decrease of 1,574 cars.

Compared by districts, all except the Pocahontas region showed increases in the total loading of all commodities over the week before. All showed increases over the corresponding week in 1924 except Pocahontas. Decreases were reported in all districts compared with the corresponding week in 1923.

Jan. 31	896,055	929,625	866,414	747,895

Record loadings for all time were 1,112,345 cars in the week of Oct. 25, 1924.

Imperial Valley Car Loadings Rise.

A total of 33,200 carloads of farm products came out of Imperial Valley, California during 1924, an increase of nearly 26 per cent. over 1923, it was announced yesterday. Additional shipping facilities provided by the Southern Pacific Railroad are said to have been a factor in the increase.

4 NEW YORK CITIES OFFER BONDS TODAY

The bulk of new bond and note issues announced for a public offering today consist of four which are made for municipalities of New York State. In addition, there is an offering for a New York City book store.

A new issue of $1,410,000 City of White Plains (N. Y.) 4½ per cent. registered bonds was awarded yesterday to a syndicate composed of Redmond & Co., R. W. Pressprich & Co., Rutter & Co. and Clark, Williams & Co., who today are offering them publicly at prices to yield 4 per cent. Competition for the issue was said to be brisk and at an interest carrying charge of less than 4 per cent. The White Plains issue was understood to have established a new record for a long-term credit for that account. The bonds will mature on March 1, 1935-1955, and are divided into $1,210,000 of water bonds, $150,000 sewer bonds and $50,000 library bonds.

Roosevelt & Son and George B. Gibbons & Co., Inc., are offering $600,000 City of Yonkers (N. Y.) 4½ per cent. gold bonds, due Feb. 1, 1932-1962, at prices to yield 4 per cent. This city has an assessed valuation of $227,063,707 and net bonded debt of $14,511,540.

To yield 4.05 to 4.13 per cent., Batchelder, Wack & Co., Bonbright & Co., Inc., Rutter & Co. and C. W. Whitis & Co. are offering a new issue of $470,000 Village of North Tarrytown (N. Y.) 4¼ per cent. water bonds, due Oct. 1, 1927-1964. The city's assessed valuation is $7,633,566 and its net bonded debt $163,000.

George B. Gibbons & Co. are offering $340,000 North Tonawanda (N. Y.) School District 1 4½ per cent. gold bonds maturing April 1, 1942-1958, at prices to yield 4.15 per cent. Assessed valuation is $18,140,880 and total bonded debt $750,000. The same firm is also offering a new issue of $235,000 Nashville (Tenn.) coupon 5½ per cent. street improvement bonds maturing March 1, 1927-1930, at prices to yield 4.10 to 4.25 per cent. Assessed valuation is $136,669,618 and net bonded debt $9,894,000.

Public offering of five-year 6 per cent. sinking fund gold notes of Brentano's, Inc., is made by Taylor, Ewart & Co., Inc., at par. This financing totals $350,000 and the notes are due March 1, 1930. Proceeds will be used in part to reimburse the company for expenditures incurred in the purchase of its Chicago store, to finance the equipment for and moving of the New York store to the new location as previously announced and to set up additional working capital. In connection with the financing Brentano's presented figures showing past earnings. For the ten fiscal years ended last June 30 average annual net earnings after depreciation were $96,700, and for the six months ended last Dec. 31 net earnings after depreciation were more than $120,000.

Blair & Co., Inc., announced in behalf of the offering group that the $4,000,000 issue of Gould Coupler Company first lien 6 per cent. bonds had been subscribed and books closed. Rutter & Co. stated, also, that their offering of $600,000 Imperial Valley (Cal.) Irrigation District 6 per cent. bonds had all been sold.

BIG SALE OF RUSSIAN OIL.

Anglo-American Believed to Be Buyer of 4,000,000 Barrels.

Reports received in the financial district yesterday that Standard Oil interests had contracted to take over 700,000 tons of crude oil produced in the Baku-Grozny fields in Russia could not be confirmed at the local offices of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which would be the logical buyer if the product had been sold to American interests.

The opinion was expressed in one quarter that probably the Anglo-American Oil Company, the former British subsidiary of the old Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was the buyer. This information added that the oil had been offered to half a dozen large companies and it was his belief that the British company acquired the product, which approximates more than 4,000,000 barrels.

CONTINENTAL OIL BRINGS IN NEW WELL

RUNS 850 BARRELS DAILY

Said to Have an 80 Per Cent. Gasoline Content—Company's Net Assets $21,000,000.

The Continental Oil Company, formerly the Mutual Oil Company, has brought in its No. 8 well in the Rattlesnake Dome Field in New Mexico, according to S. H. Keoughan, President of the company. The well, according to Mr. Keoughan, considerably extends the producing area of the field and will necessitate the revamping of the entire producing area.

The first well brought in in this field was at a depth of 760 feet, and was considered the centre of the field. The well brought in yesterday was drilled into oil sand at a depth of 732 feet, and being located about one-fourth of a mile west of the first well, extends the area considerably. The latest well is now producing about 850 barrels daily and gives the company total production of about 3,000 barrels in the Rattlesnake Field. The oil, it is stated, is probably the highest grade produced in the country, having an 80 per cent. gasoline content.

The annual report of the Continental Oil Company for 1924 is not expected to be published for several weeks. According to figures made public yesterday, however, the statement as of Dec. 31, 1924, when released by the company, will show net current assets of $21,000,000 and current liabilities of about $6,000,000, leaving net working capital of $15,000,000. The daily average production from 850 wells is now 26,000 barrels and the estimated oil reserves are placed at 40,000,000 barrels from a proved area of about 20,000 acres. The company's total leases aggregated 208,000 acres, according to the figures, while 86,000 acres are held in fee. In addition, it is stated that the company has 1,000 proved wells that can be drilled in at any time the oil is needed.

BIG ORDERS FOR OIL PIPE.

Producing Companies Anticipate Active Field Operations.

The recent sharp decline in crude oil production in the United States and the fear in some quarters of the trade that the supply may be insufficient to meet constantly growing demand has resulted in increased buying of oil field supplies, according to reports in steel trade circles. Many of the larger oil companies, it was said yesterday, are placing orders for large quantities of pipe and other equipment, in preparation for more active wildcat operations during the Spring and Summer months.

Several large orders for new field pipes were placed recently with the National Tube Company. Jones & Laughlin and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company. Large orders for line pipe for existing and prospective fields are also reported. The National Tube Company received an order from the Pure Oil Company for 20,000 tons of pipe, sufficient to lay 140 miles of 8-inch line. The Houston Oil Company also gave this company an order for 10,000 tons for 200 miles of line ranging from 16 to 20 inches. Orders placed by the Marland Oil Company, the Texas Company and the Humble Oil & Refining Company, with the other steel companies, call for about 25,000 tons.

POTOMAC EDISON NET LESS.

Drops From $501,198 in 1923 to $316,487, Though Gross Was Same.

The Potomac Edison Company and subsidiaries report net income of $316,487 for 1924, after taxes, interest, depreciation and preferred dividends of subsidiaries, but before Federal taxes. In 1923 the figure was $501,198. Gross earnings were approximately the same as for 1923.

Although 1924 saw general business depression, the company materially increased its power output, and, according to President M. F. Riley, new customers substantially compensate for the reduced demand of old patrons. The company made extensive enlargements and improvements which resulted in additional appropriations for interest and dividends. The Williamsport-Cumberland transmission lines were not completed until near the close of the year.

1924 SET A RECORD IN UTILITIES SALES

VALUE PUT AT $505,177,500

More than 200 public utility companies changed hands last year, establishing a high record in the sale of electric light and power properties, according to compilations made by F. O. March, public utility banker. The plants ranged in size from the Fillmore Light and Power Company in Fillmore, Ind., with a population of 100, to the Illinois Power and Light and the Missouri Power and Light companies, serving more than 1,250,000 persons.

The estimated value of these companies is put at $505,177,500 and the population served at 3,969,830. The estimated population does not include that served by companies in the United Railways Investment Company group. Because of the electric railway element in this group, it was eliminated in the calculation.

This unusual activity in the market for electric light and power properties apparently was due principally to the reasonable rates upon which public utility financing was possible in 1924, and to the fact that the bigger companies by developing central stations, advantageously located, have been able to operate large units on a high load factor. It has thus been possible for them to produce and deliver electric currents at lower rates to the public than the smaller isolated generating stations.

Besides these factors, there is a natural tendency of large public utility groups to acquire territory, taking advantage of the sympathetic interest of superpower advocates, including Government experts.

While most of the sales of properties in 1924 were composed of medium-sized plants, a number of individual sales stand out, notably those of the Kansas City Power and Light Company, the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Company, American Electric Power Company, Columbus, Ohio, Electric Railway, and Light Company, the Illinois Power and Light Company, 40 per cent. of the common stock of the American Light and Traction Company and the control of the United Railways Investment Company, which has been acquired by the Byllesby interests.

HARDWARE MARKETS FIRM.

Further Advances Said to Be Expected by the Wholesalers.

A firm tone prevails in the country's hardware markets, says the Hardware Age. Commenting on conditions the paper adds: "Further advances are expected by wholesalers in the several market centres. Jobbers report February a very good month, due to radio sales and advanced orders on Spring goods.

"Rural and suburban retail trade is fairly active, but city business is not very satisfactory. Jobbers say dealers are placing well assorted orders, but in limited quantity.

WHEAT GOES UP DESPITE PRESSURE

EXPORT BUSINESS SLOW

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Dry weather complaints from parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, with cables indicating that the India wheat crop had been damaged by drought and that there might be little or no new crop grain for export had a radical effect on values today. While the market was called upon to absorb heavy profit-taking sales, the undertone was decidedly strong and the finish was at net gains of 2⅝@2⅞ cents, July leading, and closing around 2¾ cents under the May, compared with 3⅜ under recently.

The bulk of the new business is going into the July and many of the local traders went out of their holdings of the May, which touched $1.96⅝, but the selling passed into strong hands.

Broomhall has revised his estimate on the world's import needs by 32,000,000 bushels, raising the total to 752,000,000 bushels, of which 294,000,000 will have to be secured the balance of the crop year. Included in the quantities expected to be secured from exporters are 15,000,000 bushels from India, which, according to today's cables, may have no grain to spare. The India news was largely responsible for an advance of 4@11½d. in Liverpool during the day.

Reports from Southwestern connections sent buying orders for the July and the September, as well as unfavorable crop news. The Kansas weekly weather and crop report confirmed reports of damage in some of the central and northeastern counties of that State, while in the western third and the southern tier of counties the outlook is excellent.

Export demand was slow, with sales, in all positions, of 250,000 to 300,000 bushels. France resold hard winters for April-May shipment via the Gulf. There was some foreign buying of wheat futures here and at Winnipeg, while Minneapolis operators bought May in that market and sold here at 10 cents difference, narrowing to around 9½ cents at the last.

Buenos Aires closed ¼ cent higher to 1½ lower, the latter on May, which was 2¼ cents under Chicago at the last.

A break of 12@8 cents in the basis on cash corn here, as compared with May, tended to restrict buying of futures, but the close was at gains of ¼@⅝ cents.

The weakness in cash corn was due to the Corn Products Company pulling out of the market as a buyer, and No. 6 grades sold as low as 28½ cents under May. Oats gained a like amount, with only a fair trade. Rye was dull and 1¼@1⅛ cent higher in sympathy with wheat.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 600,000 bushels; week ago, 1,301,000; last year, 674,000. Shipments were 500,000 bushels; week ago, 590,000; last year 502,000.

Corn receipts were 1,324,000 bushels; week ago, 1,078,000; last year, 1,852,000, and shipments, 670,000 bushels; week ago, 553,000; last year, 569,000.

SMITH PLAN OPPOSED BY COTTON EXCHANGE

Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., President of the New York Cotton Exchange, declared yesterday that the reclassification of New York stocks of raw cotton, under the plan proposed by Senator Smith of South Carolina, would disorganize the local market and cause the greatest disorder and confusion.

"The New York Cotton Exchange is much disturbed over the proposed resolution," Mr. Bartlett said, "for the reason that if cotton were reclassified on duplicates, the time consumed might be at least one month and if owners of cotton demanded reclassification on redrawn samples, as they probably would do, and rightly so on cotton received in some cases months ago, the time consumed would be much longer, possibly a minimum of two months.

"Meanwhile the greatest confusion would prevail and all trading in local cotton would be disturbed and thrown into disorder. The effect on th emarket would be most unfortunate. Owing to the serious possibilities opened up by the proposed remedy of Senator Smith, I have felt it necessary to urge that it be opposed."

Mr. Bartlett sent telegrams to Senators Wadsworth and Copeland urging them to oppose the Smith resolution.

NEW BAKING MERGER.

Continental Company Plants Expected to Sell $100,000,000 a Year.

Since Jan. 1 the Continental Baking Corporation has acquired nine additional baking companies, bringing the total number of plants acquired since the formation of the corporation the latter part of last year to seventy-five. These plants, it was estimated yesterday, will report a total sales volume for 1925 of considerably more than $100,000,000, with net profits astimated at $10,000,000. These figures will represent a business as large or larger than the business of the National Biscuit Company, which for years was the only baking stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

It is only recently that bread making on the same scale as steel making has become as economical as the latter. The rapid distribution of bread by high-speed trucks has been largely responsible, it is said, for the large-scale production, which has made possible a combination of baking companies comparable in the extent of their service to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company or the United States Steel Corporation.

FIGHT CREDIT FRAUDS.

Association Plans to Spend $1,000,000 a Year in Wide Activities.

The National Association of Credit Men is planning to spend $1,000,000 annually in a campaign against credit frauds which, the association was told yesterday, at a luncheon in the Bankers Club, 120 Broadway, are threatening the credit structure of American business.

As about 95 per cent. of the country's business is done "on time," the menace, as it was described, was said to be serious. Past means of combating this form of criminality were said to have been dwarfed in comparison with the sharp gains of credit crimes in the last few years. At present," it was announced, "there is no organization in this country that can effectively cope with these crooks."

COTTON LOSES A BIT IN IRREGULAR DAY

FOREIGN MARKET QUIET

Realizing Tendency Follows the Sharp Advance of the Last Week —Discount on October Widens.

Though cotton again made new high records yesterday, a greater degree of irregularity characterized the courses of prices and final quotations showed an advance of 3 to a decline of 18 points. At one time May touched 26.20, or a dollar a bale over high figures of Monday, but the close on most months reflected a slight loss on the day. While certain interests continued the purchase of May contracts, the advance in later months attracted increased selling. May gained $3 a bale on October compared with relations existing just prior to March notice day.

Washington informed the Cotton Exchange that the Secretary of Agriculture was appointing a special investigating committee to reclassify the stock here and report its findings. Any one having knowledge of cotton below legal requirements for contract delivery is urged to bring the matter before the committee. The committee, however, is instructed to proceed on its task at once, regardless of whether such complaints are filed.

Early trading reflected a slowing down of recent activity, owing to comparatively quiet foreign market and more or less realizing following the sharp advance of the past week. Around 26¼ cents for July and above 26¾ cents for new crops, the market ran into a larger supply of contracts for these positions, though demand for May continued on a liberal scale. A reaction of 20 points during the morning carried May back to 25.85 when the accumulation of cotton by certain commission house interests was resumed. With a strong stock market and no indication of relief in the shape of general rains in the Southwest, selling pressure lifted and shortly after midday a rush of large buying orders carried the whole list to highest levels of the movement. Blocks of 5,000 bales, particularly in May, were purchased.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Commercial Paper.

Tuesday 3¼@4 per cent. for the best names. Monday, 3¼@4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Two-Piece Costume Gains Ground.

The two-piece costume of blouse and skirt is one of the steadily gaining items in Spring garment sales here. Crêpe de chine is the favored material. On some of them lace collars and cuffs are used as a finish to an otherwise severely simple costume. Red continues to be much in demand, either as the prevailing color in the two-piece costume or as the dominant note in prints. In connection with the popular suspender skirts, reports the United Waist League of America, peasant blouses continue to be the big sellers.

Shoe Trade in Good Shape.

One of the interesting things about the Spring business done in women's shoes this season, according to one of the best-posted men in the local trade, is the reversal in the colors and materials wanted. Last Spring, this man said yesterday, patent leather footwear sold best to the fair sex, with satin and colored pumps selling in the order named. This year tan is in the lead, particularly in suits with patent leather second and satin third. Business has been very good since the turn of the year, he further said, and the same is true of men's shoes. Another feature of the orders booked to date is the increasing demand for crêpe-sole footwear for men, boys and children.

Gray Goods Prices Higher.

The firm position of cotton resulted in several advances in gray goods here yesterday. Some of the leading Southern lines of lightweight branded sheetings were advanced an eighth to a quarter of a cent a yard, but the heavier goods were unchanged. In the unbranded lines business was put through in 36-inch 5.50 sheetings at 8 cents, with some sellers asking 8¼, and in 36-inch 6-yard goods at 8¾ cents. Additional lightweight sheeting business consisted of sales of 36-inch 6.15s at 7¼ cents. In the printcloths some small spot sales of 39½-inch 64-60s were reported at 9¾ cents, with March-April deliveries selling at an eighth less. "Quick" lots of 39-inch 72-76s and 68-72s were sold at 12¾ and 11¾ cents, respectively. April-May business in the latter was put through at 11⅞ cents. Spot lots of 38½-inch 60-48s brought 8¾ cents, with April-May goods bringing 8¾ cents. Sales of 37-inch 3.95-yard drills were made at 10¾ cents. In the fine-yarn goods business was done in hard-twist voiles, stripe sateens and low-count carded broadcloths.

Amoskeag Fall Gingham Priced.

Fall lines of ginghams and kindred fabrics of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company were priced yesterday at figures representing a general advance of a cent a yard over the last previous quotations. According to a statement issued late in the afternoon by Jarvis, Loomis & Dunbar, selling agents for the Amoskeag company, the new prices will cover deliveries ranging from May to October. It is probable that other leading lines of Eastern ginghams will be priced today. Southern gingham prices also are looked for today or tomorrow.

Report Improving Collections.

Some improvement is reported in the collections of men's clothing manufacturers from retailers. The situation is still spotty, some wholesalers reporting a larger degree of improvement than others, but all seem to agree that there has been a change for the better. The retailer is awaiting mild weather for a good start on their early Spring showings. If this occurs it will mean considerable in the further clearing up of the credit situation. Incidentally, a fairly active demand is reported in the piece goods market for lightweight suitings and topcoatings, reflecting the small goods stocks which the manufacturing clothiers are carrying.

One of the outstanding things about the business done in women's neckwear this season is the amount of interest buyers are showing in goods sold by the yard. Some houses that manufacture both ruffings and yard goods, as well as the made sets, find that about 70 per cent. of their business has been done in the former. One of the reasons given for this is the prominence of the jabot in Spring fashions, and the fact that its length varies considerably. With the new ruffings and pleatings available by the yard, it is possible for a jabot to be easily fashioned to the desired length.

There are some lines of men's Fall fabrics which have met with a highly favorable reception from buyers, and it is understood that these have been practically sold up and will soon be withdrawn. In the main, these lines represent what buyers have considered the "cream" of the recent offerings and on which they have concentrated their initial purchases. The situation generally is developing better than was expected earlier, and the removal from the market of lines most attractive from the standpoint of price is held likely to make for a better distribution of the remainder of the orders.

Will Oppose Insurance Changes.

A general conference of ready-to-wear factors has been called by Max Lachman, Vice Chairman and General Manager of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, for tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss ways and means of combatting the proposed changes in fire insurance rates. Because of alleged greater hazards, certain fire insurance groups desire to limit liability on needle trade risks to 75 per cent. of damages incurred by those insured. Practically all trade associations affiliated with the different needle trades and ready-to-wear lines have been invited to take part in the conference. "There seems to be little reason for the proposed changes," said Mr. Lachman yesterday, "when it is considered that probably never in the history of the business have ready-to-wear firms been housed in such fireproof establishments." The meeting will be held in the association's new headquarters, at 455 Seventh Avenue.

To Learn Manufacturers' Views.

At the meeting yesterday to discuss the proposed separate Summer season this year, held at the offices of the National Garment Retailers' Association, a committee was appointed comprising J. Newmeier and W. F. Davidow. They will confer with dress and sportswear manufacturers on the desirability of the movement and the best means of carrying it on. This committee, according to John W. Hahn, Executive Secretary of the association, will make its report by the end of this week. The retailers, added Mr. Hahn, are thoroughly "sold" on the project, this being demonstrated in a canvass of their opinions.

Call for Sheen Worsteds.

Worsteds for dresses and ensembles have come notably to the front recently. The demand centres on sheen worsteds, and practically every dress-goods representative here reports strong buying of them. The goods are wanted for immediate delivery, which makes it hard for some of the mills to get much satisfaction out of the present interest. At least one of them, however, is taking care of the matter by splitting the present situation, it is said, makes the Fall outlook for worsteds of the lustrous variety very good.

The real estate market yesterday was featured by apartment house deals, operators being especially active in this type of trading. In what was by far the largest transaction of the day, Samuel Brener disposed of twelve houses, representing part of the realty which he recently acquired from the corporation of H. & A. Cohen, Harry Cohen, President. Most of the properties are on Washington Heights, the original purchase involving thirty-two houses.

In yesterday's resale Mr. Brener sold to the London Property Holding Corporation, Henry London, President, 514 to 518 West 135th Street, three six-story walk-up buildings, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue, each on a plot 42 by 100 feet.

He also sold to the same buyers 518, 522 and 528 West 161st Street, three six-story walk-ups, each on a plot 45 by 100 feet, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue. In the same transaction Mr. Brener sold to the London PropertyHolding Corporation 509, 511, 515, 519, 523 and 527 West 160th Street.

All the properties involved in the deal have a total rental of $165,000 annually. They were held at $1,200,000.

Other deals involving multi-family properties were scattered over Manhattan. In another resale deal by operators, Isidor H. Kempner & Sons sold 181 East Broadway to Sidney Harris. The property consists of a five-story building on a plot 26 by 100 feet, having two three-room and two four-room apartments on each floor and two stores. This building was recently purchased from Jacob Hichman and Frank Lippman.

Isaac Lowenfeld, operator, purchased from the estate of Katie Wise 2,202 Seventh Avenue, which adjoins the northwest corner of 130th Street, a five-story apartment with two stores, on a lot 26 by 75 feet. The purchaser contemplates remodeling the premises. Abraham Hamil was the broker.

Leon Stein sold 826 Amsterdam Avenue to F. Stellhorn for investment. It is a five-story apartment house with a store and twelve apartments, on a lot 23 by 100 feet, and renting for $8,800.

On the east side, Duff & Conger, Inc., in conjunction with George Ranger, sold the six-story apartment house at 50 East Ninety-sixth Street, southeast corner of Madison Avenue, to an investor.

The four-story eight-family building at 165 East Ninety-third Street, on a plot 30 by 100 feet, was sold by the Oberlander Realty Company to A. Mencher.

Sale on Prospect Hill.

On Prospect Hill, where buying has been active recently, Maurice Wertheim sold for the 317 East Forty-third Street Company, Inc. (Harry Schnee, Secretary), the four-story double flat at 317 East Forty-third Street, on lot 25 by 100. The buyer is Irving M. Engel, who purchased for investment.

The five-story flat, on a lot 25 by 100 feet, at 323 West Fortieth Street, was sold by Emily Kempner Duschnes, through Isidor H. Kempner & Sons, to Nathan Shapanka. The seller bought the property in 1904 from Lowenfeld & Prager.

The seven-story elevator apartment known as Winslow Court at 87 Hamilton Place, southeast corner of 141st Street, has been sold by Socolschein Realty, Inc. (Nathan Socol), to the newly formed Parkwood Holding Corporation, with M. Marmor, M. Gordon and L. Grossman as directors. Ralph R. Ittleson represented the buying company. The structure has a frontage of 99.3 feet on Hamilton Place and 108.6 feet on the street.

Josephine A. Kelly sold to Morris Weinstein 518 West Forty-ninth Street, a five-story brownstone tenement 26.4 by 100.5 feet. Wall Brothers were the brokers.

James H. Cruikshank, operator, purchased from the Pegay Realty Company, Inc., Joseph Sager, President, the five-story double flat at 267 West 113th Street, size 35 by 100.11 feet, and also has purchased from Emma Rothschild 269 West 113th Street, an adjoining five-story double flat on plot 35 by 100.11 feet. Harry Sugarman was the broker in both transactions.

David & Harry Lippmann sold 319-21 East Forty-sixth Street to an investor. The property consisted of two five-story flats, each building containing two five-room apartments per floor. The plot is 50 by 98.9 feet. T. F. Dougherty & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

Harry Goodstein sold to Philip Goodman, an investor, the five-story tenement and store property at 339 West Fifty-eighth Street, on lot 25 by 100 feet. Neustadt & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

In Greenwich Village J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co. sold for Anna Abendschein the five-story apartment house 268 West Twelfth Street. This is the first sale of the property in twenty years. The same brokers had recently secured from the Dry Dock Savers Mortgage Company a loan of $22,000 covering this property.

James L. Van Sant resold to Anthony Garatti 11 Sixth Avenue, a four-story brick building 17.10 by 90 feet. The purchaser after extensive alterations, will occupy the premises.

Operators in Two Purchases.

The Manport Realty Corporation purchased from the five-and-a-half-story apartment house at 1,929-1,937 Davidson Avenue. Each building occupies a plot 100 by 100 feet and is laid out in suites of three and four rooms. The structures return an annual rental of about $72,000 and were held at $450,000. M. Frank was the broker in the deal.

The Manport Realty Corporation has also purchased the five-story building with stores at 42 West Twenty-eighth Street, 25 by 100 feet, from the Hayden Company, which held it at $95,-000.

The Houghton Company has sold to an investing client, for Mrs. Susan M. Merian, the five-story and basement single apartment building at 258 West Eighty-fifth Street on a lot 20 by 85 by 102.3 feet, held at $55,000. This property has been in the ownership of the sellers since 1896.

U. S. STEEL CORP. BUYS JERSEY MEADOWS PLANT

The Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, has purchased from the Chester Securities Company, controlled by August Heckscher, the Blast Furnace Products property, located in Kearny, N. J., on the Hackensack River.

The buying company operates a large shipbuilding and repair plant on the adjacent properties to the west and south.

The Chester Company secured title to the property only two weeks ago and both the sale and resale, together with the disposal of the Niles-Bement-Pond Company fifty-four-acre plot across the Lincoln Highway, were negotiated by the Harrison-S. Colburn Company.

They were all cash transactions.

The parcel just resold by the Heckscher interests has a frontage of 939 feet on the Hackensack River and 440 feet on the south side of Lincoln Highway. It contains over fifteen acres and was held at $185,000.

By this purchase the shipbuilding company now controls all of the Hackensack River front in Kearny between the Lincoln Highway and the Newark branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

It is understood that the company plans extensive improvements on the property.

BIG BUILDING SITES BOUGHT BY OPERATORS

Ralph V. Wechsler purchased from the estate of Mary S. McAdam and Cora McAdam King the premises 318 West Thirty-fourth Street, and also the two houses adjoining to the east, 314-316 West Thirty-fourth Street, from Frank W. De Muth, giving the purchaser a plot 50 by 100 feet.

The property is located about 100 feet east of the twenty-one-story buildings which are now in the course of construction, to be occupied by the Penny Company, and about 125 feet west of the Printers' Craft twenty-two-story building on Eighth Avenue, Thirty-third to Thirty-fourth Street. This is the first sale of the property in about forty-eight years. The plot was held at $175,-000, and the sale was negotiated by Bollmann, Vossler & Co., Inc., and John M. Thompson Company, Inc.

MALE HELP WANTED.
Salesmen.

SALESMEN.

The Brooklyn Edison Company is offering to commission salesmen an opportunity to secure first-class selling positions. To the right kind of men this work is continuous and therefore permanent.

Practically no other business furnishes such high grade selling conditions. Only customers, those already using the company's service, are called upon and the difficulty of working up live prospects is therefore eliminated. Customers like to take advantage of the company's easy terms.

Other features make this a real opportunity, with money making possibilities, for the right kind of salesmen. Commissions are paid promptly. Applicants will be selected on a basis of integrity and personality rather than selling experience.

If you would like to be considered for one of these positions, you are invited to call on Mr. Galbo, third floor, 11 Bond St., Brooklyn, N. Y., at either 2 o'clock this afternoon or 7 o'clock this evening. Kindly call only at these hours.

SALESMEN,
ELECTRICAL PRODUCTS.

We require several men for a permanent connection for our branch offices and stores; men will be trained in merchandising our electrical labor-saving products for the home; must be satisfied with $25 to $40 weekly during training period on advanced commission basis; a future for the right man; first-class character references desired; call 9 to 12, 2 to 5, 145 West 45th, Suite 1015. See Mr. Gardner, or 645 East Tremont Av., Bronx, 8:30 to 10 A. M. only. See Mr. Wasko, at our Brooklyn Branch, 324 Livingston St., Brooklyn. P. A. Geier Co., 7 flight up. See Mr. W. J. Tinney.

SALESMEN.

Men of character, appearance and address better than the average, to sell nationally advertised electrical appliances; commission basis till qualified for position of branch managership on liberal salary; we can consider only the man who is really seeking a permanent connection and willing to put forth real honest effort; call 9-11 only. Mr. Williams, 901 Kings Highway, Brooklyn.

(NOT FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS.)

Mr. A. (32 years of age), who has been a successful lumber salesman nearly all his life, found himself recently without a position. Happening through a chance to read one advertisement he decided that HERE was an opportunity to capitalize his selling abilities for more money than he had been receiving. Result of his first eight weeks' work with us was three times as much as he previously earned over a similar period on commission and he has deferred equities in the business of approximately the same amount.

This is a human document open to your scrutiny—a story from real life, the basis of which is now in our employ. Best of all, it can be duplicated by an energetic man who has the work habit, combined with our original selling methods. We have a similar opening for one or two successful salesmen who can furnish gilt-edge reference.

Will finance if necessary.

SALESMEN,
CAPABLE SALESMEN, WITH GOOD PERSONALITIES.

One of the largest automobile manufacturers, with a rapidly increasing business, seeks the best grade of factory representatives—men who are not only superior salesmen, but also superior men, both mentally and physically—men able to do business with the best class of business men and their bankers; men having the initiative, resourcefulness and persistence to secure and maintain for their concern the highest class connections.

To such men we can offer the best compensation (salary) paid for this class of work, plus those opportunities for important promotions that go with fast-growing concerns.

REAL OPPORTUNITY

Firm of real estate mortgage brokers, engaged in negotiating large mortgages on Manhattan property, desires capable young man to negotiate with owners of property; earnings and future dependent upon hard work and ability; recent graduates of colleges considered; experience not essential; we are more interested in ability. Write, stating education, age, religion and drawing account desired. P 72 Times Downtown.

WIFE FOR 68 YEARS DIES, STARTING WORK

For nearly seventy years, since she was a bride of 18 in Lands End, England, Mrs. Eliza Maitland, 86 years old, has been getting up early in the morning to prepare breakfast for her family.

Yesterday morning at her home in Sea-cliff, L. I., she suffered a stroke as she was about to start her day's work and died soon after the doctor arrived. She leaves her husband, Frederick, who is 88 years old, ten children, thirty-six grandchildren, nineteen great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. One of her sons, Fred Maitland, is President of the Village of Sea-cliff and manager of the Nassau County Division of the Long Island Lighting Company.

Nearly fifty years ago William Maitland, a carpenter, his wife and four small children came to this country and made their home in Long Island. While they were content to live and prosper here, they preferred that their children should be born in their native land. So as the babies came along Mrs. Maitland made journeys back home. All but one child were born in England. George, named for George Washington, was born here.

Until he was 73 Mr. Maitland insisted upon continuing his work as a carpenter and builder. On Oct. 22, 1924, nearly seventy of their descendants gathered at their home to celebrate the sixty-eighth wedding anniversary.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Seacliff. The pastor, the Rev. L. K. Moore, will officiate.

Liquor Worth $125,000 in Suit.

Forfeiture proceedings against 20,000 quarts of whisky, seized by the police and Coast Guard officials, have been begun in the Federal Court. The bootleg value of the liquor is said to be $125,000. United States Attorney Buckner said that the action to take over the liquor was at the request of the Collector of Customs.

HIRSHFIELD THREAT CALLED BY BANKER

Frederick T. Martin, Vice President of the Corn Exchange Bank, again refused to divulge information about private transactions of Controller Charles L. Craig with the bank, when questioned at a continuation of the hearing yesterday before Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield in connection with deposits and withdrawals of city funds by the Controller. Mr. Martin again declared that the bank would give out such information only on a court order or the written permission of the Controller.

Replying to a question of Commissioner Hirshfield, Mr. Martin said no authorization for such testimony had been received from Controller Craig, but that City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer had authorized the officials of the bank to answer any questions regarding his own private transactions. The witness said that the City Chamberlain never had had an account with the Corn Exchange Bank and never had borrowed money from it.

"We shall be very glad to give any information you desire if you get the proper authority," said Mr. Martin. "We do not feel that we should take the initiative in requesting the Controller's permission. He is certainly familiar with the situation, and if he wishes to come forward and give us authority to testify, let him do so."

Continuing, the witness asked Commissioner Hirshfield: "Why don't you go to Craig or get a court order?"

"I could no more go to Craig than fly a kite," replied the Commissioner. "He hasn't answered a letter of mine for six years. Nor could I get a court order compelling you to testify. The only recourse I have is the harsh one of applying to the Supreme Court to punish you for contempt of court, a measure I don't want to take. Craig, with his peculiar mind and propensities for not telling the truth, goes from court to court to prevent investigations, and if I tried court action in this case it would be many months before the matter would be settled. A contempt of court proceeding is the only recourse I have."

A memorandum offered by Mr. Martin showed deposits of city funds in the Corn Exchange Bank as of March 2 to be $959,744.43 in the City Chamberlain's account and $5,021,994.42 in the Controller's.

Commissioner Hirshfield called attention to the fact that the Controller's deposits had increased since Dec. 13 by approximately $1,600,000. "According to Section 195 of the City Charter," he said, "it would seem that in December the amount of city funds in the Corn Exchange Bank far exceeded the limit prescribed by law, which says that no amount shall be on deposit at any time in one bank or trust company exceeding 50 per cent. of the capital and net surplus of such bank or trust company."

John J. Halpin, counsel for the Corn Exchange Bank, declared that the section of the City Charter referred to had to do only with deposits made by the City Chamberlain. The Commissioner replied that while the section cited specifically the accounts of the Chamberlain, it was logical to assume that all city funds were meant. "The Controller has in his custody permanent funds aggregating around $200,000,000," he said, "and if he can deposit them in one bank in addition to moneys deposited by the Chamberlain, the total sum would be greatly in excess of that authorized by the City Charter. This is my interpretation of the charter, but I may be wrong."

Complete records of all official transactions and accounts of the Controller with the Corn Exchange Bank are being prepared and will be placed in the hands of Commissioner Hirshfield on Friday morning, said Mr. Martin. The hearing will be continued next Monday morning at 10:30.

JURY GIVES HER $2,500 FOR BROKEN PROMISE

Justice Levy Criticizes Verdict Against Lawyer As Small But Refuses to Set It Aside.

A verdict of $2,500 was returned yesterday by the jury which heard the $50,000 breach of promise suit of Miss Janet Behrens against Saul J. Baron, a lawyer, before Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy. Miss Behrens had been employed as secretary by Baron for eleven years.

A motion to set aside the verdict was made by Nathan D. Stern, counsel for Baron. He argued that it was a compromise, and if the jury believed her story any verdict for less than $15,000 was inadequate. Mr. Stern suggested to I. Russell Stein, Miss Behren's counsel, that he join in the motion. He declined, saying that his client had sued for vindication and not for money.

Justice Levy said $2,500 seemed a small amount for the suffering Miss Behrens had undergone, but since the matter was purely one of evidence upon which the jury had passed, he denied the motion.

Miss Behrens testified she had entered the employ of Baron in 1912. Her interest and zeal, she said, led him to place considerable confidence in her. This confidence, according to her story, ripened into warm friendship, then love and an engagement to wed. One witness, her sister, supported her testimony. A denial of all her testimony was made by Baron. His counsel said he would appeal. The jury was out four hours.

$250 FINES FOR ALL DRY LAW VIOLATORS

Judge Bondy Resents Conduct of Counsel in Leaving Clients for Inaugural.

Federal Judge Bondy viewed a crowd of defendants, accused of violating the prohibition law, from the bench yesterday morning, and listened for twenty minutes to pleas for delay from defendants who explained that their counsel were not present. It developed that many of the lawyers had gone to Washington to attend the inaugural ceremonies.

Finally Judge Bondy lost patience and told the defendants that if their lawyers were not present other counsel would have to be employed. To a defendant who pleaded that his counsel had failed him Judge Bondy said:

Then he announced that he would fine all liquor law violators $250 each. Those who had counsel came promptly before the bar, heard their sentences, and passed on.

United States Attorney Buckner sat in court by the side of his assistant, John M. Cashin, during the proceedings. When the day's work was over Mr. Buckner estimated that at least 2,000 bail bonds would be forfeited as the result of Judge Bondy's announcement. Judge Bondy also said that in all such cases he would sustain the forfeitures and issue bench warrants for the arrest of the defendants.
